School Books .- Among the annoyances attendant on a system of public education, such as we have in this State, the frequent change made by Directors of class books is one that needs as much reformation as anything we can just now call to mind connected with that system. Our own opinion is that it would be much better to have even an inferior book in use for a term of three or five years, than to make two or four changes in these terms by introducing different works in some particulars only superior to those in use. Nothing is more difficult than to make the young comprehend some of these changes. especially when an innovation on a time-honored usage is attempted, as question upon question is put that, if right, why it was not made before? As an instance of this, we may adduce the fact that the world has been taught for years that a, an, and the are articles; that there are TEN parts of speech, &c.; but now-it is true with the sanction of Webto adopt such measures as may be deemed ster-by a masterly stroke of the pen by one who has some ambition perhaps to eclipse Lindley Murray, there is danger that every other district in the State will teach its children a different grammar. Trifles like this years ago produced feuds, that led to wars and bloodshed, and judging from specimens "Young America" occasionally gives, there is no telling what result might follow should will commend itself to farmers as a cheap two rival schools-one taught nine and the other ten parts of speech-come into collision. In such case, bloody noses would certainly be under charge of Geo. F. McFarland, Esq., found on both sides, if nothing worse. But leaving these speculations for time to develop, 21st inst. This institution is in a flourishing we intended to suggest the possibility of introducing a uniform series of school books throughout the county, or if that cannot well be done, into a few adjoining districts. For instance, the directors of Lewistown, Granville, Decatur and Derry might meet in convention with the County Superintendent, and agree upon a series of class books to be kept will sell their stock at reduced rates for cash in use for a period of three years, retaining relative to a nuisance too often met with on made to answer, with the understanding that tional Council has appointed the following no changes should be made during that time. The upper end of the county might hold a similar convention, and the valley another. Parents and booksellers would then know what they are about-children intended for dinance being in force to prevent the throwschool would know where to begin their "ed. ucation"—and directors would save themselves.

Be it enacted and ordained by the "Bury ucation"-and directors would save themselves considerable "boring" from publishers' agents, who are becoming as regular in their annual visits as grasshoppers to clover patches,-There is ample time for thinking over this matter before the schools open again, and we hope, if it meets the views of directors, they hereby prohibited.

REAPERS AND MOWERS .- There are no doubt and used, but public opinion seems to be settling down in favor of Manny's Mower and Reaper as the best and most desirable implement en a farm. In proof of this, we have now before us three papers giving the results petitor. The first is a trial before the Skaneoff on the 30th June. Six machines were entered, and the first premium awarded to the "Manny's machine, with Wood's Improvement, we regard as faultless, both in construction and execution. It seems to have been arranged, in all its parts, with the express design of giving the farmer an instrument that will do the work of a dozen men, either in reaping or mowing, and do it so well that can have no cause of complaint. There are several points about this machine that must make it valuable above all others to farmers whose fields are stony or rough and uneven. By very simple arrangements, it can be thrown out of gear, or the knives can be raised from the ground, while in full motion, the driver thus being able to protect them from injury by contact with stones .-The draught, as tested by a dynamometer, is 225 pounds, which is considered light any improvements can be made in this ma chine, we should like to see them. We think

The second is a report of a trial before the Monroe county (New York) Agricultural Society, on the 1st July. Eleven machines were entered and the first premium again awarded to Manny's. The Rochester Daily American, after noticing its principal features, speaks of it as follows:

This machine seemed to be a decided favorite with the majority of the farmers, and we are informed that Mr. Wood sold the trial machine, and received orders for 72 others upon the grounds.

The third is a great trial of Mowers and Reapers which took place at Chestertown, Md., on the 8th inst., in the presence of the leading farmers of Maryland. The premiums awarded were as follows:

For the best reaper and mower combined, Manny's patent with Wood's improvement was awarded the premium of For the best reaper with self raker at-
