No manure is so well worth the saving in October and November as the falling leaves of the season.

According to Payen, they contain nearly three times as much nitrogen as ordinary barn yard manure, and every farmer who has strewn and covered them in his trenches late in the fall or in December, must have noticed the next season how black and moist the soil that adheres to the thrifty young roots. No vegetable substance yields its woody fibre and becomes soluble quicker than leaves, and from this very cause they are soon dried up, scattered to the winds and wasted if not gathered and trenched in or composted before the advent of severe winter.

All leaves are poor in carbon, and rich in alkaline salts, as nitrogen, they are especially valuable in compost with manure and dead animals, poor in potash, but abounding in carbon and lime phosphates. But the great value of leaves is in the extra nitrogen they contain. Prof. Jackson truly says that the compounds of nitrogen not only decompose readily themselves, but they also induce the elements of either organic matter with which they are in contact, to assume new forms, or to enter into new chemical combinations; and according to the long continued and varied Rothhamsted, experiments of the indefatigable Lawes and Dr. Gilbert, nitrogen, in its compound form (ammonia) also exerts the same potent influence on the inorganic or mineral elements of the soil, rendering even sand into the soluble food of plants. Yet every farmer or gardener ought also to know that his own mechanical aid in trenching or ploughing in order to keep his soil permeable and absorptive in indispensable to aid nature in developing her chemical process .- Rural New Yorker.

A FEW bottles of this Sarsaparilla, put up several years ago, rendering it the more valuable, (as all well-informed druggists know that age improves it.) have been deposited at the drug store of Charles Ritz, in Lewistown, where they are offered for sale at three-fourths the regular price, namely 75 cents per bottle.

It has been a well established fact for years past that Sarsaparilla, when pure and properly prepared, was the only true panacea for all diseases originating from an impure state of the d, the use of mercury, intoxicating drinks evil habits in youth, barrenness, &c. We bold ly assert that JOHN BULL'S FLUID EXTRACT OF SARSAPARILLA is the only preparation before the public that is prepared on strictly scientific principles and of uniform strength. The sarssparilla is purchased with-out regard to price, and every pound, before being used, is subject to the strictest chemical tests, and its genuineness ascertained before being used.
