Poetry.

A Sister's Death.

She died upon a winter's night, As it shone on the breast of the frozen brook, And over the fields of snow.

As she lay that night in the pale moonlight, Which fell on her peaceful bed, She seemed like the form of a sculptured saint, Without sign of woe or of mortal taint, With a glory around her head.

With her eyelids closed, and her lips apart, And her arms like the marble fair, Crossed on her bosom, and gently pressed, She lay, as she sank to her peaceful rest, In the mute repose of prayer.

When the morning broke and we gazed again, A smile to her face seemed given; And though our spirits were crushed and sad, For we knew she woke in heaven.

Miscellaneous.

Old Mr. Theysay.

Who has not heard of the world-renowned Mr. Theysay? His fame is familiar with all men, everywhere. The hole, which the magpie was stoning for his amusement.—Buffon's Natural History of the season, and had well their places. high and low, rich and poor, bond and free, tory. honored and despised, civilized and barbarian, Catholic and Protestant, Musselmen and Christian, all nations, kindreds, tribes and tongues, have heard of Mr. Theysay. His name is almost a household word. But who has ever given the world a history of this eminent personage? Numerous as biographies are, no one has ever yet written and published the life of Mr. Theysay. Pardon me if I undertake the task of writing a brief history of him.

His Parentage.—His father's name Slander; his mother's, Tattle; of his genealogy, nothing more is known. He was born in the town of Evil Report, in the Kindom of Sin.

His Age .- It is not known in what precise age of the world Mr. Theysay was born. It is my opinion that he was born soon after Adam and Eve were expelled from the garden of Eden. If I am correct in this opinion, he must by this time be very far advanced in life, and we should naturally expect to witness in him all the evidences of feeble old age-gray hairs, sunken eyes and palsied limbs. But he is really as strong and active, as fresh and fair, as hale and hearty as he ever was. Remarkable old creature!

His Education .- Mr. Theysay's education is very limited. What knowledge he has obtained, is principally from hearsay; hence he does not have any correct knowledge of anything. His deficient education has ever been a serious embarrassment to him, for he never dares to make a positive assertion, but guesses it's so, and

His Personal Appearance .- I have spoken of him as being as strong, as active, etc., as he ever was. But who has ever seen Mr. Theysay? Have you? Has any one? If any one has, I know not the man. In my opinion he is as intangible as Prof. Bush's resurrection body, which we can neither see, handle, analyze, nor describe. 'But we know he exists, because everybody is talking about him.' And I have come to the paradoxical conclusion, that he exists, and does not exist; ble and irresponsible—a sort of 'will o' the wisp, jack with the lantern' kind of being, whose personal appearance can never be described.

Get married, girls! get married, girls! Oh, do not cruel be To boys who offer you their hearts. In truth and honesty! But while love's words are in your ears Oh, heed their wooing voice! And do not let one offer slip To make a better choice

Get married, girls! get married, girls! While you are young and While youth's bright tint is on your cheek, Your brow unmarked with care; While hope still buoys your spirits up, Ere you have learned to know, The disappointment all maids feel Whose locks are tinged with snow.

Get married, girls! get married, girls! For 'tis a happier state Than her's who lives a single life, The melancholy fate!

Whose only pleasure is to nurse A kitten, dog or cat; Who never knows what pleasure 'tis To nurse one's own sweet brat.

Get married, girls! get married, girls! For oh, time quickly flies! A few more years, and spectacles Will gleam before your eyes!

Those locks which new are glossy, Will yield to those of grey, And wrinkles too will mar that face, Those lovely teeth decay.

Get married, then! get married, then! For oh, the boys won't care, When time leaves wrinkles on your face, And silvers o'er your hair;

How bright the smile, how sweet the word, How kind the heart may be, For winning smiles and flattering words Then lose their witchery.

Get married, then! get married, then! For oh, 'twill grieve you sore, To think of boys you flirted once, But now can flirt no more;

To think that now your youth is spent, Your summer's almost past, The harvest's spent and garnered up, And you're an old maid at last!!!

DREADFUL LOSS OF LIFE.

One of the most thrilling calamities that ever occurred on sea or land, took place off the coast of England on the 4th of Small birds chase each other about in January, by the burning of the Steamer Amazon, on her outward voyage to the West Indies, when about sixty miles west of the island of Seilly. The paron one leg, hops about in the most eccenticulars of this sad casualty are briefly

The Amazon was a pioneer of a new line of steamers recently projected between Southampton and the Isthmus of Panama, intended to convey the English mails from port to port, and also to touch at the island of St. Thomas on the trip both ways. She was built in a most superb manner, with capacious accommodations, and machinery designed to enable her to make the voyage in eighteen days, instead of consuming twenty-five days, the ordinary trial of strength, by twisting their horns running time of the old English mail steamers now on that line. The Amazon was pronounced ready for sea during the last month, and on the 2d 50 passengers, £20,300 sterling in specie, £5,150. Besides other cargo she had in named, she started on her unhappy voyage, amid the cheers of assembled thousands, who had been attracted to the wharves to witness her departure.

