Don't Run in Debt. Don't run in debt—never mind, never mind.

There's no comfort, I tell you, in walking the street. In fine clothes, if you know you're in debt.

Good friends, let me beg of you don't run in debt. If the chairs and the sofas are old,—They will fit your back better than any new set.

Don't run in debt—now, dear girls, take a hint. (If the fashions have changed since last season.)

Old Nature is out in the very same tint. And old nature we think has some reason.

Gents, don't run in debt—let your friends, if they can. Have fine houses, feathers and flowers.

Kind husbands, don't run in debt any more; 'Twill fill your wife's cup full of sorrow.

The chain of a debtor is heavy and cold. Its links all corrosion and rust; Gild it o'er as you will—it is never of gold.

When a note he can't pay becomes due?

Miscellaneous.

What a Rich Man Owes. 'I can pay my way, and am obliged to nobody.'

'I can pay my way, and am obliged to nobody.' Perhaps, as you utter these words, you look rebukingly at some poor debtor.

'I can pay my way, and am obliged to nobody.' You are obliged, to every fellow-creature with whom you are thrown into contact.

most miserable creature alive. Every hour you live you are indebted to some fellow being for some attention or other.

Thank heaven! all rich men are not like you. There have been many, in every generation, who acknowledge that they owe other debts than pecuniary ones.

Kindness of Heart. Goodness, or in other words, kindness of heart is the result of early training.

Mark, Ye Girls. It is high time somebody told you a little plain truth. You have been watched for a long time, a certain class of you, and it is plain enough you are trying plans to cheat somebody.

Extraordinary Trick of a Ventriloquist. From Broceau, a learned critic of the sixteenth century, we have the following accounts of the feats of a capital ventriloquist and cheat.

Give my daughter in marriage to Louis Brabant; he is a man of great fortune, and of excellent character.

The woman could not for a moment resist this dread summons, which had not the most distant appearance of proceeding from Louis Brabant.

Having contracted an intimate acquaintance with this man, he one day while they were sitting together in the usurer's little back parlor.

Kendall, in one of his letters from Paris, relates the following amusing occurrence: A regular "Comedy of Errors" was performed a few days since before the Tribunal of Correctional Police here in Paris.
