"I have been here three months chained and a part of the time handcuffed. Don't blame anybody but myself, and you all know the reason why: for trying to cut ray hob-

Here he spoke of handcuffs on his hands being so tight as to make his arms bleed. He then spoke in kind terms of those who visited him in his cell and prayed for him. He spoke of Dr. Junkins and Rev. Mr. McClain discharging their duty, saying: "They came here and prayed for me like Christian men, and have been the mitigation of saving my soul from hell."

He next spoke of the Methodists, and the kindness shown him by the people of Hollidaysburg, and called upon God to bless them all.

"I want you to think I am pleading the truth. I am not like the witnesses; they had ne ropes around their necks, ready to be launched into heaven or hell, or they never would have sworn my life away.

"I have been charged with more crimes I have seen it in the papers. I am supposed to be the murderer of two more men. They never said anything about that until I was in chains, but God Almighty will have something to say about it. He knows that I never killed a man. I hope never to see the Kingdom of Heaven if ever I killed a man. I am also charged with stealing horses. Fellow-citi-zens, I never stole a horse, or any thing, except fruit, and there are few who have not done that. Never, as I am a dying man, di I steal an thing but fruit. Ain't it hard for a man to be accused when he is chained in prison and can't defend himself? Let me say God has something to say. I love my fellow-men, but I care not for what they say when false. I am not the man I am represented to be. I can die without a tear, for I have nothing to fear, bless God. I have made my election sure. In Christ I have placed my trust, and when I leave this scaffold I shall go home to Heaven, and hope to meet my God, my aged father, who has gone before me, my mother, wife, child, sisters and brothers. What care I for this death? My friends care, for they have not a stain upon their character. It is not my fault, God Almighty knows it."

He then made some allusion to his attempt to commit suicide, and said he was instigated to do it by the devil, but was glad he did not accomplish it, for then he should have been a murderer indeed and gone to hell.

He then concluded by singing-"McKim will soon be launched into eternity, and his soul will go to Heaven.' A portion of scriptures was then read by

Dr. Junkin, and the Hymn beginning with "Prepare me gracious God Who now stands before thy face," was sung, in which the prisoner joined. prayer was then made by Dr. Junkin, after which the clergy, his counsel, the officers and others took leave of him. The rope was re-adjusted by the Sheriff and the cap placed over his face.

In a few words he again reiterated his innocence of the crime for which he was to suffer, ending with "I iell you as a dying man I am innocent. Tell the Sheriff I am now ready."

At twenty minutes of one o'clock the Sheriff drew the rope attached to the prop of the trap, and the body fell. A few upheavings of the chest and all was over, After hanging twenty minutes the physicians pronounced him dead, and he was lowered into his coffin. His neck was not dislocated-he strangled to death. His neck was a little discolored, but his tongue did not protrude. His face was livid but looked natural.

There were some three thousand person in town, and there was some drunkenness and fighting, but not so much as one might have expected. A party has just passed my house, singing in chorus-

"To see McKim the crowd came in, Some drunk whiskey and some drunk gin. So that Captain Whiskey has evidently been about.

The Sheriff tells me that he had 2500 applications for admission to the jail yard by persons anxious to witness the execution, and it was with great difficulty the crowd could be kept from the jail door. It is due to the witnesses to state that no person present believed a single word of McKim's statement in regard to them.

QUEEEC, August 23 .- The Canadian serew steamship Angle-Saxon arrived at this port this (Sunday) morning. She left Liverpool at about two o'clock, P. M., on Wednesday, the 12th inst.

The reute of the Anglo Saxon was too far north of the line selected for the Atlantic cable to lead to any expectation of her falling in with the telegraph cable fleet. Her officers report much thick weather, and constant head-winds through the whole passage Owing to an accident on shore, connected with the landing of the cable, the Telegraph Expedition did not finally sail from Valentia Ireland, until the evening of Friday, the 7th inst. The latest report from Valentia is dated August 10th, 4 o'clock P. M., as follows:

The work of laying down the Atlantic ca-ble is going on as satisfactorily as the best friends of the enterprise could desire. Up to the present time about three hundred miles of the cable have been laid. The depth of the water into which it is now being submerged is nearly two miles. The laying of the cable from the shallow to the deep water, was effected without difficulty. The signals from on board the steamer Niagara are everything that an electrician could desire. The steamers are heading west, with a moderately fair breeze, and the cable is being run out frem on board the Niagara at the rate of about five miles per hour, and messages are being constantly received on shore. The following is the latest flash from on board the Niagara:

Execution of McKim .- We publish in our paper of to day an account of the exccution of McKim at Hollidaysburg, together with an extraordinary speech he delivered just before he was launched into eternity. Although asserting his innoce the last, he failed to say anything calculated to create credence in the public mind. Had he explained why he left the cars at Altoona-for that was not his journey's end; why Norcross, with whom he traveled in company, did the same thing, and why subsequently he fled like a fugitive, there might be those who would have believed that he may have been innocent; but as it is, the conviction is almost forced upon the mind that he died a hardened criminal and with a lie upon his lips.

