The Charleston Convention. Trouble in the Camp --- Secession of Southern Members. Probable Nomination of two Candidates

The patent democracy has been in much tribulation at the prolonged session of this body, the apparent wint of harmony, and the determination of the southern fire eaters and disunionists not to support any candidate who was not satisfactory to them on the nigger-spreading question.

On Friday the Committee on Resolutions, unable after their prolonged discussion to harmonize upon any declaration of principles, brought in three distinct platforms. The majority report, adopted in Committee by adds thereto the declaration that it is "the duty of the federal government to protect when necessary the rights of persons sons and property" (i. e. slaves) "on the tion." high seas and in the territories, or wherever else its constitutional authority extends." simply declares on the vexed subject of make sure, suppose we both go and seeof property are judicial," and pledges the gion where the latter will be held? Democracy to carry out all decisions of the Supreme Court upon such subjects. The third report, presented by the Massachusetts delegate, merely reaffirms the Cincin-and resided there until 1839, when he removnati platform without alteration or addi- ed to Cumberland County and engaged in the reception of reports. The discussion influential politician of the Democratic school, was opened by Mr. Avery, of South Carolina, who claimed that the majority report represented Cumberland and Adams counties represented States giving one hundred and in the Senate of this State. twenty-seven certain Democratic electoral votes, and denounced squatter sovereignty as being as much subversive of the rights of the South as Congressional interference against slavery in the Territories would be. Mr. Payne, of Ohio, who made the minority report, claimed that it represented one hundred and seventy-two electoral votes, but was immediately met with the taunt that not one of these votes were certain for the Democratic nominees. He urged the principle of non intervention with slavery in the Territories as one from which the free States could not depart, and declared, amidst much sensation, that with the platform reported by the majority not a single electoral vote could be secured from those States. Mr. Butler followed and concluded the debate during the morning session, urging the simple reaffirmation of the Cineinnati platform on the principle of "letting well enough alone."

On Saturday, Collector Baker, John L. Dawson and Senator Bigler attempted to put some bogus instructions into the hands of H. B. Wright, chairman of the Pennsylvania delegation, which resulted in a war of words, and ended by Baker striking Wright. This affray created much excitement.

On Monday, on the test vote of adopting the majority report of the Committee, committing the party to the doctrine of Congressional legislation for the protection of slavery in the Territories, or that of the minority declaring the question to be one for judicial interpretation only, the Convention declared decidedly—yeas 165, nays 138—in favor of the latter—thus rendering the minority report the only one before the body. But this result brought up a storm which the North appeared unable to resist. An excited debate, interspersed with much wrangling and confusion ensued. The Southern delegates presented an almost united front against the final adoption of the Douglas plank in the amended platform. Several delegations re-fused to vote, and others declared its adoption would destroy the Democratic party as a national organization. Col. Richardson, of 11linois, endeavored to address the Convention, but the South refused to hear him. Finally a vote was reached, and the preamble and resolutions on the subject of slavery in the Territories were stricken out—ayes 230, nays 40—Mississippi, Alabama, Arkansas, and Florida refusing to vote. The remaining resolutions, relating to the protection of citizens at home and abroad, the Pacific Railroad, acquisition of Cuba, &c., were adopted unan imously, the above States still refusing to vote. The platform, as it stands, is entirely silent upon the subject of slavery in the Ter-

The disposition of the question, however, failed to satisfy a portion of the South, which had been instructed by their State Conventions to demand a positive affirmation of the right and duty of Congress to protect slave property from unfriendly Territorial legislation. The majority of the delegations from Alabama, Mississippi, South Carolina, Florida, Texas, and a part of that from Delaware withdrew-the delegations of those States where a minority remained protesting against their authority to represent the State in the Convention. On the part of the seceding delegations the most earnest protests were entered against the action of the Convention, and the free States warned that in sixty days they would find themselves opposed by a united South.

The leading democrats of this State consider it now a settled matter that the Charleston nominee, whoever he may be, cannot be elected, and their only hope is to throw the Presidency into the House. The Chicago Convention we trust will settle the matter for them by nominating an acceptable People's Candidate who will sweep the entire north and west, and the sensible portion of the south.

