Poetry.

The Old Kirkyard. O come with me to the old Kirkyard, I will know the path thro' the soft greenward;

I know it is vain, when friends depart, To breathe kind words to a broken heart;

Evening Parting Hymn. Bright be our parting, where brightly we meet; Voices of music are echoing yet;

Swift speed the moments of meeting with you, Hours of enjoyment has tinged as they flew;

Miscellaneous. The Soul Weighed against a Feather. During a feeling of religious interest, in one of our large cities, a few years ago, enemy of her soul; 'the season is nearly past; then you must if necessary lay it aside.'

'That is a good suggestion,' she said, not recognising the malicious instigation; 'I will wear it as long as I can, and then attend to my salvation. In this way I can save both my feather and my soul.'

'It shall never be said that I gave my soul in exchange for a feather,' she responded; and rising from her bed, she re-lighted her candle.

Probably the cases are rare, in which the struggle of the soul between the claims of God and the objects of his idolatry, is so strongly marked as in this instance;

VERY TRUE.—The taxes are indeed heavy—said Dr. Franklin on one occasion—and if those laid on by the government were the only ones we had to pay, we might more easily discharge them;—but we have many others.

SCOTT AT VERA CRUZ.—During the bombardment of Vera Cruz, Scott, while walking along the trenches one day, observed several of our troops rising up and looking over the parapet to watch the effect of our shot and shells.

"BUT YE CAN'T VOTE."—Great was the amazement and dismay among the Irish laborers when the steam-shovels were first put in operation on a certain section of the Vermont Central Railroad, and one of the sturdiest Irishmen, after gazing at his huge rival for a few moments, thus apostrophised the enemy: 'Well, faith, ye are a big devil of a baste, and mighty strong in the arms; may be, now, ye think yerself as good as an Irishman, but (with a look of ineffable contempt) d—my yer sowl, ye can't vote!'

ALARMING.—Hairdresser.—They say, sir, the cholera's in the hair, sir! 'Gentleman.—[Very uneasy]—Indeed! ahem! Then I hope you are very particular about the brushes you use.'

A minister at a camp-meeting said, 'if the lady with the blue hat, red hair, and cross-eyes, don't stop talking, she will be pointed out to the congregation.'

The other day one of widow B's admirers was complaining of the tooth-ache. Mrs. B's smart boy immediately spoke up, 'Well, sir, why don't you do as ma does? She takes her teeth out and puts 'em back whenever she wants to.'

A poet out West, in speaking of a late tornado, says, 'the frightened weather cocks alarmed the spires.' This is almost equal to Nat Lee's celebrated line, 'A mad potato went howling down the gale.'

If anything will make a man feel 'juicy about the heart,' it is to talk velvet to a pair of sky colored eyes in a clover-field. Time, a moonshiny evening in summer. Try it.

Eating a Live Dutchman.

A Yankee pedlar traveling through York State, some twenty years since, 'put up' at the house of a Dutch tavern keeper, for the night, at the close of one fine summer day.

Our Yankee friend was not exactly green, though he kept a very quiet demeanor until the morning, by which time he had matured a plan for giving the Dutchman an explanation of the old adage, 'What is sauce for the goose is sauce for the gander.'

The morning sun had dispelled the mist of the night. Jonathan had hitched his horse to his cart, and brought him up before the door ready for a start, after he should have finished his breakfast.

'Now, old Sourkrout, before I go, I have one thing, the last of a large assortment, that I want to sell you. You know you are a very prudent, economical sort of a man, and one would answer for your whole family, and you could let your neighbors use it after you had got done with it.'

'What in dunder is it?' asks Sourkrout. 'Wall, you see now,' says Jonathan, 'when I laid in my stock, I bought a prime lot o' measles, and I've sold em, all out, except one, and I kinder thought, see in 'how you were a very savin' sort of a man, I could let you have that one measles; of course you could make it good all around!' and Jonathan had all the laugh to himself.

The Dutchman began to bluster as soon as he got the idea 'through his wool,' and thinking he could do as he chose with the apparently green Yankee, he commenced bullying.

'Look-a-here, mister, none of your tricks upon travelers,' says Jonathan; 'need't think you can scare a Yankee, no how. Why rot your old cabbage garden, I've known a Yankee to eat such a Dutchman as you are before breakfast!'

