State Legislation.

There are several radical evils in our State Laws which we hope will receive some attention at the hands of our legislators. Common Sense supposes that men are elected to the Senate and House of Representatives for the purpose of enacting new laws beneficial to the people or amending those in force where they do not answer the intended view; but to judge from the general tenor of legislative proceedings hitherto we fear Common Sense has had but little to do with the modus operandi of enacting a good law, for in most cases where one of that kind has been passed it was more the result of accident than design. Whether the present legislature has good material enough to carry through measures of general interest, we cannot say; but it is to be hoped that niggers, mulatoes, banks, and monopolies generally will be ignored so far at least as not to engage the attention of our sages during the whole session. Among the subjects worthy of attention are-

1st. The institution of Justices' courts to try and dispose of the minor offences which now take up so much time in our county courts and entail heavy expenses on the taxpayers in the shape of costs.

2d. The time for making assessments of real and personal property ought to be changed to April or May. At present this work is done in December, and before the duplicate is in process of collection hundreds have removed to other districts, or left the State.

3d. The license laws, as at present constituted, are a mere mockery. One clause will make a man pay a license for selling either coal or lumber, while another will permit him to go into a hundred different vocations under one license. There can be no justification or apology for such an absurd system. Trade ought either to be free, or all subject to a license. Our idea is that if a cabinet maker desires to add shoemaking to his business he ought to pay an additional license; if to that he wants to add tailoring, let him pay another, and so on through all mechanical business of any character.

4th. The publication of all general laws in all the leading papers in the State immediately after their passage and approval, so that the people can see what they are expected to obey. All laws of a local chacter ought also to be published in the counties or districts affected by them.

The House of Representatives at Washington still continues to keep up a debating school, in which the democratic factions let off steam on the slavery question, position had endeared him to the hearts of many who though it is evidently flagging, as those witnessed the patience and resignation with which he who were lately quite willing to cat fire and bore his affliction, and who sympathize with the bereaved family whose little circle death has again enbrimstone are now content with roast beef tered. His disease was lingering, and often accomand turkey. The patent democrats get up panied with severe suffering, yet no murmur or complaint ever escaped his lips, and he seemed to be a new candidate about every twenty-four calmly awaiting his summons to the skies. A more exemplary life or happier experience in death has seldom been met with in one so young. THE BATTLE SONG OF THE CHURCH. Fear not the foe, thou flock of God, Fear not the sword, the spear, the re Fear not the foe!

He fights in vain who fights with thee; Soon shalt thou see his armies flee, Himself laid low.

Come, cheer thee to the toil and fight; Tis God, thy God, defends the right; He leads thee on.

So round thy brow the wreath shall twine, So shall the victory be thine, And thine the song. Not long the sight that toil, the sweat, Not long the fight day's wasting heat; The shadows come

Slack not thy weapon in the fight: Courage! for God defends the right: Strike home! strike home Some twelve months ago, missionaries of the Cross, laboring in India, sent out to world an earnest invitation to unite with them in devoting the second week in January, 1860, to "importuate prayer that God would pour out his Spirit upon the flesh, and cause the ends of the Earth to his salvation." In accordance with these recommendations the Protestants throughout the world are now holding prayer meetings, so that there is probably not a minute during each twenty four hours in which a prayer is not sent up to the throne of grace in some part of the world. In Lewistown the meetings are held alternately at the Presbyterian, Lutheran and Methodist churches, are largely attended, and give promise that ere the close of the week no church in town will hold the congregation. There is no special concerted

1. That, as far as practicable, we would engage in these solemn services in assembled congregations.

2. That Monday should be devoted to fasting, and to deep humiliation, heart-searching and self abasement before God.

3. That Tuesday we cry mightily unto God from the deep places of humility, that he will deepen and strengthen the work of grace, in the heart of every believer.

4. Wednesday may be given to supplication, that God will regard specially, and spe-cially bless the children and youth, in both Christian and heathen lands.

5. Thursday may well be devoted to earnest prayer that God, by the exercise of his mighty power, will remove all obstacles which now hinder the progress of the Gospel in our own land and throughout the world. 6. Friday may be made a day of special intercession for the large cities, towns and populous districts of the world, and for the islands 7. Saturday we might plead, specially for Christ's ministers everywhere, and for a closer union of all Christ's disciples-for a fulfillment of the Saviour's precious prayer,

"That they all may be one, as thou, Father, art in me and I in thee, that they also may be one in us." On each of these days, as we bear these subjects to the throne of grace, in our closets, at the family altar, in the congregation and wherever we can pray, the blessing of the Most High should be carnestly implored upon all missionaries and missionary agencies, that through their instrumentality the world may be speedily converted to God.

