Mr. Jefferson on the Slave Question. The annexed letter from Thomas Jefferson to the Hon. Edward Coles, has been brought to light by the agitation in Kentucky, in reference to the Convention about to be held in that State on the Prospective Emancipation question...

PHILADELPHIA, June 5, 1849. My DEAR SIR:—Under the impression that its publication at this time will promote your views, be gratifying to the people of Kentucky, and be of general utility, I am induced to take the liberty to enclose you a copy of a letter from Mr. Jefferson to me on the subject of slavery.

I avail myself of the occasion to tender my respectful compliments to Mr. Clay, and to renew to you assurances of my high respect and sincere regard.

EDWARD COLES. To Hon. Henry Clay, Lexington, Ky. MONTICELLO, August 25th, 1814. DEAR SIR:—Your favor of July 31st was duly received and was read with peculiar pleasure. The sentiments breathed through the whole do honor to both the head and heart of the writer.

The love of justice and the love of country plead equally the cause of these people, and it is a moral reproach to us that they should have pleaded it so long in vain, and should have produced not a single effort—nay I fear, not much serious willingness—to relieve them and ourselves from our present condition of moral and political reprobation.

From those of the former generation who were in the fulness of age when I came into public life, which was while our controversy with England was on paper only, I saw nothing was to be hoped. Nursed and educated in the daily habit of seeing the degraded condition, both bodily and mentally, of those unfortunate beings, not reflecting that that degradation was very much the work of themselves and their fathers, few minds had yet doubted but that they were as legitimate subjects of property as their horses or cattle.

The quiet and monotonous course of colonial life had been disturbed by no alarm and little reflection on the value of liberty; and, when alarm was taken at an enterprise of their own, it was not easy to carry out the whole length of the principles which they invoked for themselves. In the first or second session of the Legislature after I was a member, I drew to this subject the attention of Colonel Bland, one of the oldest, ablest, and most respected members, and he undertook to move for certain moderate extensions of the protection of the laws to these people.

From an early stage of our Revolution other and more distant duties were assigned me, so that from that time till my return from Europe in 1789, and I may say, till I returned to reside at home in 1809, I had little opportunity of knowing the progress of public sentiment here on this subject. I had always hoped that the younger generation, receiving their early impressions after the flame of liberty had been kindled in every breast, and had become as it were the vital spirit of every American, that the generous temperament of youth, analogous to the motion of their blood, and above the suggestions of avarice, would have sympathized with oppression wherever found, and proved their love of liberty beyond their own share of it.

But my intercourse with them since my return has not been sufficient to ascertain that they had made towards this point the progress I had hoped. Your solitary but welcome voice is the first which has brought this sound to my ear, and I have considered the silence which prevails on this subject as indicating an apathy unfavorable to our hopes. Yet the hour of emancipation is advancing in the march of time. It will come, and, whether brought on by the generous energy of our own minds or by the bloody process of St. Domingo, excited and conducted by the power of our present enemy, if once stationed permanently within our country, offering asylum and arms to the oppressed, is a leaf of our history not yet turned over.

As to the method by which this difficult work is to be effected, if permitted to be done by ourselves, I have seen no proposition so expedient on the whole, as that of emancipation of those born after a given day, and of their education and expatriation at a proper age. This would give time for a gradual extinction of that species of labor, and substitution of another, and lessen the severity of the shock, which an operation so fundamental cannot fail to produce. The idea of emancipating the whole at once, the old as well as the young, and retaining them here, is of those who have not the guide of either knowledge or experience on this subject.

For men, probably of any color, but of this color we know, brought up from their infancy without necessity for thought or forecast, are by their habits, rendered as incapable as children of taking care of themselves, and are extinguished promptly wherever industry is necessary for raising the young. In the meantime they are pests in society by their idleness, and the deprivations to which this leads them—Their amalgamation with the other color produces a degradation to which no lover of his country, no lover of excellence in the human character, can innocently consent.

I am sensible of the partialities with which you looked toward me as the person who should undertake this salutary and arduous work; but this, my dear sir, is like bidding old Priam to buckle on the armor of Hector, 'trementibus aeo humeris in- digne ferrum cingi.' No. I have over-lived the generation with which mutual labors and perils begat mutual confidence and influence. This enterprise is for the young; for those who can follow it up, and bear it through to its consummation. It shall have all my prayers, and these are the only weapons of an old man. But, in the meantime are you right in abandoning this property and your country with it? I think not. My opinion has ever been that, until more can be done for them, we should endeavor with those whom fortune has thrown on our hands to feed and clothe them well, protect them from ill usage, require such reasonable labor only as is performed voluntarily by freemen, and be led by no repugnances to abdicate them and our duties to them. The law does not permit us to turn them loose, if that were for their good, and to commiserate them for other property is to commit them to those whose usage to them we cannot control.

I hope, then, my dear sir, you will reconcile yourself to your country and its unfortunate condition; that you will not lessen its stock of disposition by withdrawing your portion from the mass. That on the contrary, you will come forward in the public councils, become the missionary of this doctrine truly christian, insinuate and inculcate it softly but steadily through the medium of writing and conversation; associate others in your labors, and when the phalanx is formed, bring on and press the proposition perseveringly until its accomplishment. It is an encouraging observation that no good measure was ever proposed which, if daily pursued, failed to prevail in the end.

We have proof of this in the history of the endeavors in the British Parliament to suppress that very trade which brought this evil upon us. And you will be supported by the religious precept—'Be not weary in well doing.' That your success may be as speedy and complete as it will be honorable and immortal consolation to yourself, I shall as fervently and sincerely pray as I assure you of my great friendship and respect.

THO. JEFFERSON. E. COLES, Esq.

STATE CONVENTION. AT the last meeting of the WHIG STATE CENTRAL COMMITTEE, held at Harrisburg, in pursuance of the public call, it was on motion, Resolved, That the friends of the National and State administrations, in Pennsylvania, be requested to meet in the several cities and counties of the State, and select delegates equal in number to their representation in the State Legislature, who shall meet in Convention at the Court House in Harrisburg, at 11 o'clock, a. m., on THURSDAY, THE 16TH DAY OF AUGUST NEXT, for the purpose of selecting a candidate for CANAL COMMISSIONER, and to do such other business as the interest of the country may require.

EDITORIAL STATE CONVENTION. The undersigned publishers of Newspapers in the 17th Congressional District, concurring with their editorial brethren generally in the necessity of having an Editorial State Convention in Pennsylvania, for the purpose of correcting numerous abuses now practiced to the positive injury of Country publishers, respectfully recommend to the Fraternity, that they meet in State Convention, at Harrisburg, on THURSDAY, the 5th day of November, 1849, and earnestly urge a general attendance.

The Postage Reform must be effected during the next session of Congress. A Law whose practical effect is to make the rich richer and the poor poorer, cannot be too soon erased from our National Statute Book; and we deem the time recommended for a State Convention an auspicious one for urging effectually upon our National Congress the necessity and expediency of a speedy and permanent change. This and other Reforms immediately affecting the interests of the Country Press, demand the prompt and serious attention of the Fraternity, and we call upon our brethren throughout the State to act with us harmoniously and energetically, feeling confident that by so doing the Country Press can be placed upon a proper platform.

If wheat brings a better price than it will afford to grind, he has the same chance of shipping it as any other, as the mill is the most convenient storehouse in the place, and saves a great deal of time and labor in hoisting by water power.