Democratic Inconsistency.-Those who remember the presidential campaign of 1840, and several gubernatorial campaigns in this State since, will no doubt recollect with what pertinacity the democracy charged whig candidates with being in the hands of committees, who they alleged governed the candidates' movements and actions .-This, like many other things, has "come home to roost," and their candidate for Governor, Wm. F. Packer, now stands confessed in the hands of a State Committee who take it upon themselves to say what their candidate shall do, say, or perhaps think! If this "begining" be followed up, we shall have a new chain in patent demoeratic rule, should the people elect him Governor, as in all cases he may refer to his committee, and thus creep out from some unpleasant predicaments incident to that office. The apologies offered for this course by his supporters is both amusing and instructive, for while they pretend that Judge Wilmot would be nowhere in an argumentative contest with Mr. Packer, they consider it "something new," as establishing "a precedent" that might prevent some very good men from being nominated, &c. In all this they forget that Francis R. Shunk was the first candidate for Governor who traveled through the State making political addresses; and if it is all right for one candidate to do so, it cannot be wrong for two, as it would afford the people a much better opportunity of judging for themselves by hearing both

SELL ALL THE PUBLIC WORKS.

Now that the Main Line has been sold, general feeling finds expression in favor of the sale of those portions of the public idence of Hugh McKee. works still in the hands of the State. We find the following just sentiments on this subject in the Reading Gazette and Demoerat of a recent date, a paper standing next to the "Adler" in authority among the democracy of Berks:

"The proper objects of civil government are few and simple. The fewer and more simple we make them, the nearer we arrive at the perfection of republican institutions. The laying of railroads and digging of canals, the transportation of merchandise and conveyance of passengers-indispensable though they be to the wants of a trading people-are not the enterprizes for which a government such as ours was established. Our indulgent old Commonwealth has done what her children ought to have done for themselves, and paid dearly for it, as is generally the case with those who travel out of their sphere to assist others. She is more to be commiseratd than blamed for all this. But now that her children are able to get along without her, and only abuse her favors, she does wisely to sell out, and relinquish a business which was never congenial to her tastes or inclination. and consequently has never been profitable to her. Let her sell all her canals and rail roads to those who can and will make money out of them; and return to the simpler and more proper duty of protecting the people in their persons, property, and lawful pursuits.

The County Ticket .- We had intended to make some remarks on the ticket recently nominated by the Union Convention, in connection with the proceedings, but thus far the Secretary has neglected to hand them over for publication. Although there was some little dissatisfaction manifested at first at the action of the convention-perhaps justly so-we are pleased to learn that this feeling has already subsided, notwithstanding the efforts of a few interested individuals, and that the prospects for rowing up the patents are decidedly good.

The Democrat thinks it is "amusing" to be called Canal Democracy, State Robbers, &c., and then complains that the "plain real democratic party" is never heard of. It may be very amusing to tion? those who have had their fingers in the State treasury and grown rich thereby, but it has not been very amusing to the taxpayers. As to the real democratic party. there is no longer any such in existence. The old federalists who have taken hold of the bridle of patent democracy have made the word mean anything that will subserve the "cohesive power of public plunder," and though many may follow it as a phantom, yet the democracy of other days, either in principle or practice, is obsolete. By the by, while the Democrat is objecting to the use of what it calls slang epithets, feetly true. why are its columns so rife with "Black Republicans," "Dark Lanterns," and other choice terms? " Carrying Coals to Newcastle."-This old saying is likely to be strongly exemplified this year in the grain trade, so far as this section is concerned, the proprietor of Marks's steam mill having already purchased a boat load of new wheat in the Baltimore market and brought it here for the purpose of converting the grain into flour. From all that we can learn there is but little good wheat in this or the neighboring counties, and in quantity the crop is sadly deficient, so much so that there are farmers, occupying good land, who will have to buy
