Poetry.

An Irish Love Song. Come to me dearest—I'm lonely without thee— Day-time and night-time I'm thinking about thee.

Miscellaneous.

Life and Services of Gen. Scott. Winfield Scott was born near Petersburg, in Virginia, on the 13th of June, in the year 1756. He finished his studies at the College of William and Mary, and was admitted to the bar in 1806.

found in arms against her. The United States denied this doctrine—her naturalization laws being founded on the opposite theory. While Scott was a prisoner at Quebec, the British attempted to enforce their doctrine of perpetual allegiance in regard to certain Irish prisoners found in the ranks of the American army at Queenstown.

eral. On November 3d, 1814, Congress passed a resolution awarding a gold medal to Major General Scott "in testimony of the high sense entertained by Congress of his distinguished services in the successive conflicts of Chippewa and Niagara, and of his uniform gallantry and good conduct in sustaining the reputation of the arms of the United States."

A war considered inevitable was prevented—the honor of the country preserved—and Scott returned with fresh laurels upon his brow, and "the hero of Lundy's Lane" was hailed on all sides as the "Great Pacificator."

be useless. You know your duty, M. le Cure; I leave you to fulfil it, and will return to seek you in half an hour. So saying he departed, and the agitated priest saw lying on the bed a young and beautiful girl, bathed in tears, battling with despair, and calling in her bitter agony for the comforts of religion.

The Pocket Book. SCENE FIRST.—A young gent discovered surrounded by his friends, who are jesting with him regarding his attentions to a young lady. YOUNG GENT.—Boys I'll just tell you how it is. You see, I care nothing for the girl—it's the old man's pocket book that I am after!
