KEEP THE PREMISES CLEAN. Every cultivator should keep his premises as clean as possible, for the important purpose of saving manure and promoting health. Some discerning persons remark that in the hot summer, while vegetation is in a flourishing condition, it is more healthy y in the country than in the city, but the reverse is the case in September and October, as at this season many vegetable productions have come to maturity and are decaying, filling the air with noxious gases and odors; hence arise fevers, dysentery, and other complaints, which are more common in the country early in the fall. We give this view of the subject, which some have presented, and we will make a few remarks on subjects that claim the Gazette office. particular attention of every cultivator, as well as of every housekeeper, whether this view be correct or not.

Keep the premises, particularly around the dwelling, perfectly free from every substance that will taint the air. Every decaying vegetable or animal substance should be removed a good distance, and then covered in earth, for the purpose of

All manure in the barn yard should be covered with loam, sand or mud, to save it from waste, and to not a little more. keep the air pure, as, in the changes so common to the wind, the air is liable to be wasted from the barn to the house.

Cellars should be made as clean as possible, particularly as they communicate directly with the dwelling above, and any foul air produced in them is very liable to cellar that are tending to decay should be removed immediately. It is best to ventilate cellars thoroughly by opening doors and windows, and to keep the door open as little as possible that communicates with the rooms.

Ground plaster and freshly burnt charcoal, set in vessels or strewed around in cellars, or other places where foul air exists, or is liable to be produced, has a very healthful effect, by absorbing gases.

Necessaries often produce a foul atmosphere around them; and as the dwelling is near, the offensive air is often wafted to it, and even when not perceptible, it is often operating injuriously. Some prepare these conveniences and cover with loam or or other substance all night soil, so as to keep constantly on hand a large assortment of do away entirely with all unpleasant and unwholesome effects. When this is not the case, charcoal plaster, chloride of lime, or other disinfectants, should be thrown into the vault, to absorb all noxious odors. Water from the sink should be absorbed in loam, &c., for manure, instead of rising in foul gases, and being blown into the houses. There are some cases of malignant and festal disorders going through a family, while all the rest of the neighborhood are in good health. This is often OIL, LEAD, PUTTY, TAR, PITCH, OAKUM, owing to some local cause, some foul puddle, pool, or stagnant pond, near the dwelling, or a general negligence as to keeping the premises clean. Decaying weeds, grass, potatoes affected with the rot, potato tops, pumpkins and other vines, and various productions, are undergoing decomposition in the fall; and in the aggregate the amount is large, and filling the air with pestilential gases .-Farmers may do much good to themselves and the community by burying all such substances, and converting them into manure. Make them into compost heaps, well covered with loam, to absorb the gases.-N. E. Farmer.
