..... Singular Accident.

The following singular accident is comcated to the Schenectady Star, by Mr. Ibert Slingerland. It occurred in Upper lenville, Schenectady county, New York: A very strange death occurred night efore last, just after dirk, about half a mile from my house. A man about thirtyand a very stout man, too, left the Corners just at dark, on horseback. He had with him a little jug of whiskey, [two quarts,] md, as it would seem, tied the end of the halter into the handle of the jug, and then ung the jug over his neck, so that it must swung before him. About an hour her he left, when it was quite dark, he found by the side of the road dead. horse, from appearances, had fallen. the fall the jug had made a noose his neck and choked him to death. the struggle the horse, too, had been pinvolved in the halter that it had fallen he second time, and so wound the halter around its own neck that it was upon its back and nearly dead, or would have been had relief not come as it did. The horse and man were bound together like Mazeppa, of Byronic fame. It is said that the man a drinking man; that is, in the gention of the term. He was a man leaving a wife and five small He was a farmer, and worked res the farm of Mr. Paulding. It a conjectured that the whiskey ing to do with the death, except was in the jug. The jug, man, and all bound together by the one ance, a terrific struggle, and some three tim.

For the Gazeite.

Mr. Editor-On the evening of the 23d of December a most agreeable entertainmeat was given by the members of the McAlisterville Academy, consisting of original orations, essays, poems, &c., accompanied with music by the school and the McAlisterville Band. The productions were of a nature and delivered n a style which justly entitled the performers to the noblest praise, and were listened to by an unusually large audience. The exercises were not of that theatrical nature which is so frequently displayed on similar occasions, but were such as exhibited the true standing of each pupil-their progress and proficiency in composition and declamation. Having been myself a member of this institution during he first nine months in which it was in pro gress under the present administration, and having received the most thorough instruction, I would recommend it to all who wish to obtain an education, or have their children edueated, as being one of the first class institu- myer & Stanbarger. tions in the State.
