TROY, N. Y., Aug. 22 .- About ten o'clock this forenoon, Mr. R. B. M'Donald, proprietor of the St. Charles Hotel, thinking there was something wrong in the non-appearance of a man and woman who had stopped as travellers, went up to their room and knocked at the door, but receiving no answer, he opened a small window over the door, when a horrid spectacle was presented. Both man woman were dead. The hodies, the clothes and the bed were covered with blood, and the throats of both were cut and orribly mutilated.

The man and woman came to the hotel about 4 o'clock on Monday morning. From facts which were brought out, it was found that the man's name was Wm. A. Caldwell, a resident of Whitehall, where he has a father living. He was from 26 to 30 years of age, and had returned from sea about three or four months since. He was well dressed and of respectable appearance The woman's maiden name was Louisa C. Van Winkle, but it is believed she was of late known . Van by the name of Knapp. She was between 25 and 30 years old, and very beautiful. She was dressed in deep mourning, and is stated to be from Brooklyn.

The Coroner's Jury, after hearing the facts in the case, returned the following verdict:—That the woman came to her death by having her throat cut from ear to ear by the hands of Wm. A. Caldwell, on the evening of Tuesday, and that Caldwell came to his death by his own

From Friday's New York Tribune.

It appears that the Mrs. Knapp, atias Louisa C. V. Winkle, of whose tragical death at Troy we gave an account in yesterday's Tribune, was the woman who lately kept "The Arbor," a saloon in Murray street. loon in Murray street, near Broadway. She formerly kept a similar establishment, on a larger scale, in Reade street, just below La Farge Buildings, but on the 1st of May the house was torn down, and she went to Murray street. This latter place she disposed of and quitted five or six weeks ago, since which time we believe she has not been seen in the city. The Brooklyn Advertiser says most of those who attended the Washington street Methodist Church, some years ago, will recollect a tall, handsome female, exquisite model, who, with her sister, occupied a side pew, about two-thirds down the right and side aisle. She was one well calculated to attract attention. Her mother, a widow, resided at 70 Tillary street. Miss Van Winkle was married to a Mr. Knapp, about three years ago. She was then about the age of 21, and not a few envied the favored suitor. Several children were born to them, and we believe she was in mourning for the death of one of them at the time of her violent death. A short time since, she with her husband took a place in Murray street, which place, we regret to say, was a tavern. How she could have condescended to such a means of employment for a livelihood we cannot imagine. It was, we learn, while thus employed that Mr. Crowell [Caldwell] ingratiated himself into her affections, with whom she left the city less than two weeks ago. She had a remarkable high spirit, and it may be, that suffering under the stings of conscience, on ac-count of sacrificing honor, home, family and friends, through the wiles of a seducer, she upbraided him, and her death was the consequence. The body of Mrs. Knapp will be brought to Brooklyn for interment to-morrow.

HARRISBURG, Aug. 24.—The hearing of an habeas corpus case of three negroes, brought on a charge of horse stealing, has occupied the attention of the court, and a decision was rendered this morning. It appeared on evidence that the negroes were runaway slaves, who stole the whose property was stolen or where the offence In reference to the larceny of the horses, Judge Pearson said: "If there was any reasonable doubt as to the intention, it would our duty to send the cases to a jury of the State of Virginia; but we have none, and if the men were on their trial in this Court, we should obliged to instruct the jury to acquit them. The rule of law is settled in numerous cases and at various periods of our judicial history, that, if property is taken even indirectly, yet not with the intention to steal, but merely to use, it is not larceny. If probable cause to believe these men guilty was made out, as committing magistrates we should retain them for trial; bu we do not think that any crime has been proved against them, and that the taking was a mere trespass. No proof has been adduced as to what laws exist in Virginia on the subject of the abduction of property by slaves; but we take it for granted, in the absence of evidence, that ev are governed by the rules of common law. If the rule is more stringent in that State, it should be shown by the accusers. Another point has been raised—that the Court will not permit these men to be arrested, as they have been fraudulently seized, imprisoned, and brought into Court on a criminal charge, for which there was no foundation whatever. We are by no means prepared to say that this charge was fraudulently preferred, but, on the contrary, two of the defendants, Wilson and Brooks, can only escape a trial, a probable conviction, from the fact that they were slaves, endeavoring to escape from the custody of their master, and merely used the horses to aid them in their object. We would not permit Mr. Taylor, or any other man, to seize his property in open Court, which would be a contempt. But he has an undoubted right to take these men wherever he can lay his hands on them, peaceably; and if violence or disturbance ensues, those persons are criminally re-sponsible who cause it. We have the power to prevent the abuse of legal process, but we have no lawful authority to prevent the recaption of these men, or any other slaves, by the owner, when and wheresoever he may think proper to secure his right, except in the face of the Court." The negroes were then ordered to be discharged. Upon the announcement of the above decision the owners of the slaves and their assistants proceeded to the jail, in order to seize their men as soon as the keeper of the prison would dis-charge them. A greaterowd, chiefly composed of colored persons, had by this time assembled in the prison were filled with men, women and front of the jail, and all the avenues leading to boys, of all colors, and as soon as the doors of the prison were opened, and while the slaves were still in the vestibule of the prison, Mr. Taylor seized hold of one of his men, when the slaves resisted, and a general melee commenced between master and slave, in which the slaves were finally overpowered and handcuffed, but not until after some severe, but not dangerous wounds were inflicted on both sides, in which the slaves fared decidedly the worst; but one ade his escape, and is, no doubt, safe enough

While this melee or scuffle was going on, the negroes outside encouraged and some assisted the slaves as much as possible, but were principally prevented from doing much harm to the men engaged in the recapture, by the large iron grated door in front of the vestibule, which was from their labors, and their works do follow the slaves as much as possible, but were princi-pally prevented from doing much harm to the osed. The Court was made acquainted with them.

the facts of a riot having actually commenced, or was about to commence. Upon this information, they ordered all the men engaged in the vestibule of the jail to be detained, on a charge of assault and battery, with intent to create a riot, and all parties, slaves and owners, were committed to prison.

Immediately after this affair was somewhat settled by the confinement of all parties, the court commenced issuing bench warrants for the arrest of the ringleaders, aiders, and abetters in the riot, and ten arrests were actually made in the course of an hour. These men were placed under heavy bail, and some of them committed.

On the assembling of the Court in the afternoon, application was made for a writ of habeas corpus, to bring these owners and assistants in the recapture before Court, and ask their dis-charge from confinement. This was granted, and the case was immediately brought up before the Court, who, after a lengthy examination on the part of the Commonwealth, only bound the parties over in the sum of $500 each, to appear and answer at the next Court of Quarter Ses-

In the evening, Mr. Taylor came before the Court, and made information against the slaves as participants and actuaters in the riot, on which the slaves were committed, and they are now in jail; but there will, no doubt, be a writ of habeas corpus issued on next Tuesday, (to which day the Court adjourned,) on which the slaves will be heard, and if liberated on bail, we may expect another tumult.

The uproar and excitement during this day was very great, and the judge of the Court thought it advisable to call on General Seiler for volunteers, who promptly obeyed the order, and had in a very short time a sufficient number of able bodied men under his command, armed with muskets, and bayonets fixed, to disperse the mob, principally composed of colored men and women, from the front of the jail.
