

THE DISCOVERY OF COAL

IT WAS YEARS, HOWEVER, BEFORE ITS VALUE WAS REALIZED.

The Story of How Anthracite Coal Was Discovered and the Development of the Same.

Ask almost anybody up in the Pennsylvania coal regions who first discovered the coal, and the answer will quickly come "Phil Ginter." Even the grayer youngsters among the "old-timers" under the ground have the story as pat as a royal flush. It has been made one of their school studies from time immemorial, and it's dollars to cents that they'll tell you that Phil Ginter was the first to find the coal.

The story is an interesting one. What Rip Van Winkle was to our grandfathers along the Hudson Phil Ginter was to the hills forming the French foot of the Lehigh Valley. He was a tramp of the Mauch Chunk region—a lay old Dutchman—who would rather loaf than work, and who was fond of his gun and dog than of cleanliness of clothes or of the appearance of his person.

One day, in the year 1791, Phil had been out on one of his hunting expeditions and was returning home. As usual, most of his hunting had been done under a tree, where he had gone to sleep and undressed to dream of choice covers. He had lain there until it began to rain, and as the rain increased he rubbed his eyes, swore at his ill luck and meandered homeward.

The rainstorm in the mountains that woke the old Pennsylvania Dutchman proved a godsend to him and to the world at large. As he ambled homeward the rain became more furious and washed away large portions of earth. Picking his way through the mud and over fallen trees, Phil suddenly stumbled on some rocks, and as he did so he displaced a number of "black stones" that had become uncovered by the washout.

Old Phil had heard the legends of the existence of "black stones" that would burn in the mountains, but he had never seen any of them, and he and the other mountaineers looked upon it as a fairy story. To his own inquisitive turn of mind, however, and when he unparted the stones he searched for more. Beneath the root of a fallen tree he dug up many of them, and he filled his pockets with them and tagged them with numbers.

Colonel Jacob Weiss was the oracle of the ballroom at that time. He resided at Fort Allen, now Weissport, near by to Mauch Chunk. On the following day Ginter took his find to the colonel. The colonel saw at a glance that until discovery and made a wonderful discovery, but he obtained Phil's permission to have the "black stones" examined by somebody who knew more about such matters than he did. Philadelphia then, as now, was the home of learned scientists, mineralogists and savants.

To them Colonel Weiss went, taking with him several specimens of Ginter's find. Among the savants was Charles Cut, a printer, who at once pronounced it "stone coal," and who told Colonel Weiss that there was a fortune in it. They at once determined to buy Ginter off upon his showing them the place where he had found the specimens.

But Ginter was coy. He reasoned with himself that if the find was worth the sum they offered him it was worth more, and he held back. He told them in Pennsylvania Dutch that they might think until doomsday and he'll never find it. Then they agreed to Ginter's proposal that they give him title to a tract of land in the locality upon which he could, and afterward did, build a small mill. He had scarcely built the mill, however, when he was told that it was owned by somebody else and that his title was worthless.

In the following year, 1792, Weiss, Cut and a man named Billgate formed themselves into the Lehigh Coal Mine company. They had no charter or incorporation, but they took up 8,000 acres of land in the locality and began to work the mine in a rude way. They sent small quantities of coal to Philadelphia, but it proved not to be worth, and in a number of instances, instead of burning, put the fire out. This disheartened the company, and for awhile nothing was done to develop the mines.

It was not until 1812 that Messrs. White & Hazard, iron manufacturers at Schuylkill Falls, attempted to work them successfully, and also to work the legislature scheme to improve the Schuylkill river, offering as an inducement the fact that the mines were full of coal. The legislature didn't bite, however, and the scheme temporarily fell through. A year later, in December, 1813, the company made a lease to Mine, Cut & Hazard, giving them the permission to develop the mines, the only consideration being that the workers take out annually 10,000 bushels of coal for their benefit.

In December, 1815, the Lehigh Coal Mine company entered into a lease with the White, Hank & Hazard. The lease was for twenty years, and included the whole territory of 8,000 acres. The lease agreed that after a given time for preparation they should deliver annually at least 40,000 bushels in Philadelphia and the surrounding districts and should sell it for their own benefit. For this "privilege" they were to pay the annual rent of one acre of corn.

