to start some political hobby for the purpose of drawing public attention away from what might prove to be an unpleasant business, and by such means have thus far managed to escape or cover up the peccadilloes committed against the State. A few weeks ago Mr. Muhlenberg, a democratic Senator from Berks, spoke his mind pretty plainly respecting the canal board and their retainers, and subsequently Mr. Wise, a democratic member of the House, gave his decided opinion that the Portage Railroad was a complete " lazar house" of corruption, and called for an investigation. But an investigation was not wanted, and the cohesive power of public plunder will no doubt stifle it, or clog it in such a man-

Mr. Hart, (same,) a bill to establish a system of free banking, to be based upon State and United States stocks.

In the House, on the 5th, Mr. Ross introduced a bill for the relief of Bingham & Dock ; and a bill declaratory of the act relative to assignees and others.

The House, on the 6th, resolved itself into a committee of the whole, Mr. Schell in the chair, upon a series of "resolutions in relation to non-intervention of one nation in the affairs of another nation," and after some time they were reported withsilent contempt, but coming from their own out amendment, and the resolutions were postponed for the present.

On motion of Mr. O'Neill, the bill relative to entry to suspend the running of the statutes of limitation was taken up. [It to work to hunt something about which a provides that no entry shall be of force to great cry might be made, even if there suspend the running of any statute of limitation, unless an action be commenced within one year and prosecuted with effect.] The bill passed two readings and was postponed for the present.

On motion of Mr. Broomall, the bill authorising the courts of common pleas to change the names of persons, was taken [It provides that the court designated shall have power to change names upon the payment of $10, of which sum $2 shall go to the prothonotary and $8 to the State, and after the decree is made the court shall order its publication for four successive weeks, in two newspapers published in the county of the resident of the person having his name so changed.] It was read and passed second reading-76, nays, 6; and the bill passed finally, after being amended so as to allow courts to change or amend the charter of engine or hose companies or of literary or charitable associations.

In the House, on the 9th, Mr. Ross presented a petition, from citizens of Granville township, Mifflin county, for the repeal of a road law relating to said town-

In the Senate, on the 10th, Mr. Slifer presented two petitions, from counties bordering on the Juniata, for the remission of tax on the local business of the Pennsylvania railroad; and one for the immediate completion of the North Branch canal.

The Sunbury and Erie railroad bill came up in order, and on the question of its final passage, the yeas and nays were as follows :

YEAS-Messrs. Baily, Barns, Crabb, Darlington, Evans, Fernon, Frailey, Hamilton, Haslett, Hoge, Kinzer, Kunkel, M'-Castin, M'Murtrie, Malone, Matthias, Muhlenberg, Myers, Robertson, Shimer, Slifer, and Walker, Speaker-22.

NAVS-Messrs. Buckalew, Carothers, Carson, Forsyth, Fulton, Guernsey, Ham- as a test question, asked for the yeas and lin, M'Farlard, Packer, and Sanderson- nays, which were ordered. The motion was taken up and passed finally. In the House, on the 10th, a bill to most without exception, voting nay.

The following is Covernor Johnston's answer to a highly complimentary letter from the Whig members of the Legislature: PITTSBURGH, January 24, 1852.

To Messrs. Walker, Hart, and others. Senators and Representatives in the General Assembly. GENTLEMES: — A public servant retiring from the discharge of official duty, ought not to de-sire a higher recompense than that manifested in the expression of confidence and kindness from those with whom he has been associated. This rich reward is furnished by your kind let-ter of 16th inst. Your approbation of my public actions and social conduct in the warm terms used in your communication, has filled my heart with the deepest feelings of gratitude. With official life, I dissever connection without a re-gret, when thus honored with the friendship of those, whom long and intimate association, in council, have afforded me so many reasons to love and respect. In separating, however, from cherished personal friends, by whose agency I had been sus-tained, in the performance of arduous and responsible duties, I cannot repress, by any philos ophy I possess, a feeling of sorrow and regret. the constitution of our hearts there is something which binds us to those with whom we have passed many hours of our life, even if they were days of anxiety and toil. How much stronger the feeling of attachment when we reember many moments of happiness and mutual pleasure. To the Whig members of the Leature, and permit me to add, to the citizens of Harrisburg, I am indebted for many evidences of kindness, which I can never hope to repay, unless they will accept my fervent prayer and the single offerings of my heart for their welfare and prosperity.

