Fire and Loss of Life.

We have never been called on to record an occurrence in our neighborhood, more truly heart-rending, than the destruction by fire on last Friday night, of the house of Mr. David Hoke, situated about two miles from the town on the Carlise road-with the loss of two of his children, who perished in the flames.

It seems that about 11 o'clock one of Mr.

Hoke's sons, a youth of about 17, who slept up stairs with four other children, was awakened by a sense of heat and suffocation, and on looking around and observing an unusual light, ran to a door communicating with the head of the stairs to ascertain the cause, when, to his horror, he discovered the house on fire. The fire had progressed so far, and the whole of the stairway was so completely enveloped in flames, that it was impossible for the children to escape in any other manner than by jumping out of the windows. Those who were asleep were immediately aroused and the situation of things explained. The eldest boy then jumped out, and was followed by the two next in size, who were caught by him, as they fell to the ground, but, unfortunately, in the hurry and excitement of the moment, the precaution of placing a support under the window was not thought of, so that when the youngest children (a little girl of about seven and a boy of four years of age) attempted to escape, they were unable to get the window up. It had fallen as the third child leaped from the room. In the meantime Mr. and Mrs. Hoke and others who slept below, were aroused to witness a scene the most agonizing of which the mind can conceive. A ladder was immediately procured and placed against the wall to assist the children in their frantic efforts to escape, but it broke to pieces Mr. Hoke attempted to mount it, and before another could be found, the whole room the little sufferers had already perished. The little girl was the last seen at the window, imploring assistance while her hair and clothes were actually on fire. Truly this was a sight of horror never to be forgotten by those who witnessed it. The remains of the children were

Although the destruction of the building with the whole of its contents was complete, we un-derstand that the pecuniary loss of Mr. Hoke is not so great as was at first supposed. It is not correct that a large amount of money was destroyed in the house. Mr. Hoke happened to have but little about him at the time of the fire. Hanover Spectator, May 14.

TERRIBLE RAILROAD ACCIDENT NEAR WATER-Town, New York.—The following particulars of a terrible tragedy on the Railroad are copied from the Watertown Journal:

It appears that a company of nine persons— two married men with their wives, and five young ladies-thought to amuse themselves by an evening's ride from the manor to Sandy Creek, on a hand-car, after, as they supposed, the last regular train for the day had passed. After running about half a mile, and as they were turning a curve in the road, they were met by a locomotive and tender, which was backing up from the creek to the manor.

The unfortunate occupants of the hand-car had but a moment's warning, and that moment served only to paralize the ladies with fear. One of the men seized his wife and the other one his wife and one of the young ladies, and sprang from the car. The other four were on the car when the collision took place: three of them were thrown under the locomotive and crushed to death, and the other was found mortally wounded by a blow which she received in the forehead. The awfully mangled remains of the bodies were picked up and brought back to the menor, to those friends who had joyously parted with them but a few moments before of joy had been.

As near as we can ascertain them this morning, the names of the young ladies killed, were: Miss Right, of Oswego, and Miss Williamson, Miss Allen, and Miss Andrus, of Pierrepont manor. We cannot say that any particular blame can be attached to the engineer, Mr. D. Smith, although he regrets not having raised a light sooner, as he should have done; but as they were coming on to Watertown, he deferred atting up a light until they should reach the manor. The party were warned against going on the track, by the station master, as some special train or locomotive might be upon the road-which, most unfortunately and unexpect-

Address of the Whig State Committee. The Whigs of Pennsylvania, profoundly sensible of the importance of the great political struggle they are about to enter, beg leave respectfully to submit, through their State Central Committee, to their fellow Whigs of the Union, a statement of their position, and their reasons for maintaining it : As Pennsylvania has never yet cast her electoral vote in vain, and as she is likely to become as heretofore, the arbiter of the contest, and, of consequence, the battle ground, it is proper for those who have the best means to know the ground and its circumstances, to impart their knowledge candidly and honestly to their brethren of the same faith and party.

