Our readers will remember that when Mott instituted suit against the railroad company for the purpose of defeating the wishes of the people as to a sale of the Main Line of Public Works, we said then that the accounting officers of the State ought to take care that Mott and his associates paid their own bills. It now appears charge of sinister and selfish motives, that $3000 have been paid out of the State Treasury to the counsel employed by Mott and others, as follows:

Wm. M. Meredith, $1000 750 750 Wm. L. Hirst, James H. Walton, 500

$3000

Not one cent of this money, says the Philadelphia Bulletin, should have been taken from the Treasury. It should have come from the persons who employed the lawyers and had their services. No officer or officers of the State had legal authority to pledge the State for the money, and no any amount for such a purpose.

It has been suggested that the Canal Commissioners, State officers, employed these gentlemen. To but one of these bills were the Canal Commissioners a party. These gentlemen served in all alike, and therefore could not have been retained fer right to make any contract of that characved in this mal-appropriation. We hope buttons, &c., &c. of Judge Willret, explaining his position on the Tariff question, we present it to our gation. readers to-day, with the letter addressed to him by B. Laporte, on the subject.

House of Representatives, ) Harrisburg, Jan. 18, 1855. Hon. David Wilmot, - Dear Sir :- Your friends here will bring your name before the Legislature in connection with the office of United States Senator. The main objection urged against you arises out of an impression entertained by many, that you

We should be glad to see you here, but if you cannot visit Harrisburg before the election, please give us in a letter the history of your course in . Congress, on the tariff question, as there seems to be a misapprehension abroad in regard to your views, if I have properly understood them.

B. LAPORTE.

MONTROSE, Jan. 25, 1855. My Dear Sir :- Your favor came to hand st evening. I do not think I shall be at Harrisburg. The week vacation between my Courts would be mostly occupied in the journey, leaving me but little acquaintance gentlemen now assembled at the Capitol. Again if there were no difficulties in the way, I would be reluctant to show myself at Harrisbug at this time. Not that I am indifferent to the issue of the Senatorial election; but I do not want to appear as a selfish and ambitious aspirant for the place. I have not, as you well know, been eager for Senatorial honors, nor have I, in any way whatever, been instrumental in making myself a candidate. The connection of name with the office of Senator is the sult of the late signal revolution in the politics of the State, and on my well known sition, on one at least, of the important sues upon which that revolution turned, and not through any vanity or scheming of my own. To visit Harrisburg at this time would subject me to suspicion, and to the which I wholly and emphatically disclaim.

I do not deny that I should feel a personal pride in an election to one of the highest and most honorable positions in the government; but I do deny that I desire the place for any selfish or personal ends. I should hope, if elected, to be of some service to the country, and to the cause of sound principles. While I claim no eminent qualifications for the office, I do, nevertheless, believe that my election would, in some respects, be fortunate, especially so in uniting and cementing for future ac tion the men who achieved the late signal victory in this State.

You say that the main objection urged against me arises out of an impression entertained by many that I am unfriendly to officer or officers had legal authority to pay the great interests of our State. This is a total misapprehension of my feelings and position, and springs doubtless from the fact that in 1846 I could not act with my colleagues in a profitless and obstinate support of the tariff of 1842. It was apparent, weeks before the late tariff bill pass that the act of '42 could not stand. in favor of its revision and modification. one only. But the Canal Board had no preserve for the great interests of our State permanent and able security; and to this ter. On the contrary, recent legislation end I labored industriously and persevetook that power directly from them .- ringly. On the floor of the House I urged Hence, if they did employ the counsel, the laying of specifid instead of ad valorem duties upon iron, and to an extent that they should have been compelled to suffer should give security to our interests against whatever consequences resulted from their ruinous foreign competition. I entered illegal action. The lawyers, could, doubt- into an argument to prove the propriety less, have made good their claim against and advantage of specific over ad valorem Mr. Mott and others, and to avoid this the duties, in respect to the various articles, latter induced the Auditor General and ing, to my satisfaction, that position, as well Treasurer to pay them. Think of the in- in respect to the interest of the revenue, expressible meanness and dishonesty of the as also to that of the consumer and manutransaction. How fortunate that such men facturer, that every interest would be prohave had their power for evil greatly di-minished by the sale of the Main Line, for they are the sale of the Main Line, for iron interests of our State, claiming for it they appear to have defiled all they have a national respect and consideration, insisttouched. In every point of view the ing that the iron interest was justly entitransaction just developed is of the most tied to stand upon higher ground than any disreputable character. There can be no foritis of a truly national character, as a nec other branch of manufacturing business, question of its utter illegality. There is essary element of national defence, and ennot a semblance of law to justify it, nor is titled therefore to the special and favorable there any established principle to give it regard of the nation. I insisted that the countenance. We have never known a same rule should not be applied to an interest of this magnitude, that was applied more reckless abuse of trust than is invol- to the manufacture of thread, tape, pins, never to see another. The most charitable trines put forth to meet the occasion, but explanation to make is, the ignorance of the doctrine placed on the records of Con-