Whatever the future may say of the late ad-ministration of our State's affairs, it will be hereafter a pleasant reminiscence that during my term in office I was sustained by the Repre sentatives in my party, with an unanimity which convinced my judgment that the motives influencing my actions, were appreciated and respected, even if a full concurrence of opinion did not always exist. It was to this steady sup-port of friends and their good councils and advices, that my anxious desire for the public good owed much of its success.

Conscious that the frailties of humanity, as fully centred in me, as in my neighbors, and frequently placed by the peculiar action of parties and their passions, in embarrassing posi-tions; I could not have expected exemption from censure or freedom from error. Still I am now, in recurring to the past, aware of no official action which I would desire to change or

In conclusion, permit me to declare that with the warmest feelings of an honest heart, I love my native Commonwealth, I adore her rugged mountains, her fruitful valleys, her glorious rivers. I love her honest people, than whom there is none on earth more willing to do justice o the public servant. mending each of you to the holy keeping of that Providence, without whose guiding influ-ence "our wisdom is folly and our works vani-ty," I beg to bid a farewell, with the request at I may retain your affectionate remembrance.

Ah ! how often will memory recal to mind some word or action, uttered or performed with the gleesome tone or lightheartedness of childhood, and the eye turn to the spots where she was wont to be, but is not! How often will some little article, a gift be-towed when health and bloom were on her cheek, bring back both form and feature, as though it were a living reality ! Yet such will not always be the feeling. As time moves on in its ceaseless course, He who tempers the wind to the shorn lamb, has so constituted the human heart that that which may now be a source of pain and wringing anguish, becomes a melan-choly pleasure; and much as grief may now pale the check or dim the eye, we may trust that ere the snows of another winter will man-tle the tops of yon steeps, fond memory will regard Lizzie as an angel rather than a child of earth. Here, had life been spared, there might have been trials, sufferings, and temptations; that far off home, where a High and Holy One has provided an eternal realm for such as her there are neither. Rest, then, thou little slum berer, beneath the evergreen bough where they moved a suspension of rules, and on this, during thy brief pilgrimage on earth, and gave promise of noble traits of character : but thy race made thy grave! Thou wast lovely and gentle s run; thy future is among those brilliant orbs where flowers neither fade nor perish, where the sweetest dreams of childhood's haleyon days are more than realized in a happy reality. Who of mortal kin, even had they the power, would call thee back ? т. Р.

In Corn Meal no transactions except a small lot at $3,121.

GRAIN-There is a fair demand for wheat at steady prices. Sale of 1200 bushels at 92 c. for good red, and \$1,02 per bush. for good white, the latter description for shipment. There is no Rye coming in. Corn is dull and has tur-ther declined; sales of yellow at $63 \text{ a } 62\frac{1}{2}c$. closing at the latter rate. In Oats no change.

BALTIMORE, February 10, P. M., 1852. There was a good inquiry for Flour, but holders were generally above the views of buyers. We have sales of about 1,000 bbls. Howard Street Flour at $4,25. Holders having had the Susquehanea, anticipating a breakup of the their stock pretty well reduced yesterday, were probably firmer in their views than they otherwise would have been, as they refused to sell towards the close of 'Change at $4,25. Sales of 400 bbls. City Mills Flour at $4,153, cash, and 1,000 bbls. at $4,25. It was held higher at the close of the market.

> The London Shipping Gazette, of 23d January, in its review of the grain trade for the week, says-

"From the continent of Europe no further supplies can, it seems, at present be calculated on, but it does not follow that importations will wholly cease; there is certainly no margin for profit at present, but this will not stop the supplies from the Black Sea and from America,
