"Beg pardon, madami," said he, "but you'd better not try it."

The lady gave her skiris an extra twitch and giared at the youth.

"I want you to know," she respected, "that I never needed a minit advice, and I don't need it now. Lemme by."

The young man jumped to one side, and she who would not be befriended went shead. There was a splash, a half smothered cry, a wild scramble, and she stood on the eldewalk. But the shesh had gone above the tops of her steet walking shoes. Grimly she isoked back at her advices, and the wind brought have remark to his ease;

"I never took a man's advice, but i wish I had that time." she said.—New York Times.