I not only spoke in behalf of the interafter a most interesting debate. But such in the House, and out of it, to give to that ignorance, if it existed, is criminal, and is interest an adequate and permanent security. I believed then, and I believe now, if a part even of the Demogratic delegaif a part even of the Democratic delegation in Congress from this State would have agreed to a modification of the tariff of '42, that our great interest could have been under the charge of W. B. Foster, Jr., Democrats from this State would have agreed to support the bill, they could almost have made their own terms, so far as Pennsylvania interests were concerned.-We met once or twice in caucus, to see if part at least, could not agree upon the terms on which we should support the bill. venture to predict, if the company retains In these consultations I expressed an earnest desire so to shape my action as to protect the interests of our State. I pledged myself, in case the caucus would agree upon the rates of specific duties for iron, to oppose the bill unless they were adopted by the House. Some two or three of them I believe favored this plan; but a large mainst., and nominated the following ticket:
Senator, J. Sewell Stewart of Huntingdon; jority would agree to nothing. They would

I was pledged to a modification of the act of '42; yet was intensely anxious that our interests should not be put in jeopardy I said and did all in my power to protect those interests. I made no concealment or disguise whatever of my anxiety in this ker will take up his residence in the parrespect, and repeatedly declared to the friends of the bill, that if I held its fate in my hands, it should not pass, until a more just and liberal protection was afforded to the interests of our State. I went are unfriendly to the great interests of our so far as to see and talk with Mr. Dallas. while the measure was pending in the Senate, and urged him, in case he should hold the fate of the bill on his vote, to force its friends to a more liberal regard for our own interests. I did not wish the defeat of the bill-of this there was no danger-but to compel its friends so to change it, as to make the interests of our State secure. Indeed, so anxious was I to bring about this result that I voted against concurring in a Senate amendment of trifling importance. It is because of this vote, that the Washington Union and Pennsylvanian have charged me with a de sire to defeat the bill in the final and trying hour of its fate. The charge is untrue gave the vote in the hope of forcing the bill into a committee of conference where I understood it would be open to general amendment, and thus affording one more chance of so amending the bill as to secure the interests of our State.

> crats from Pennsylvania would have acted with me, instead of adhering immovably to the act of '42, that our State would have obtained all that reasonably could have been asked, and her great interests placed on a satisfactory and permanent basis. In the early stages of the bill, before its friends had counted and marshaled their forces, we could, in my judgment, have secured adequate specific duties. In this I may be mistaken, but think not. It is certain that we could have obtained fifty per cent. ad valorem. Even in the latter stages of the bill, and when its passage was certain without any of our votes, so anxious were its friends to secure Pennsylvania support (from party considerations) that M'Kay, ad charge of the bill as chairman the Committee on Ways and Means, offer ed to move forty per cent. on iron if half the Democrats from our State would then ly. Mr. Barnes, Secretary of the State vote for the bill. It always seemed to me strange, when the passage of the bill was certain, that our men would not make sure of all they could get. They, however, were pledged to the tariff of '42 and it was easier to stand by their pledges, than to explain to their constituents the reason for a departure from, however good their reasons might have been. I was pledged to a modification of the act of '42, and after exhausting every effort to secure the interests of our State, redeemed that pledge declaring at the time I did so, that if the bill depended on my vote, I would withhold it until a larger measure of justice was

I wish you would preserve this letter, or a copy of it, so that there cannot here after be any dispute as to its contents. The sum and substance of both was about the same as is daily to be met with in the editorial columns of the Philadelphia News, name ly, that the Republican party was the cause of a division among the opponents of the democrats-that Republicans and Demorats were both bowing the knee to foreignism-that the Republicans will not endorse or assist. Americans to maintain their principles-that Wilmot was the only man in Congress who opposed the interests of Pennsylvania (our readers are referred to Mr. Wilmot's letter in to-day's Gazette for a refutation of this) -and Mr. Barnes particularly charged that Mr. Wilmot's course had always been democratic, so much so that he has almost made us believe that our choice is a better democrat than Packer ever was. Mr. Hazlehurst's address was mild throughout, and we suspect did not altogether meet the expectations of those straight-outs and democrats who looked for a fire eater and a brimstone speech.
