ALL persons having Deeds or other Instruments of Writing in the Register and Recorder's Office, as well as in Orphan's Court business, are requested to call and get them without delay, as my term of office expires on the first December. Many fees small in amount individually, are due in all these offices, and of course I cannot afford to spend much time in their collection, yet as they form, in the aggregate, a sum of considerable importance to me, I trust, further notice will not be necessary. Executors and administrators of estates, as well as some four or five hundred owners of Deeds, which have been recorded but not lifted, are particularly requested to give me a call.
—27—All Deeds and other Instruments of Writing that have been paid and are not lifted on or before the first December, will then be sent by mail to their owners.

IMPORTANT TO TAVERN KEEPERS.—An important notice from the District Attorney appears in to-day's paper, which if carried out, will effect an entire reform in tavern-keeping, so far as Sunday is concerned. It is not precisely stated that the Court adopted all the recommendations of the Grand Jury, yet, as notice is given by the District Attorney that the practices complained of will be punished under the laws recited, we infer that this is a preliminary step to closing the bars of taverns altogether on that day. There is certainly room for reform, not only on Sundays, but almost every day in the week, as entirely too many hats have of late had bricks in them which seriously incommoded the wearers. When a beginning is made, however, let it be at the top of the heap, and not, as is too frequently the case in such matters, at the bottom.

The Christiana Treason Trials.
The city papers have been filled for several days with long reports of this trial. Castner Hanaway, one of the white men implicated in the crime, was arraigned for trial on the second day. He put in a plea of "not guilty" and the Court proceeded to empanel a jury. This occupied considerable time, a large number of jurors being set aside by the U. S. Attorney, and challenged by the defendant. At the close of the third day's proceedings, the panel to try the case of Hanaway, was constituted as follows:

1. Robert Elliot, Perry county.
2. James Wilson, Adams county.
3. Thomas Connelly, Carbon county.
4. Peter Martin, Lancaster county.
5. Robert Smith, Adams county.
6. William R. Sadler, Adams county.
7. James M. Hopkins, Lancaster county.
8. John Jenkin, Perry county.
9. Solomon Newman, Pike county.
10. Jonathan Wainright, Philadelphia.
11. Ephraim Fenton, Montgomery county.
12. James Cowden, Lancaster county.

The Court then adjourned over until Friday morning, when the jurors were sworn, and the case was opened for the prosecution by the U. S. District Attorney. He said the outrages perpetrated at Christiana was treason against the United States, and all who participated in it were guilty of that offence. It was concerted and combined resistance against a statute of the United States, and as far as the defendant, (Hanaway) was concerned, was made with the intent to render that statute void and unoperative. The proof against the prisoner would be clear and convincing, and such as would satisfy every man of his guilt. The overt acts would be established by the testimony of more than two witnesses, and in so pointed and distinct a manner that no question of their truth could exist.

PARDONED.—Jesse D. E. Quantrell, who has been confined in the jail of Allegheny county, for the last two years and a half, for an assault and battery, has been pardoned by Gov. Lowe, on condition of his leaving the State. The pardon arrived on Thursday morning last, and on Sunday he took his departure for Philadelphia. A most happy riddance.—Cumberland, Md., Journal.

This may be a "happy riddance" for Cumberland, but if the man is a loose character, as we infer he is from this remark, such a pardon is an act of gross injustice to the States adjoining Maryland; and it would be no more than right that the next criminal in this State to whom a pardon may be granted, will be conditioned that he take up his residence in Cumberland.

The Rev. LUTHER ALBERT, late of Bellefonte, has been elected Pastor of the English Lutheran Church in Germantown, Pennsylvania.

Pork as Food.
The Boston Surgical and Medical Journal states that the New Hampshire Shakers have abandoned the use of pork as an article of food. It believes that the Shakers will be gainers in health by this resolution. It gives Moses the credit of being sagacious in introducing its use among the Jews, and believes he well understood its injurious effects upon Egyptians. "Scurfulous affections, if not generated," it says, "are thought to be aggravated by the use of pork, and measles have been charged to its use." It states that we suffer more from skin diseases than the people of those countries where pork is not used as food.