8. The Sabbath, as our brethren in India suggest, may be given to praise and thanks-giving in the great congregation.

More Thieving .- The dwelling of Rev. H. Baker, Pastor of the Lutheran Church J. B. Selheimer, Treasurer, abatement in this place, was entered on Saturday afternoon and a set of furs belonging to Mrs. A. S. Wilson, Pres. Judge twentieth Baker, a child's set, some daguerreotypes, and probably other articles taken-it is believed, by a short, stout man, with drab coat and slouch hat. Should any such articles be offered for sale, or seen in the hands of any suspicious person, it is hoped information will at once be given. From Taxables in 1859, the number of strolling vagabonds through the country, who take every opportunity of stealing whatever they can lay hands on, it is evident our citizens cannot be too careful in keeping their doors closed and either locked or bolted.

[Since the above was in type, we learn that a portion of the goods have been recovered, and a large and intelligent audience of ladies the thief having pledged them for his lodging. The robbers whom we noticed last week with a hope of their arrest and punishment, have met with a speedy retribution. They were taken at Mount Union by D. Mutthersbough and Wm. B. Hoffman, with quite a variety of stolen property in their possession, brought to town, a true bill found, put upon trial, found guilty, and James Wakeman sentenced to the penitentiary for two years and a half, and the boy, John Lyon, a half-brother we believe of he merits a discharge.

and gentlemen, on Saturday evening, Decem-His text was "I will feed you with milk, mankind should never be fed with food stronger than they are able to bear. He traced the rise and progress of human society from the creation of man to the giving of the law on Mount Sinai, from that epoch to the coming of Christ, and from thence to the present time and onward. He adverted to the marked events of the different epochs of time, and the peculiar fitness of the world for the advent of each, at its proper time. He conten-ded that if the law had been given at an earlier period, it would have failed in producing its designed effects; and that Christ could not have come into the world at any other period than he did. He spoke of the slow marches of civilization, government, the arts and sciences, through the centuries of the past, and the former, to the House of Refuge until hinted even at the comparative unfitness of man for self government at the present day, of which fact abundant proofs might be produced, but he did not wish to open "Pando-One of those disgraceful calithumprogress of every epoch has been fully as rapid as the digestive organs of the people of the advancing generations could bear. He dwelt on the idea that there is a good time coming ties and neighborhood. In this case it was yet for man. His mental faculties are to be wonderfully developed and enlarged. their uses and forces increased to such a degree, and adapted so completely to practical purposes that manual labor will be dispensed with, and the digging and toiling will be done by machinery altogether.

Man was not made to earn his bread by the labor of his hands, but "by the sweat of his brow,' that is, by the power of his mind. His province is not to toil, but to direct. The medical profession though of hoary age, has made but comparatively little progress in the healing art, and although some considerable advance is apparent, yet since the days of Esculapius and Galen, the practice has been a regular round of lancet, calomel, Spanish flies and Ippecacuanha. But as their progenitors were great at guessing, they contin-tinue that branch of the science with remarkable skill and effect. Their Honors, the Judges of our Courts, and professional gentlemen of the Bar, were handled in an appropriate manner, but they, in their turn, will be superseded by new developments in that branch, in the good time to come. He fancied twelve jurors in the box, having their inner man stuffed with sour-crout and pork and their mouths with tobacco quids, but at smoking, the great distinguished feature of this age, he did not give a single puff. The lecturer concluded by a forcible argument in favor of the protection of home industry, as the surest means of developing the resources of our country, and the skill and enterprise of our The lecture was an able and highly instructive production, and was delivered in

The Union says:—Philip Appleby, well known about Shirleysburg and Cassville, was found dead near the latter place, on Sabbath evening. 1st inst. On the Monday previous he went to the woods near town, to chop wood for Dr. Fields. Not returning in the evening, the Doctor thought he had gone to Mr. Fronk's, where he made his home, and said nothing about his absence. Fronk made no inquiry about him, supposing he was at Fields'. Not appearing in town on Sunday, as was his custom, search was instituted, and old Philip was found dead just above the camp ground, near Lewis Stever's. It seems he had cut off a log, and the ground being sideling the log rolled over him, his head falling on a stone. He had lain there the whole week. He was an old man, but his exact age he did not know himself. He was a native of Maryland, served in the war of 1812, has lived for many years with the lat Judge Brewster, and leaves no relatives.
