ces, if it designs to secure our support.

You must not deem it uncourteous to be told that the Administration, and the party for whom you speak, are not only under sus picion, but, as we believe, actually under con viction, of the wrongs and injuries of which we complain. And I will go further, as I think, upon good grounds, and say for all for whom I can safely speak, that now, as heretofore, we have not been professional politicians or partisans, and are quite ready to give our support to the nominee of any party for the Presidency, on condition that he be a man personally worthy of confidence, for capability and integrity, and pledged at the same time to those measures of government which shall best promote the industrial, social, and political welfare of the nation.

You may rely, as I think, upon the whole belt of middle States for the election of such a man, for they are now too much in earnest concerning the true and permanent interests of the whole people to be carried away by merely sentimental or sectional fancies. Tired of abstractiouns and distractions, they are now asking only for favorable conditions for minding their own business.

Respectfully yours, JAMES MILLIKEN, Philadelphia, Jan. 2, 1860.

Congress.

Our readers are referred to the proceedings of Congress in another column, by which they will perceive who are the plotters for disunion, anarchy, and civil war; yet these men, who in the revolution would have been hung as tories, and at any later day stigmatized and abhorred as traitors, are those whom some "union-saving" papers of the Buchanan school would advise the freemen of the north to elevate to high places to save the Union! Our country has come to a pretty pass when traitors must be called on to rule it; and, be it remarked, every one of them claims to be a fullblooded democrat.

The Hudson River Railroad Accident. THE BRIDAL AND THE BURIAL.

A serious accident occurred last week on the Hudson river railroad, in which is mentioned the sad fate of Mrs. Fields:

principal in the female department of Brook lyn Public School, No. 12, and for a number of years had been greatly beloved by her scholars and all who knew her. Mr. Field, who is a well known pomologist, residing on Broadway, Williamsburg, as a member of the pard of Education formed the acquaintance Miss Tuthill. The acquaintance ripened into love, and resulted in their being married at Kingston on Wednesday morning last.— On the occasion of resigning her school, Miss Tuthill was presented with a valuable keep sake, as a mark of the affection they bore her. After leaving she proceeded to the residence of her sister at Kingston, for the purpose of preparing for her nuptials. On Tuesday evening, Mr. Field left Albany for Kingston, where he was met by her brother and one or two gentlemen from this city, who were pres ent to witness the interesting ceremony. Wednesday morning the happy couple proceeded to the church, accompanied by a gay party of ladies and gentlemen in sleighs. other places to vent their vulgarity and Four gentlemen, who were unable to procure seats in the sleighs, were proceeding ale foot, when Miss Tuthill's nicee called their attention to them and remarked that they looked more like pall bearers, than wedding guests. What a strange significance there was in those few words. They were united at 10 o'clock, and after the ceremony, Mr. Field and his happy bride crossed the river on the ice, in order to take the express train. There had been some doubts expressed regarding the safety of the ice, and when once fairly across, they congratulated each other upon their safety. When the accident occurupon their safety. red, Mrs. Field and her friends were sitting at the rear of the hind car, chatting and jesting together, Mr. Field being outside. engine tore through the car, carrying Mrs. Field with it, breaking both her legs, and mangling her body frightfully. After the first crash, her husband hastened to her rescue, and removing a great quantity of rubbish, he found her on the top of the boiler of the car by portions of her clothing. Tearing her dress from its fastening, and breaking his way through the car windows, Mr. Field bore the mangled and almost lifeless form of his bride to the air. Here he was surrounded by sympathizing friends, who did everything for her that it was possible to do, till at last she was placed on a hastily-made cot in one of the cars, and conveyed to the Getty House, at Yonkers. Medical aid was instantly procured, but Mrs. Field failed rapidly, and at 7 o'clock she breathed her last in the arms of her hus-