Having obtained the lease the leasees applied to the legislature for permission to make the Lehigh river navigable and thus to convey their coal to market. The learned legislators laughed at them and found plainly that their scheme was chimerical, that there was nothing in it, and that the god-dusted stone coal would only put dirt on the fire instead of making them richer.

On March 30, 1818, however, the legislature gave the leasees an opportunity to "reun themselves," as they put it, and in the following August the Lehigh Navigation company was formed, with a capital of $50,000. In October the Lehigh Coal company was formed, with a capital of $50,000 for the purpose of making a road from the mines to the river and of taking the coal to market by means of the new navigation. This road down the mountain side was begun at once and was finished in 1819. It is the same road over which the famous Switchback cars now carry from Summit Hill, in Carbon county, to Upper Merion, in Chester, and over which thousands of pleasure seekers now ride in the summer time. It is said to have been the first road that was ever laid out with transit and level.—New York World.

Nothing can be accomplished if we do not move ahead. We have an opportunity now, and it should not be neglected. Let this of our property holders and business men who are directly the cause of our prosperity, both in coal and in other industries, and we will move ahead.

The evening's pleasures were many and varied, and all had a good time. A luncheon was served in an appetizing manner.

IN THE SICK OF TIME.

This would seem a contradiction, so it is, but it is a fact. The sick of time is a disease that is not only a disease of the body, but also of the mind. It is a disease that is not only a disease of the body, but also of the mind. It is a disease that is not only a disease of the body, but also of the mind.

Some Foolish People Allow a cough to run until it gets beyond all control. It is a disease that is not only a disease of the body, but also of the mind. It is a disease that is not only a disease of the body, but also of the mind.

Agitate enterprise. Coughing Leads to Consumption. Kemp's Balsam will stop the cough at once. Encourage local industry.

Look at this! No matter what disease you have, if you take the medicine you take here, it will cure you. It is a disease that is not only a disease of the body, but also of the mind. It is a disease that is not only a disease of the body, but also of the mind.

True Economy. No matter how many times you read these notices are placed in a paper, they are not to be taken as a recommendation of any medicine, but as a warning to the public that there is a disease that is not only a disease of the body, but also of the mind.

As a true flourish in proportion to the richness of the soil, so the human body thrives in accordance with the quality of the food it consumes. Hence the necessity of having a vital food rich and pure with Ayer's Sarsaparilla, the best blood medicine you can find.

ACCUSED OF MURDER.

A Carbon County Man, Whose Hands are Said to be Tied in Blood.

Captain Simpson, of the Coal and Iron Police, Hamilton, went to Conyngham to arrest Samuel Shiner, charged with conspiracy in the famous Kester murder case.

Shiner made a confession. The confession was to the effect that Higgins, Ewald and Gallagher came to him and asked him to go along and keep watch while they robbed the bank.

Shiner was afraid that either Gallagher, Ewald or Higgins would turn state evidence and he went before Squire Kester and told what he knew of the ghastly crime.

The other man who was there was a man named Kunkle, from Lehigh county who is now said to be around Allentown. Christian is a notorious character who is now at Millport Carbon county. He is a criminal of long standing. It seems, Christian was arrested on Monday evening, Oct. 28, 1885, charged with the murder. Detectives Smith, of Allentown, and Somers, of Reading, captured him at Millport and took him to Wilkesbarre where he was given a hearing. He was then sent to the county jail at Allentown, where he is now held.

The town of Conyngham is greatly excited over the development of the great Carbon. Officers will arrest Christian at Millport, Carbon county and Kunkle at Allentown. From the Hamilton Sentinel.

Development in the Kester Case. As to Edwin Christian, of Millport, and Kunkle, whose names were mentioned in the stories of Thursday and Friday, a curious development has come to light. Both of them have confessed to Chief Hampton and Captain Simpson, that they attempted to rob the Kesters sometime previous to the murder.—Hamilton Plain Speaker.