'A Yankee eat a Dutchman! Dat's a tant likely story. I'll bet you five tollar you can't eat me!'

'I'll take that bet,' says the Yankee; call in your neighbors to see fair play.'

The neighbors were called in, and the preliminaries arranged, in which it was agreed that the Dutchman should take off his boots, wash his feet, and lay down on the table, whereupon the stakes were put up.

The Dutchman was 'laid out,' and Jonathan proceeded very deliberately to untie his neck ribbon, and unbutton his shirt collar preparatory to his cannibal feast.

Approaching the table where lay the wondering Dutchman, Jonathan took up one of his feet, and brought it to his mouth, and made a very significant impression with his teeth on the Dutchman's big toe, which elicited a kick and a roar.

'Oh! mine God! Stop piting; dat hurts!'

'Never mind; you don't expect I am going to swallow you. That wasn't the bet; I bet I could eat you!' and he made another bite.

Old Sourkrout soon perceived that the Yankee had tricked him, and that he must either be eaten or lose his five dollars.—He chose the latter alternative; the money was paid to the Yankee, who left with high honors, having vindicated the fame of Yankeeedom and sustained its high reputation for the production of wooden nutmegs and Yankee Tricks. The old Dutchman has learned to respect the superior sagacity of Yankee pedlars, and from that day, since, he has treated them with due deference, and never fails to look remarkably silly, if any body says anything about 'eating raw Dutchmen' in his presence.—Yankee Blade.

CAUTION! CAUTION!—All persons are hereby cautioned against a swindler, who represents himself as my agent; he is going about soliciting persons to buy Lightning Rods, which he represents as my Electric Point Rods. In some instances he has produced a certificate, purporting to be from me, authorizing him to act as my agent. He has not confined himself to this city, but has been operating on the unsuspecting farmers in the adjacent country. In one instance, a building (on which one of these rods had been placed, with assurance that it was one of my make) was struck by lightning, and burnt to the ground. The point was brought to my factory, and on examination proved to be a piece of cast iron, polished. Complaints of this kind are coming in daily.

This is the only place where the genuine Electric Magnet Lightning Rod can be procured, in this city, wholesale or retail, and the electric influence wholly belongs to myself. Beware of impostors and peddlers. July 2-1m. THOMAS ARMITAGE.

The advantages this stand has in location, the facilities it affords for a convenient and ready market for its wares, together with its very extensive patronage, renders it one of the most desirable in the country. The WAREs manufactured at this establishment are far superior to any other in the six counties, and have a reputation that will ever secure the patronage of the public, from the fact of the material being inexhaustible, and connected with the concern by a lease of a number of years. The business of Potting has been carried on successfully at this stand by myself and father for over 30 years, which is of itself sufficient advertisement to prove its advantages as a business stand. THE PERSONAL PROPERTY in connection with the concern, will also be sold, if purchasers desire it. For further information, apply to the undersigned on the premises, or by mail to Lewistown P. O.

The business will be conducted as heretofore until further notice. All orders promptly attended to, and wholesale merchants allowed the usual discount upon the delivery of their orders. Possession given on or after 1st January next, to suit purchasers. J. A. MATHEWS. Lewistown, May 25, 1852-4f.

There is also a well of water on the premises. Apple, Peach and Plum Trees in full bearing—in fact everything calculated to render it a pleasant home. The store stand is undoubtedly one of the best in the country, being situate on the great avenue (the Centre and Kishacoquillas Turnpike,) on which hundreds of thousands of bushels of grain are annually taken to market; the new turnpike from Mifflin, in Centre county, intersects the Centre and Kishacoquillas road between the store and tavern, and this, now nearly finished, will largely increase the business—so that few places offer more inducements to an enterprising business man than this. The location in other respects is highly favorable—being six miles from Lewistown, but a short distance from Brown's well known Mills, convenient to Schools and Churches, and an unsurpassed valley beyond, whose thrifty population daily pass the door. It was last occupied by Wm. J. Glass, deceased.

A further description is not deemed necessary, as persons desirous of purchasing will of course call and examine for themselves. For further information apply to Wm. Brothers, Esq., or Wm.