The entire number of persons entered tle hillocks and eminences in their pas- on the vessel's book was 161. Everytures, racing and sporting with each other thing passed off pleasantly and without aecident, until about one o'clock the following Sunday, when to the horror of those on board, the steamer was found to be on fire. Scilly was within 60 miles to the west, but our accounts do not mention that

> The fury of the element devoured everything before it, and involved in the submit to such things without shedding a common ruin the lives of 115, out of the tear. aggregate of 161 who composed her crew and passenger list.—Those who escaped, nigh perished by a death hardly less horrible. Twenty-one were picked up by an English vessel, and twenty-five reached the coast of France.

HORRIBLE MURDER OF A YOUTH .- The body of Jacob Lehman, the lad who has been missed since the 8th of January, and for whose fate since that time the most intense anxiety has been experienced by his parents and the friends of the family, was found yesterday afternoon, horribly mutilated, and sewed up in parts in three sacks or bags, lying under the ice on the flats of the Delaware river at Richmond, below the Reading Railroad Company's wharves. The discovery was made by some schoolgirls who were sliding on the ice. They observed something sticking above the surface of the ice that appeared to them like the neck of a goose. The children called the attention of some boys to it, and finally one or two men had the curiosity to press the examination so far as to make the attempt to remove it from its position. The progress of the operations soon excited the suspicion that a human body was enclosed in a sack or bag, which was very soon afterwards developed as a horrible reality.

The head, and the legs from the knees down, were in one sack, the chest and arms, with the upper part of the abdomen, were in another, and the lower portions of the body in the third sack. Several gashes were found upon the breast, and also two deep cuts and fractures of the scull. just over and above the forehead. The several portions of the body were enclosed in parts of wearing apparel tied with cords.

Although the body was so horribly mutilated and mangled, yet it was identified by the father, by certain unmistakable marks, and parts of the clothing in which it was wrapped. The Coroner was summoned immediately and a jury of inquest raised, and an investigation of the tragical affair entered upon. It will be remembered that young Lehman was sent by his father, Aaron Lehman, who resides in Seventh street, below Girard Avenue, on Thursday, the 8th inst., to peddle a quantity of jewelry. It will also be recollected that on the 16th instant a bloody tragedy was enacted in the District of Richmond, in which Andrew McBride killed his brother Arthur and wounded Hugh Feel. Immediately after that affair, suspicions were excited against the McBrides that they had a guilty knowledge of the fate of the boy. This suspicion was grounded upon the statement of a journeyman tailor, living in the neighborhood of the McBrides, that on the afternoon of the 8th inst., he saw the McBrides and another man in an altercation with the boy in the street, and that one of buked them for their conduct, and that the parties then separated. The testimony of the witnesses before the Coroner was mainly in reference to the facts of the boy's disappearance, and his having been seen on the vicinity of their residence. The investigation was continued until after midnight, but nothing was elicited to fasten the bloody deed upon any one .- Public Ledger, January 31st.

DEATH OF TWO ROBBERS .- On the night of the 17th ult., three ruffians entered the house of Mr. Abner Davis, of Worthington township, Richland county, Ohio, and demanded his money; one of the men at the same time presenting a pistol at the head of Mr. Davis, and the others prepared with bludgeons and knives, in case of resistance. Mr. D. finding resistance useless, unlocked his chest, and gave them his money, ($930,) after which they left, and being followed by Mr. Davis and others, two of them were found frozen to death, about a mile from where they committed the robbery, and the other some distance beyond, apparently returning to his lifeless companions, almost insensible-the night being stormy and a good deal of snow having fallen. His name is William Messner. He was immediately arrested. The names of the others were Jones and Cooper, the former an old offender, from New York, with both ears cropped. All the money was found on the person of Jones. It appears they were intoxicated, and sat down on a log on the road, where they became insensible from cold, and finally froze

HAIR A LA NEGRESS .- This is the name for the new style of dressing the hair, now in vogue among the ladies of our fashionable circles. They have got tired of looking like white people, and are doing their best to imitate the mulatto and quadroon women that may be seen about the streets any day, selling fruit and flowers. So far the colored ladies are decidedly ahead of their pale-faced imitators .- N. O. Pic.
