For the Gazette. Mr. Editor-Desiring to contribute something to the columns of your valuable paper, which might be of service to your numerons readers, I have, knowing the people of our peaceful village to be remarkably fond of new things, brought together from a much neglected book, yet one that is in every house, a number of plain truths, which perhaps at this time will be carefully read, especially by that class who are fond of the truth. Many times church people err for lack of knowledge, not because they have not the knowledge, but because of an aversion to reading that which does not accord with their native propensity. It is too true that many in this day live on what they suppose to be the imaginary defects and foibles of their fellow men. The most endeared friendships are disregarded; the most pleasing associations forgotten; the most innocent actions misrepresented. All because men will not take time to examine carefully and with unprejudiced minds before they jump at hasty conclusions. The foul breath of slander so well expressed in these lines often does great injury:

"Yes, you pass it along, whether you be-lieve it or not. You don't believe the onesided whisper against the character of another, but you will use your influence to bear up the report and pass it on the current .-false Strange creatures are mankind. How many reputations have bled by whisper. How many nevolent deeds have been chilled by the that shrug of a shoulder. How many individuals have been shunned by a gentle, mysterious hint. How many chaste bosoms have been wrung with grief at a single nod. How many graves have been dug by false report. Yet you will keep it above the water by a wag of your tongue, when you might sink it for-ever. Destroy the passion for tale telling, we pray. Lisp not a word that may injure the character of another. Be determined to lis ten to no story that is repeated to the great injury of another, and, as far as you are con-cerned, the slander will die. But tell it once, and it may go as on the wing of the wind. increasing with each breath, till it has circulated through the State, and has brought to the grave one who might have been a blessing to the world." SCRIPTURE QUOTATIONS.

"They only consult to cast him down from his excellency; they delight in lies; they bless with their mouth, but they curse in-"-Psalm 62, 4. wardly

"He that hideth hatred with lying lips and he that attereth a slander is a fool." -Prov. 10, 18

"A hypocrite with his mouth destroyeth his neighbor; but through knowledge shall the just be delivered."-Prov. 11, 9. A wicked doer giveth heed to false lips and a liar giveth ear to a naughty tongue."-Prov. 17. 4. "Mine enemies speak evil of me, when shall he die and his name perish."-Psalm 41. 5.

Thou sittest and speakest against thy brother; thou slanderest thine own mother's son."-Psalm 50, 20. "For I heard the defauling of many, fear on every side. Reports say they and we will report it. All my familiars watched for my halting, saying peradventure he will be enti ed, and we shall prevail against him and we shall take our revenge on him."-Jer. 20, 10 "Thou shalt not go up and down as a tal.

bearer among thy people."-Lev. 19, 16. "The words of a tale bearer are as wounds and they go down into the innermost parts of the belly."-Prov. 18, 8 "Where no wood is there the fire goeth are not the most melancholy. Not only those who have fallen victims to intemperance made to directly feel its blighting power. Are there not those, whose hearts are not only stung by feelings of wounded pride at the fall of companions and friends, but those whose very lives are tales of sorrow, made wretched by those whose duty it was to care for them? Hunger and cold, and starving want are their portion ; and is not this made manifest among us every day? Alas too true! And lastly, but not less important for our consideration, are the fearful strides intemperance is making into the company of the young and thoughtless. Those who are without settled moral principles to guide their lives, and with but a languid expression of moral sentiment from the community to in-fluence, must be expected to yield in a greater or less extent to the ensnaring influences of intoxicating liquors, and help to swell the rising flood. Unawares and by insensible degrees their lives are supped away, who else might become worthy and honorable citizens. Even in the more diluted, but often drugged forms, in which alcohol finds its way to the appetites of the young, it makes fearful inroads upon the youthful constitutions. The nervous system becomes deranged, whereby morbid appetites and inflamed desires are excited. The mind no longer presents a healthy action ; the heart and conscience become polluted, while reason and the moral sentiments are brought down to mere animal sensations; virtue is no longer their aim, if even the rites of decency are respected. The world to them is only a charnel house for crime and revelry. It is thus by unseen steps that multitudes are borne along on the deadly tide, careless of the underflowing surges, and unconscious till they are stranded on the shores of wretch edness, where vice and crime take nameless shapes,-their lives hollowed down to miser able existences, reckless ruins athwart the track of society ! "Inflaming wine, perpicious to mankind, Unnerves the limbs and dulls the noble mind."

