From California.

The steamers Empire City, Georgia and Cherokee, arrived at N. York on Tuesday from Chagres, bringing a month's later intelligence from California and the Pacific. The Cherokee had on board 100 passengers, and near two millions in gold. The others also had a large number of passengers.

The steamer California arrived at Panama on the 23d, with two hundred and twenty-three passengers, and $2,500,000 in gold dust.

Passengers report that gold is more plenty than ever, and that property has fallen somewhat in price. Provisions and even luxuries are very abundant in San Francisco.

The steamer Sarah Sands and propeller Carolina had gone up full of passengers. About 3000 still remained upon the Isthmus, waiting their chances. The rainy season had not yet set in, and Chagres and Panama were still healthy. Many robberies were daily taking place at Panama repairs which cost the town about 36,000f. and on the Isthmus.

MATTERS ON THE PACIFIC SIDE .- Since our last issue for the steamer, many chan- naturally rushed to the other side, when the ges have occurred, showing the rapid onward course of California. The rains have ceased, and everything betokens a revival of the accustomed activity in business circles.

The immigration from the States is beginning to pour in upon our shores in one unbroken current, and the steamers plying upon our rivers are crowded to their utmost in the conveyance of passengers and freight to the various cities and towns in the great interior valleys, and to the different mines.

Our accounts from the mines are reliable, and all concur in stating the inexhaustible quantity of the precious metal. In fact, it is the opinion of the oldest miners -those who have spent the past winter in the mountains-that the same ground worked over last year will be found far more productive this; while at the same time additional and extensive districts are being opened which will give profitable employment to hundreds of thousands for a generation to come. In our paper will be found many interesting details from the mineral region .- Pacific News, April 1st.

From the Pacific News, March 30.

THE SAN JOAQUIN VALLEY .- We learn from a friend that the travel towards the southern mines is increasing every day, and the prospects in that region, the coming season, are more flattering than last year. New placers are discovered as explorations are made by our adventurous citizens, and new towns laid out as the population increases. · Stockton is said to be growing rapidly, and business becoming sion of Cardinal Antinello. brisk as the roads to the mines become passable

The new city of, San Joaquin, of which we have before spoken favorably, is increasing with magical speed, and will become this season a town of great importance and extensive trade. We do not know of a new city in the Valley, or State, that is more advantageously situated on high and beautiful ground, or which offers greater inducements for settlers.

FRANCE .- The 'Accident at Angers .- The subjoined details of a sad accident which occured at Angers, to the battalion of the 11th Regiment, on its way from Saumur, are given in the Journal de Maine et Loire of the 16th: At 11 o'clock this morning a squadron of hussars, coming from Nantes, had crossed over the suspension bridge of the Basse Maine, without any accident, although the wind blew very heavily from the west, and the river was much agitated. The last of the horses had scarcely crossed the bridge, when the head of the column of the 3d battalion of the 11th Light Infantry appeared on the other side. Reiterated warnings were given to the troops to break into sections, as is usually done, but the rain falling heavily at the time the warning was disregarded, and the battalion advanced in close column. The head of the battalion had reached the opposite side- the pioneers, the drummers, and a part of the band were off the bridge, when a horrible crash was heard: the cast iron columns of the right bank suddenly gave way, crushing beneath them the rear of the 4th company, which, with the flank company, had not entered on the bridge. Of those that escaped with their lives, there is scarcely one but has received wounds from the bayonets of his comrades.

The suspension bridge which has tallen was built 12 years ago, but a year since underwent The suspending chains at first gave way, on one side only, when the soldiers on the bridge, feeling the movement of the floor of the bridge, chains there also gave way, and the whole floor of the bridge tell. From one bank to the other the river was completely blocked up with the soldiers struggling to reach the shore. If the weather had been calm, the greater number of them would, in all probability, have been saved The wind, however, blew a perfect hurricane, and the waves were very rough. Masses of men might be seen clinging to each other, the waves every moment washing away some of them, until only one remained. Beams of wood, planks, and every article that could be laid hold of, were launched, to enable the men to keep themselves afloat until further assistance could arrive. Ten o'clock-The muster roll has just been called over. Of the 1st, 2d and 3d companies there only remain 14. 16 and 19 men respectively. The number de-ficient amounts to 219, to which must be added 33 dead and 30 wounded in the hospital, making the total loss to the battalion 282. The number of bodies picked up to this time amounts to 123.

