LOCAL AFFAIRS. FREE LECTURE.

The absurdity of Universalism will be shown at the Town Hall, on Saturday afternoon, at three o'clock. The public are invited to attend.

The Spring Exhibition of Matthews School, under charge of that excellent teacher, A. P. Harris, will be held at McVeigh's on Wednesday evening next, 28th instant. The public are invited to attend.

The weather has been springlike during the past week, with occasional showers, and last night a heavy rain which carried off most of the snow in the mountains.

Lecture—Dr. J. Walter, Esq. of this town, delivered a learned and happily conceived lecture before the Matthews Literary Association of McVeigh, on Monday evening, on "The consideration due to the Mechanic Arts."

Next Bound—If the public will not be well supplied with books, it will hardly be the fault of those who have them for sale. Last week Messrs. Evans & Co. announced their intention of coming with their gift book sale, and since then H. W. Jenkins, who is always getting up something new, has put out bills for a Gift Book Sale on a liberal scale, by which a gift worth from 25 cents to $40 will be delivered with each book.

Millard's Evidence as Christendom.—This able work on the evidence of the Christian faith is one of unusual power, and deserves a place in every library and in every family. The train of reasoning pursued by the author is one calculated to make a deep and salutary impression on the mind of any candid investigator, being free from that unwise warmth which characterizes so many works of the kind. The work is highly commended by all the leading Protestant ministers of Philadelphia, Lancaster, and Harrisburg, and endorsed by Rev. Jas. H. Woods, D. D., Rev. Wm. T. Dowers, and Rev. C. K. Kline. A translation down to place the book in the hands of every reader, has induced the appointment of an agent, who will sell on our terms.

THE WOULD-BE "SHARPERS"

Mr. Editor—Some time since, the village of Milroy was made the scene of a sensational sheet called "The Milroy Sharpers," published by the would-be "Sharers," in which many of the most respectable citizens of the place were ridiculed and slandered, most of them, they well knew, would not deign to answer their slanders, and, after having fully slandered those who would not notice them, they, it is clear that they might be better guarded themselves from retaliation, stopped at work out their evil unrepentant children, and sent their depraved nature by attacking those who have no other means of defence except their tender age, which has always been deemed a sufficient protection by even the meanest wretch under human form.

Nov. 31, we have always claimed that it is a right due to all authors to copy the books mentioned by their productions however creditable, and this is one more which has indicated us to revive the abandoned sheet. Many might suppose we have taken this way to average ourselves of some small amount, as we through to fifty columns, but such is not the case, except that we may feel ourselves gratified as members of a community in which such moral malice are suffered to flourish in large, especially since our country has been at considerable expense to furnish such characters with a suitable home. But we are "determined to spare none but to do justice to all." And we are sorry indeed that our duty to others will not permit us to allow the would-be "sharpers" to enjoy the paltry income of their miserable and abortive attempt at publishing. But luckily happening to see the original, we are forced to tear from their hands the usurped income with which they have so gloriously bedecked themselves, and to assign them their merited place in the scale of literary and moral statements.

At a College now a thousand miles distant, there was printed not many years ago a little sheet called "The Grange Star," playing off some spiteful and dry jokes upon the students, but intended merely for a local circulation, where the jokes were understood and would apply, and where by general consent it was only considered a passing, as its editorial, which in part appears in "The Observer," plainly shows, saying that the foolish articles were merely intended for jokes. Now, in the circumstances under which the original appeared, this excuse might have been considered valid, but it cannot apply to the would-be "Sharers." And in their vile and spiteful attempt to appropriate the income of the Grange Star, which is a real and profitable paper, they have done a deed which is a disgrace to the village of Milroy.

THE ALLEGHENY TUNNEL

A collision occurred last week at the Allegheny tunnel on the Pennsylvania Railroad, between a freight and passenger train, by which two of these were killed and a number wounded. Among the killed was Louise Stauffer, a native of Germany, and Matthew Wilkins, one of the wounded, has since died.

Wholesale Frauds.—An extensive and most audacious scheme for counterfeiting two popular medicinal preparations has recently been brought to light in this city. A few of the leading firms have appeared in reports of the legal proceedings growing out of the affair, but its comprehensive character has been but imperfectly developed in these brief statements.

The purpose of establishing a factory for the purpose of counterfeiting, in a wholesale scale, the most popular and widely advertised medicines in the civilized world, viz: Hostetter's Pills and Sarsaparilla's Cure. The audacious project is intended to carry out in the city of New York, almost within reach, as it were, of the great central office for the sale of Hostetter's medicines in this country.

It is estimated that less than 500,000 copies of the pamphlet or book of directions, around each box, and the printer to whom the order was given, supposed to emanate from Professor Holloway, had no hesitation in executing the work. An accident led to the detection of the fraud. Leitch failed to meet an obligation he had given for a portion of the job, and the printer went to Professor Holloway's establishment, 21 Mulber Lane, to acquire the same.

That, of course, the fraud was discovered, and a search was made for the counterfeiter. These pills are also a wonderful medicine for young females with obstructions in their bowels.

The detection of the fraud was a great relief to the public, and the counterfeiter has been arrested. The counterfeiter has been arrested and the fraud has been stopped.

THE PENNSYLVANIA RAILROAD

The Pennsylvania Railroad speaks highly of Judge Aldis as the Union candidate for Governor.

Mr. W. P. Miller, the Democratic nominee for Governor, is said to be a big farmer—a system to which the southern humbugs are decidedly hostile.

The owners of a large flouring mill at Pittsburgh who recently failed, attribute their misfortune to the Pennsylvania Railroad, which refused to carry flour for them at a load—would not a more reasonable excuse be the payment of so much for wheat and getting too little for flour?

A Dry Season.—Increasing intelligence has just been received from the State survey of the Shenandoah Swamps, which covers nearly a fourth of the map of Georgia. The great swamp does not appear to be a swamp after all. So far from being impeded by water, the expedition suffered severely from want of it, and were compelled to sink their wells for drinking and cooking purposes.

The underwood, also was found of almost fabulous thickness, through which they were compelled to cut their way with knives, whereby they were so much delayed as to be in danger of starvation, their supplies being exhausted. The most erroneous opinions have been entertained of the extent and nature of the whole region. No published map gives any idea of its geography. The survey will prove a fortunate venture. The submerged portion is found to be easily drained, whereby thousands of acres of the most valuable bottom lands in the South will be reclaimed.

Holloway's Pills.—A certain antidote for Dropsical Swellings—Mrs. Elizabeth Henderson, of Natchez, Mississippi, aged 45, suffered in 1851, and last fall from a general decline of health, her feet and legs began to swell, strength indicating drooping, and she became so much worse in the course of a few weeks, that she was totally confined to her bed, at last, her death was hourly looked forward to by her husband; he made up his mind, as everything else had failed, to try the effect of Holloway's Pills, which he purchased at the drug store of the city of New York.