The immense interest, then, society must and ought to feel in behalf of the promotion of temperance, cannot be overrated. Intemperance itself stands londly appealing to all who leve good morals and desire the triumph of the nobler instincts of their race to act in the cause of truth and humanity.

Would that there might be an outspoken expression of the moral tone of every community on this subject, that should drive from the light of day and public view so monstrous an evil, and put to shame its supporters, abettors or defenders.

Holloway's Pills .- In cases where medical skill has exhausted all its expedients, and the practitioner sorrowfully admits that his re-pertory contains no drug that will help his patient, this all conquering antidote achieves its most signal triumphs. Where the frame is reduced almost to a skeleton, the apetite gone, and a general atrophy of the system prevails, a course of the pills will infuse en rgy into the whole vital organization, and spur into action every terpid and palsied function. Thus nature is enabled to combat the debilitating influence of disease, while tis, Asthma, and all diseases of the Threat by MEDICA-TED INHALATION. The great point in the treatment of all human maindies is to get at the disease in a direct manner. All medicines are estimated by their action upon the organ requiring relief. This is the important fact upon which Inhalation is based. If the stomach is diseased, we take medicine directly into the stomach. If the lungs are diseased, breathe or inhale medicated vapors directly fut them— The reason why Consumption and diseases of the Lungs have heretofore resisted all treatment, has been because they were not approached in a direct manner by medicine. have heretofore resisted all treatment, has been because they were not approached in a direct manner by medicine. They were intended to be local, and yet they were so ad ministered that they could only act constitutionally, ex-pending their immediate action upon the stomach, whilst the four dicers within the Lungs were unmolested. In-halation brings the medicine into direct contact with the disease, without the disadvantage of any violent action. Its application is so simple that it may be employed by the youngest infant or feeblest invalid. It does not de-range the stomach, or interfere in the least with the strength, comfort or business of the patient. strength, comfort or business of the patient.

Gas Bills .- The gas bills for Novemer have caused a considerable quantity of tin gas to be let off, some in sour faces, little in hard swearing, and a bit in other odes not compatible with church memeship. It is of course difficult to say hether the metres or the public are right, It we suspect in the main that most of e gas charged has been burnt. We arre at this conclusion from the fact that hee days in October are included in the ills for November, and the increase in me caused by the rapid shortening of the ays. This can be best illustrated by the arough bills, the lamplighter keeping a me book, which is monthly compared with he register made by the metre. Thus in eptember the street lamps were burnt 45 ours, and in November had nearly doubled hat time. The same rule will of course sid good in private dwellings and business laces. Gas is a tempting light, and to be conomized must be looked after. A six bot burner, such as is in general use, with full head, gives as much light as eight or a candles, and those therefore who on tivial occasions keep such a light are guilof the same folly as if they were to ght half a dozen candles and stick them in the stands, tables, mantles, and chairs a a room.

As it is not always necessary to look thro' icroscope to see strange figures or vile and hateful things in what commonly passes as comely, so it is not all important that every one be made acquainted with the properties and effects of alcoholie liquors, exactly as 06.6 they are chemically understood, to see and know the baneful consequences of their prev alent use. Nay, their destroying influence i rendered a hundred times more clearly visible by the deadly traces they leave on society, than science could pretend to demonstrate. To this fact as it exhibits itself, undisgnia ed in our community, should the attention of all who are desirous of the healthful condition and moral aspect of our town, be ear-nestly directed. There appears to be not so much a lack of knowledge in respect to the awful and degrading influence of inebri ating liquers, sold and drunk in our midst and of their almost absolute control over the vital, yea, moral forces of multitudes around us; as of an outspoken, manly rebuke against such ravages. The evil, we know, is old and long standing; but still it sweeps down in its poisonous flood, unawares, the guiltless with the guilty, to a common ruin. Lord Bacon, from wise reflection, says :-"All the crimes on the earth do not destroy so many of the human race, nor alienate so much property as drunkenness." Intemper ance is a vice to which commonly, but the few are grossly addicted, but it has always hung a weighty clog on the progressive ten-dencies of the world. It casts a darkening shadow over every generous and human movement of society. Religion is blighted by its breath, morality is driven out before it. Crime and wretchedness alone flourish where intemperance prevails. The world knows and laments the fact.

How it dampens educational movements, directly by protruding itself upon its track, by engendering poverty, and in a multitude of ways enforcing ignorance with its accom-panying evils on communities at large. But even such consequences, viewed often at a distance, and veiled in their operations, the antiseptic properties of the remedy areat work upon the animal fluids, purifying them from all matter antagonistic to health, and imbuing them with nutritious and life-sustaining elements.
