Fruit Culture in the United States.

In regard to fruit culture, our advantages are still greater. An orchard of fruit trees in this country, even when well attended, does not require as much care and labor in five years as it does in one in the greater portion of Europe. A single peach tree in England or France receives more actual hard labor in one season, than an orchard of one hundred trees in Western New York; and the price of a single fruit, or at any rate half a dozen, in the markets of London or Paris, will buy a bushel in New York or Rochester. We complain of a curculio destroying our plums and apricots, and this is one of our greatest drawbacks here; but, notwithstanding, I have seen more plums or apricots on a single tree here, since I returned, than on any dozen I saw in England. We have the aphid on our cherry trees here, but they are easily destroyed. In both France and England I saw both orchards and nurseries of cherry trees almost ruined by them, and they were said to be unconquerable. We have fire blight and leaf blight here, and both are sad difficulties, but in France and England they are not without both of these maladies. I saw apple trees very seriously affected in England with what we designate fire blight—the ends of the branches black and dead, and there, as here, the real cause is quite unknown to the most skillful cultivators. In France, I saw as bad cases of our leaf blight in the pear as I have seen in America. The ravages of birds in Europe is tremendous. It is almost impossible to save a crop of cherries. Nets, scarecrows, and a thousand expensive and troublesome devices are practiced, that in this country, where labor is dear, would not be attempted, even though the culture should be abandoned.

Fruit stealing is supposed to be peculiarly an American vice, but it is not so by any means, though probably, quite as prevalent as elsewhere. In other countries, fruit gardens are better protected than in ours, and this gives them a greater degree of safety; but in France I saw several nurseries at some distance from houses, where the fruits were removed as soon as they appeared, to save the fruit trees from being broken by the fruit stealers. If in America we were to apply ourselves to culture with the same regardlessness of labor that I have seen in Europe, we could produce results that we do not now dream of, and we will come to this by and by—we are every year approaching it nearer and nearer—our culture is becoming more skillful, more thorough, and more successful; but we have only made a beginning.

In horticulture as in agriculture, the United States of America is a great destiny to fulfill. Our territory is not only immense, but so diversified in soil and climate, that all the most valuable grains and fruits can be produced in such abundance as will enable us to supply other countries less favored in these respects. The intimate connection now established between all parts of the world has removed the barriers which distance heretofore created, and we have now a clear course. Cultivators may redouble their energies with a sure prospect of reward, and if our Government, in its wisdom, should see fit to lend a helping hand, all the better.—Letters of P. Barry, (of Rochester, N. Y.)

To Compute the Weight of Cattle. Ascertain the girth back of the shoulders, and the length along the back from the square of the buttock to a point even with the point of the shoulder blade; say the girth is 6 feet 4 inches, and the length 5 feet 3 inches, which, multiplied together, gives 31 feet. Multiply this by 23, the number of pounds allowed to the foot, between 5 and 7 feet girth, and the result is 713 pounds, for the number of pounds of beef in the four quarters. Girths from 7 to 9 feet, allow 31 pounds to the foot. Cattle must be fat and square built to hold out weight.

Growing Flax with Barley. I will inform you of a practice which prevails here, of sowing flax with barley; it may be new to some of your readers. After the ground is plowed, two bushels of barley are sown to the acre, and harrowed in; one peck of flax seed is then sown to the acre and cross harrowed. It is then harvested and thrashed together, and is very easily separated when cleaning, by the flax seed passing into the screen box. The barley seems to do quite as well as if no flax were sown. The past season, I had thirty bushels of clean barley and three bushels of flax seed to the acre. The land had been in corn the previous season, and was manured with stable dung and leached ashes.—Genese Farmer, H. M.
