Now, my dear friend, that is rather hard language, but perhaps you think you can prove it. If so, just keep these words in view-" The old must die, and the young may die," and see if they do not modify such statements. Next, as regards the treatment of said disease and drugs used in the same. I am of the opinion, when I look at the list of drugs which the Dr. mentions over, that he knows nothing about drug medication, for where is there a physician that practices medicine who says, in treating scarlet fever, he wishes the conclusion sum up some little experiences in said disease. Out of thirty children taken sick with scarlet ferer, five died before a physician could be got; three died out of the remainder, and twenty-two recovered. Now does that look as though more die from the treatment than from the disease? A PHYSICIAN.
