Not Made of a Saving.

You will hear these words repeated thirty times a day in a certain downtown eating house here, and they mean that a total stranger has had a hearty meal, can't pay for the same, and the propriator is willing to accept his promises to settle the bill some nuture time. I doubt if you can find a similar institution in the world. In all other places the man would be looked upon as a dead-beat and either kinked out or turned over to the police. Here he is treated as a gentleman and put on his honor. When a friend tald me about the place I went in, ate fifty center.

He recorded mane, date and amount, and I departed. Three days later I called to pay. He did not look at all surprised as he hunted out the silp and made change. Indeed, it was just what he expected, for ten years' experience has taught him that ninety-fire percent, of "dead-brokes" return and square up. If all the vagabonds of New York could get credit at an eating-house business would go to the wall in a fortnight, but that class are not admitted. There is a man at the door who "spots" them and warms them off when they appear. A decent-looking man will pass muster every time, however, and, though now and then one falls to aquare up, the loss is a more trifle. The proprietor of the place told me he had more trouble with dishonest waiters in his employ than with the walters in his employ than with the thousands who feed at his place every year. He loses a dollar through a walter for every dime lost by trusting

"What's the matter?"
"Stome one killed, I guess."
If was a great crowd in front or a above on Broadway. I looked for the ambulance but it was not to be seen. I tried to crowd my way to the front but no one would give an inch. I skirted the crowd, asking this one and that one no one would give an inch. I shirted the crowd, saking this one and that one whather it was a murder or an accident, and at last I found an opening and reached the front rank. What do you suppose a thousand men and boys were staring at with bated breath and defying the efforts of three or four policemen to keep the walks clear? Simply a line of cheap-colored engraving—a dosen pletures in all—and all marked then contail huch a show would not attract ten people in any other city, but New Yorkers are half-grown children. I'll put a bag of potatoes or a bushel of turnips in a Broadway window and engage to keep a crowd in front of it all day long. On the other hand, if there is a big fire raging within a block of Broadway it will not attract one pedestrian out of ten. The other day there was a smart fire in Canal street, with at least six fire engines on the ground. A block away a street on horse had fallen and broken a leg. I made an estimate of both crowds, and I think the one about the borse was the largest by nundreds. Heackelah Brampole has been satirfased and ridiculed because he "gawped" while one visits New York. The truth is, the average New Yorker appade half his time "gawping." If he can't find anything more interesting he spends half his time "gawping." If he can't find anything more interesting he will put in half an hour vesteling the satios of the automatic bug making direies on the top of a dry goods box or

The Result of Volcanic Upheaval in as Age Long Gone By.

Maj. J. W. Powell, director of the United States geological survey, thus describes the origin of Lake Tahoe:

"In geographical times not long ago, as speaks the scientist, but very long ago, as speaks the chronicler of human follies, there was a deep valley on the eastern slope of the Sierra Nevadas at the headwaters of the Truckee river. About this valley towered granite mountains. But earthquakes came, reuts were opened in the rocks, and from the fissures poured monstrous streams of lavs. One of those fissures crossed the lower end of the valley, and through it poured floods of molten rocks. Stream after stream issued, to cool in solid sheets and blocks, until s FRAZER GREASE HEST IN THE WORLD, The wearing qualifles are unsurpassed, actually cubined my two began at any other brand.