Died—On the 23d April, 1860, in Lewistown, Miss SARAH A. DONAHO, for ten years a faithful teacher in the public schools of Lewistown.

Thus has passed away one of earth's purest spirits. Seldom are we called upon to record the death of one who has filled all the relations of life so beautifully, and to none could the words of the Great Teacher be more truthfully applied, "She hath done what she could."

The brightest light has faded from the home circle. The brightest fight has laded from the home circle, leaving it sadly dark; the unselfish friend has depart-ed, leaving the sweet remembrance of what a friend may be; the devoted teacher has passed away, leaving an example to her fellow laborers of what a teacher should be.

hould be. Her private life as a daughter, sister, friend, we feel s too sacred, and we would leave it where it will ever re, in the hearts and memories of her friends, sim-y remarking that those "who knew her best loved live, in the hearts and memories of her friends, simply remarking that those "who knew her best loved her most."

Of her public life as a teacher, however, we cannot forbear to speak: Commencing to teach when quite young, and having prevously had but limited means for obtaining an education, she keenly felt her unfitness for the work; but no sooner had she engaged in her calling, than she bent all her energies to the work of preparation for her schoolroom duties. As she looked at the condition of the Common Schools of Pennsylvania, and saw progress marking every step of their course, she felt that the inactive, standstill teacher would soon be left behind. As this sentiment impressed itself upon her, she applied herself more vigorously to the work of cultivating her mind, and for this purpose we fear, she taxed her already feeble strength too severely. Almost, literally, may she be said to have died at her post. For two years her health had been failing, and during the past year she had been a great sufferer, but until no longer able to stand in the schoolroom (within two months of her death) she left not her work. When frequently presed to give up her labors long before she did, her invariable reply was, "No, I will work while I can, for when I leave the schoolroom I shall sink at once.

The Teachers' Conventions and Institutes were always hailed by her as means of enjoyment and improvement. Her earnest and attentive manner will ever be remembered by those from a distance, who have been with us conducting our Institutes

Her place in the Teacher's Weekly Association was never vacant, and though almost painfully timid and retiring, she left unperformed no duty assigned to her.

In the schoolroom, patience and mildness of government combined with theory of the school of the comment of the co

er. In the schoolroom, patience and mildness of gov-rument, combined with thoroughness of instruction, ernment, combined with thoroughness of instruction, were her characteristics.

Her last hours were as beautiful and serene as her life had been. As we stood by her dying bed, there seemed but little of death there, and we grieved only that the love-light was dying out from those eyes, and the loving tones of that voice was being hushed forever to us on earth. Thus has been made vacant a place which we fear will never be filled.

Nervous Disorders.

Mothers and Daughters. If there is one thing more than another for which these Pills are so famous it is their purifying properties, especially their power of cleansing the blood from all impurities, and removing dangerous and suspended secretions. Universally adopted as the one grand remedy for female complaints, they never fail, never weaken the system, and always bring about what is required.

Sick Headaches and want of Appetite. These feelings which so sadden us, most frequently arise from annoyances or trouble, from obstructed perspiration, or from eating and drinking what is unit for us, thus disordering the liver and stomach. These organs must be regulated if you wish to be well. The Pills, if taken according to the printed instructions, will quickly restore a healthy action to both liver and stomach, whence follow as a natural consequence, a good appetite and a clear head. In the East and West Indies scarcely any other medicine is ever used for these disorders.

Disorders of the Kidneys.

In all diseases affecting these organs, whether they secrete too much or too little water; or whether they be afflicted with stone or gravel, or with aches and pains settled in the loins over the regions of the kidneys, these Pills should be taken according to the printed directions, and the Oiatment should be well rubbed into the small of the back at bed time. This treatment will give almost immediate relief when all other means have failed.

For Stomachs out of order,

No medicine will so effectually improve the tone of the stomach as these Pills; they remove all acidity, occasioned either by intemperance or improper diet. They reach the liver and reduce it to a healthy action; they are wonderfully efficacious in cases of spasmin fact they never fail in curing all disorders of the Liver and Stomach.