The history of the past fully establishes the falsity of the proposition that republies are ungrateful. The memories of Washington, Jackson, Harrison and Taylor, teach us that the American Republic has never yet been ungrateful to those who have led her armies, defended her rights, and adorned her name with an imperishable renown. This is in accordance with the nature of man-in accordance with a noble and generous impulse. And as long as human hearts are constituted as now, the man who has denied himself the comforts of home-foregone the pleasures of wealth-invested the strength his body and the powers of his mind-risked health and life in the defence of his country-will always receive at the hands of his fellow citizens the highest earthly honors and rewards when the opportunity offers to confer them.

In fidelity to the Constitution, and in gratitude to its defenders, Pennsylvania acknowledges no superior. Within the broad limits of this great Democratic Empire there is to be found no Commonwealth more loyal and patriotic. And while it is very certain that no man who is not true to the Constitution in all its parts and the Union in its integrity, can stand even the shadow of a chance to obtain her electoral vote-it is equally certain that no man, whig or democrat, has so much the confidence and affection of her people as Winfield Scott. Our adversaries know this, and most earnestly and bitterly deprecate his nomination. But we are aware that if they had the good fortune to possess such a candidate, there would be no divided counsels among them in regard to his nomination. If Gen. Scott belonged to the ranks of the enemy, instead of being an honest, brave, and reliable whig, the first Baltimore Convention would nominate him by acclamation.

Shall we he less wise than our adversaries?

Shall we he less wise than our adversaries before us? Shall we suffer the whig banner to trail again in defeat, and the Capitol of the Nation to be once more entirely given up to those whose principles are, in our opinion, opposed to its prosperity and its greatness? The decision rests with the Whig National Convention.

And while we pledge ourselves to an honest, zealous, and enthusiastic support of the nominee of that convention, whoever he may be; for we are accustomed to look above the standard bearer to the standard; we most kindly and earnestly entreat our fellow whigs to remember that in Pennsylvania, the battle ground, the name of Scott is as invulnerable as on the battle fields of Mexico. But though he is the choice of her 200,000 whigs and of thousands of her demo-crats, we will leave unmade no effort, however fruitless, and unexerted no influence, however barren of victory, in behalf of either of his great competitors. Our only inquiry shall be, great competitors. Our only inquiry shall be, is he a whig? Is he true to the Constitution? Of Millard Fillmore, the patriotic and distinguished gentleman who now so creditably occupies the loftiest official position on the earth, as whigs we are proud.

Of Daniel Webster, whose fame is not even limited by the bounds of civilization-who, as orator and statesman, stands almost without a rival in the world—peerless and unapproachable in the might and splendor of his genius—as .lmericans we are proud. His name shall be handed down as a boast and heritage to our

But even for these great and glorious Whigs we are unwilling to hazard the triumph of our greater and more glorious principles; for that we conceive to be of infinitely more consequence than the political fortunes of any man, however good, able, or distinguished he may be. Small, indeed, becomes the destiny of the individual in comparison with the welfare of the Republic.

With Winfield Scott, the Whigs of the United States can achieve a certain and easy victory. With any other candidate it might be considered doubtful, if not desperate. Not because the Whig party as a National party, is the weaker, but because, in the present nicely HORRIBLE DEATH. - Between 7 and 8 o'clock, balanced condition of the parties, it is difficult afflicted with glanders, and during an adminis- any one knows who is at all skilled in political

And who shall say that Winfield Scott is not tal names of earth, will not prove equal to any position or any crisis that may arise in the civil affairs of men? Do the humbled battlements of Vera Cruz-the stormed heights of the Mexican mountains-or the American flag waving in triumph over a conquered empire, attest this want of ability? We have history and fame to

In view of the important contest we are about to enter, and for the sake of cherished princi-ples for which we have so long contended, side by side, under one banner, and with one battle cry, the Whigs of Pennsylvania call upon the Whigs of the United States, (for they know neither North nor South) to unite with them in another with the single states. another mighty and successful effort to over throw again and forever the pernicious principles of their common adversary.