ITALY .- Pius the 9th at Rome .- The arrival of the Pope at Rome has been announced by telegraph to the people of Paris. According to the government version, " the whole city expressed the greatest joy, and the population went out to meet him." The real accounts, when they are received, will be interesting. The King of Naples accompanied the Pontiff to the frontier, and was moved to tears at the parting. Perhaps some recollection of his last excursion to the Roman States, when he was chased out of them by Garribaldi, may have mingled with his emotion.

Great precautions are said to be taken to preserve the Pope from assassination. No person is allowed to approach him, except by permis-

Letters state that the Pope, since his return, has drawn up several decrees, which have been suppressed by the Cardinals.

One account states that His Holiness is little less than an Austrian prisoner. The first regiment of French Dragoons have left Rome for France.

From the National Intelligencer.

The Administration and its Enemies. In addition to daily assaults by the Opposition organ in this city-which, from the monotony of its abuse and misrepresentation, have ceased to attract particular attention-the Telegraph lines and the Mails have been put in requisition to disperse over the country the most unfounded and unjust representations respecting the relations which exist between the President of the United States and Members of his Cabinet, and between the President and the two houses of Congress.

The following paragraphs, for example form part of the Washington letter of April 11, in the Journal of Commerce of Saturday; which the more deserve notice, because of the general accuracy as to facts of the Washington Correspondent of that paper :

pointed whigs, forming a majority of the party [in Congress,] are hostile to the Cabinet, and moving every means of turning them and their adherents out of office. "They have made some progress in the scheme, and expect to accomplish it. They have undoubtedly won the President over to them; for he is very much werried by the representations that his own honor is implicated in the transactions which are alleged to be of doubtful propriety.

" The President has intimated a strong disposition to follow the suggestions of his friends, and form a new Cabinet. In that case, the old Cabinet must go out, as it came in, a uni Of these statements, we feel authorized to say, every one is erroneous, in whole or in part.

That there are some Whigs in Congress who are unfriendly to the Cabinet, we do not doubt. No Cabinet has ever existed, within our knowledge, which had not enemies in Congress, even among those who assisted to place them in power. During the pure and upright Admin-istration of the late President ADAMS, for example, there was always a strong opposition in both Houses, not only to the President, but to the members of the Cabinet. But there is no reason, as far as we are informed, to suppose that the adversaries of the present Administration constitute " a majority" of the Whig party in the two Houses, or in either House of gress. We trust and believe that it is not true that even those Whigs who are unfriendly to the Administration are "moving every means" to turn the Heads of the Executive Departments out of office. Sure we are, that it is no part of the proper vocation of Members of Congress, individually or collectively, to turn Memers of the Cabinet "and their adherents" out of office ; and not less sure are we, that, should any attempt be made to encroach upon the functions of the Executive in that particular, it would meet with a decisive and constitutional rebuke. We should be very loth and very sorry to believe that they ("the disappointed Whigs" have made any progress in such a "scheme. If they "expect to accomplish it," they surely deceive themselves. It is not true that the enemies of the Cabinet have won the PRESIDENT over to them :" ner is it true that "the President has intimated a strong disposition" to "form a new Cabinet-There exists, we have reason to know, entire concord between him and his Cabinet: and there is not, we verily believe, a single member of the Cabinet, who would not retire from his station instantaneously on discovering that his presence in the Council Chamber was not desired by the President. There is not, we are persuaded, one of them who is not affectionately and deeply attached to the President, and proud that he enjoys the esteem and confidence of that eminent man. Nor is there in fact any division, or any want of harmony, between the President and the members of the Cabinet. Sincere friends to the President, grateful for the services which he has rendered, and those which he is now performing for his country, we are rejoiced to be able to say, as we now do upon the best authority, that there is not a cavation at Nimrod and Nineveh.