Kossuth is certainly most eloquent, and is astonishing his hearers in England, by the force of his oratory, and his command of the English language. The newspapers are filled with the speeches delivered by him at the public celebrations which have been given in honor of his arrival. The number of these speeches is surprising, and though the subject is the same, he, by the power of his eloquence, invests each speech with new interest, and gives to iteration the charm of novelty. At London, at Birmingham, at Manchester, he dwells with manly indignation upon the wrongs of his country, points out the strides which despotism is taking towards enslaving all Europe, identifies the cause of Hungary with that of freedom, and endeavors to rouse the lovers of liberty to resistance of absolutism. In speaking, it is said, he recurs to no notes, relies upon no promptings, resorts to no foreign phrases to elucidate his meaning, and makes no preparation beforehand, save a clear and digested understanding of the subject he intends to discuss. And yet he sways his audience like a first class speaker in his own vernacular. The following passage from his late speech at Manchester, is but one specimen out of many of his rare powers of oratory:—
How blind are those men who have the affectation to assert that it is only certain men who push to revolution the continent of Europe, which, but for their revolutionary acts, would be quiet and contented. [Laughter.] Contented? [Renewed loud shouts of laughter.] With oppression and servitude! France contented, with its Constitution subverted? Germany contented, with being but a fold of sheep, pent up to be shorn by some thirty petty tyrants? [Loud cheers and laughter.] Switzerland contented, with the threatening ambition of encroaching despots? Italy contented, with the King of Naples—or with the priestly government of Rome, the worst of human inventions? [Cheers.] Austria, Rome, Prussia, Russia, Dalmatia, contented with having been driven to butchery, and after having been deceived, plundered, oppressed and laughed at like fools? Poland contented with being murdered? Hungary, my poor Hungary, contented with being more than murdered—buried alive? [Loud cries for it is alive. [Energetic cheering.] What I feel is but a weak pulsation of that feeling which pervades the breasts of the people of my country? Russia contented with slavery? [Hear.] Vienna contented? Lomlardy, Pesth, Milan, Venice, Rome, Prague contented?—contented with having been ignominiously branded, burned, plundered, sacked, and its population butchered!—half of the European continent contented with the scaffold, with the hangman, with the prison, with having no political rights at all, but having to pay innumerable millions for the highly-beneficial purposes of being kept in a state of serfdom? [Cheers.] That is the condition of the continent of Europe—[Hear, hear.]—and is it not ridiculous and absurd in men to prate about individuals disturbing the peace and tranquility of Europe?

People of Manchester, let not the world, let not Europe say, that on the eve of the last struggle between despotism and liberty, you have nothing further to give to the principle of freedom than the compassion of tender hearts. People of Manchester—people of England, up, up with manly resolution, and to the Czar shout, 'Stop!' like the populace of old, and you have given the world freedom and liberty.—[Great cheering.]

Daniel Webster's Farm.
In the course of a Biography of Daniel Webster, published in the Boston Bee, the following anecdote occurs:—In the vacation, Mr. Webster took his family to visit a "nice little place," which had been assigned to him by a creditor, on the road from Meredith Bridge, to Meredith Village, containing five acres more or less. After riding over hill and dale, on a rough road, (so the story goes) he reached the locality, and found—a log hut, with about half an acre of the veriest trash in the shape of rocks and bushes to be seen any where in the Granite State! This was the extent of his "nice little place," very nice, undoubtedly, to hold the world together, but of no conceivable utility for any other purpose. Without alighting from his carriage, the "Lord of the Manor" called the old lady, whom he found in possession as tenant, to the door, and after sundry questions as to whether she paid her rent regularly, and if not, whether she should not be turned off the place, &c., and the old dame protesting that she was poor and unable to pay—that she had heard that the owner was a "very clever soul," and didn't think he would be so cruel as to turn her out of house and home, &c., &c., Daniel pulled a sum of money out of his pocket, and assuring his tenant that he knew the premises as long as she could afford for the money he gave her, and be sure to take good care of them! Whether Mr. Webster has visited his "nice little place" since, we know not, but it still remains in his possession, and is known in the region around about as "Daniel Webster's Farm."
