SUGGESTIONS ABOUT STABLES.

In a previous article on the subject of the construction of stables we submitted a few suggestions, intended to aid those who feel desirous of doing everything possible for the comfort of their horses, in the work of planning good stables when about to build new ones, or to re-construct old ones.

As several other suggestions, which were presented to our mind while writing our former article, were omitted on account of our limited space, we return to the subject, and commence with remarking that provision should always be made, in some way or other, for a very free and sufficient ventilation in all stables. There are but few stables where this matter is sufficiently attended to. There are but few stables which do not emit a most offensive or disagreeable odor when the doors are first opened in the morning. A horse shut up in such an atmosphere for a considerable share of every twenty-four hours, can neither be as comfortable nor as healthy as he would be if provision had been made to secure a purer supply of air. The whole of the blood and humors of his system must be contaminated with the impurities of the atmosphere which he is obliged to inhale and imbibe through his lungs. This poisonous matter cannot be taken into the system for any great length of time without producing some disease, or, at least, some depression of strength and spirits, and a predisposition and readiness to be affected with actual disease. May not the dullness of eye, and want of sprightliness, which are sometimes observed in horses on first taking them out of the stable, be owing in a great measure to the impure atmosphere which they have been breathing during a long night, or a longer period of confinement in their stable? And may not the languor and logginess, the want of strength and vigor, which are quite common with some horses in the spring, be owing in a great degree to their being shut up in close, ill-ventilated, and impure stables, during the winter months? However this may be, it is well ascertained that inflammation and weakness of the eyes, as well as coughs, colds, influenzae, and inflammations of the lungs, are often caused by confinement in the foul and unwholesome atmosphere of some much-neglected and ill-constructed stables. When horses, obliged to breathe such an atmosphere during winter, come to be exposed, as they naturally must be, to sudden changes of temperature in the spring, it need not be wondered at that they should readily take cold, and be attacked with serious and even fatal inflammation of the lungs.

Notwithstanding the truth and obviousness of these facts and considerations, horses are often shut up for whole days and nights in an atmosphere which man could not bear to breathe even one hour.

Two of the simplest contrivances which we have ever seen, to remedy the closeness and impurity of stables, were adopted by one who became sensible of the injury and discomfort inflicted on his horses by the use of stables open to these objections.—The first consisted in opening several windows in the walls of the stable. These being hung, could be opened and shut more or less according to the weather. Another of these contrivances was the substitution of a door divided into an upper and lower half, in the place of a whole undivided door. As the door faced to the south, the upper half could be left open in all sorts of weather, save the most stormy and severely cold. By these means and the insertions of a sliding grate in the wall opposite, above the heads of the horses, a great improvement was effected in one stable; and by similar contrivances an improvement might be brought about in many cases.

In building new stables, however, provision should be made of a more scientific and efficient kind. The object may be accomplished in various ways; but one of the best is to admit fresh air by means of a sliding grate at the back of each stall, and to have a hopper in the ceiling, with a trunk up to the roof, to allow the escape of heated and impure air.—Country Gentleman.

BULL'S SARSAPARILLA,

PUT UP IN FULL QUART BOTTLES,

And containing the strength of six times as much pure Honduras Sarsaparilla as any other similar preparation in America.

A FEW bottles of this Sarsaparilla, put up several years ago, rendering it the more valuable, (as all well-informed druggists know that age improves it,) have been deposited at the drug store of CHARLES RITZ, in Lewistown, where they are offered for sale at four-thirds the regular price, namely 75 cents per bottle. It has been a well established fact for years past that Sarsaparilla, when pure and properly prepared, was the only true panacea for all diseases originating from an impure state of the blood, the use of mercury, intoxicating drinks, evil habits in youth, barrenness, &c. We hold by the fact that JOHN BULL'S FLUID EXTRACT OF SARSAPARILLA is the only preparation before the public that is prepared on strictly scientific principles and of uniform strength. The sarsaparilla is purchased without regard to price, and every pound, before being used, is subject to the strictest chemical tests, and its genuineness ascertained before being used. Bull's Sarsaparilla also contains the virtues of several other valuable medicinal roots, together forming the best compound, and producing the greatest curative agent in the known world! This medicine, when used according to directions, has cured
