A Pleasant Industry for the Charleston Colored Falk Originated by New York Tourists-Scrambiling for Silver-Div-

A steamenwas just leaving Charleston, bound for Jacksonville, Fia. A stop of several hours at the famous old earth-quake city had made a pleasant break in the three days' run from New York, Many of the passengers had taken advantage of it to drive about the ansist old town, curiously observing the consist old town, curiously observing the paint of the consist of t ing for Greenbacks. taken advantage of it to drive about the quant old town, curromaly observing the great cracks caused by the upheaval that still remains in many of the build-lings. Others took a sail over to Fort Monitrie or to Fort Sumier, where the civil war was started. Ferhaps the most inferesting point for the sightness who remained sahore was old St. Michael's church. Some of the more sturdy olimbed far up into the steeple, from whence General Beauregard had watched and directed the battle, until the Yalike gumners had got the range. Bit experience has pured in heart. the Yankee gunners had got the range of his observatory and put a cannon ball right through the steeple, not far from the general's head, when he discreetly pressed with the historical associations connected with the place that it was al-most a relief when a half hour's diversion came to them. As the steamer was moving away from her pier an ambitions little tag that puffed and snorted and toolsel enough for a couple of covan liners missed its hold, and the big steamer's bow drifted slowly around until she lay broadside to the outer end of the piss. Here she was held for awhile by a stiff breeze that pinned her up against the pier and by the mud that griped her keel.

Perhaps it was the cheerful recollection of past experiences which they hoped to have repeated that caused all the darkies, big and little the six year-old pickaninny and the grayheaded, attop shouldered reminiscence of slavery days to hurry down to the end of this ples. There are few things that will aronse the dusiv southerner who makes finds his greatest content in doxing away in some sun sheltered nook upon the wharf, resting to the full from the ardnous toll that he fancies he may be called upon to perform in the week to

They were of this class who came trooping down to the steamer by the dozen and score. A careful patching into one suit of the attire of half of them would have made a beautiful crasy quilt garb for one. It is doubtful if the most conscientious and painstaking cobbler could have constructed a decent pair of es out of the material he found upon that pier. However, it was a diversion to the pussengers on the upper deck to see that mot-ley crowd, and when a dumpy little fellow with a wonderful mouth, that must have created a great vacuum in the atmosphere every time he breathed, pranced to the front and shouted, "Now, ladies and genta, jee you tro a dime at dis yere hole, 'n if I don' ketch it she don' count,"

To allver. A well known Bellevne hospital physician, Dr. J. S. O'Neil, gathers to together all the silver dollars that had been given him in change in Charleston, and kept half a dozen heaps of darkies in turned at once.

The climax came as the steamer began slowly to move away from the pier. Some one waved a two dollar bill and saked who would dive for it. "I will!" came from two dozen throats, and there was a general peeling of jackets—free backets. The lail and here was a general peeling of jackets—free backets. was a general pseling of jackets—from those who were dudish shough to wear jackets. The bill fluttered on to the water ten feet from the pier. There was an anxious, hesitating, regretful pause and a scratching of heads. Then there was a plunge, a few stordy strokes by a young negro, and he clutched the bill. The passengers gave him a cheer and the steamer sailed away.—New York Harald

Ancient Chinese Bridges. Suspension bridges which were built in the time of the Han dynasty (203 B. 3, to 220 A. D.) are still standing, striking examples of oriental engineering skill. According to historical and geo-graphical writers of China it was Shang Lieng, Knen Tsu's chief of command who undertook to construct the fire public roads in the Flowery Empire, that time it was almost impossible the province of Sheine to communic with the capital. Lieux took an arm with the capital. Limb took an army of 10,000 workmen and cut great gorges through the mountains, filling up the canyons and valleys with the debris from his excavations. At places where leep gorges were traversed by large and rapidly flowing streams he actually carried out his plan of throwing suspension bridges, stratching from one show ion bridges, stretching from one slope the extreme. At the present day a bridge may still be seen in the Sheuse which is 400 feet long and is stretched over a chasm more than 1,000 feet deep. How those early engineers eracted such a structure with the tools and appliances at their examined is a mystery which will probably never be explained.—St. Louis Republic.
