Attacks on Mr. Lincoln. During the past winter the Lewistown Democrat and other so-called democratic papers, in the expectation that Mr. Seward would be the Republican nominee for President, were as unsparing in misrepresenting that able and distinguished statesman as the same papers were formerly in vilifying Henry Clay. Their attention is now turned to Mr. Lincoln, and the public may of course expect every species of libel and falsehood that political profligates can invent. These men, who are ready to endorse an avowed disunionist, should he be nominated at the Baltimore convention; who unscrupulously defend bribery, fraud, and theft in the present administration: who can see no wrong in whatever Buchanan and his adherants may do, though their actions peril the safety of the Union and are at war with christianity and justiceare likely persons to tell the truth respecting a political opponent! In answer it will be sufficient at present to quote the National Intelligencer, which is one of the most conservative journals in the country, as well as one of the most impartial, which says that when Mr. Lincoln was in Congress he was "distinguished alike for the ability and amenity which he brought to the discharge of his public duties;" that the "selection was a tribute no less to the political position held by Mr. Lincoln among his confederates than to the popular talents he is admitted by all to possess, and, in consequence of the deep and wide public interest that was felt in the issue of the contest between him and Mr. Douglas, his name acquired a new celebrity beyond the bounds of his State. while the manner in which he bore himself throughout that arduous struggle has doubtless largely contributed to procure for him the distinction he has just received at great and energetic leader. the hands of his party, assembled in general convention;" and that Mr. Lincoln is proved ability to wear with dignity any upon him.

It will be remembered that during democratic papers found some fault with the people of Pennsylvania that their inter ests will be perfectly secure in his hands. Himself a laborer in early life, he has strugchanging their votes from Mr. Smith for gled with adversity until he has reached the Speaker on the ground that Mr. S. refused to say how he would constitute the tariff committee. On the vote on the new tariff bill this Mr. Smith voted against it, thus showing that our members were right in refusing to vote for him for Speaker.

The tariff is not a party question, says the Democrat, yet his party almost unanimously opposed the one recently adopted by the House, while the opposition almost unanamously supported it. But, continued the Bearned editor, Mr. Buchanan recommended specific duties-yes, and his Secretary of the Treasury ridiculed him for it. Besides, our neighbor says it is nothing more than the tariff of 1846! Such gammon won't take with anybody. The tariff of 1846 protected iron, &c. when protection was not wanted, while the new tariff does just the reverse-it protects our staple articles all the time, and if adopted will start a thousand furnaces and forges now lying idle and unproductive, and give employment to a hundred thousand men. It is the People's Tariff, and wo to the Senators who will defeat it.

The two steamers which left New York for Liverpool on Saturday, carried out $1,227, 000 in specie. It is said that the importations of foreign merchandise for the current year Custom House valuation. The real cost is fully 25 per cent. higher. It is easy to see what will be the result of these enormous imnortations if something be not speedily done to check them. If our present tariff be not changed another revulsion is inevitable.

The vote was taken in the M. E. Conference on Monday on the new rule, making dren, with an intention to enslave them an offence. A two-third vote being required the Republican Meeting in Harrisburg.

A large and enthusiastic meeting, to ratify the nomination of Lincoln and Hamlin, was held at Harrisburg on Friday evening. General Cameron was among the speakers.

Mr. Cameron said : "I thank you, friends, for the invitation to be present with you to-night, and for the opportunity it affords me of conferring with you concerning recent events. I have come at your bidding, from my place in the Senate, to join with you in ratifying the action of the representatives of cur party at Chicago. Not even the profound respect I bear for you could induce me to do so, had I not clearly ascertained that no harm could come to the tariff bill, in which you are so deeply interested, during my brief absence. It may be proper that I should briefly allude to myself before proceeding further. searcely say to you that I have no feeling of personal disappointment in the result. The high office which you, together with the people of this great State would have conferred upon me, has fer me no charms; and while

I was justly proud of the demonstration in my behalf, I never have for a moment felt equal to the proper discharge of the duties appertaining to it. It is surrounded with cares and anxieties which a brave man might fear to approach, yet the place is so high that no true patriot is at liberty to decline it when it is offered for his acceptance. I have but one sentiment and one interest in regard to the nomination of a candidate for the Presileney, and that is, that the candidate should be true to the interests of Pennsylvania, which I believe to be the interests of the whole country; and in this connection I did hope that the person fixed upon would have been the favorite son of our sister State, Wm. II. Seward. I knew, as did the entire country, that he, through a long and useful course of public life, had been the able and zealous advocate of all measures which promised protection and encouragement to free white labor. While representing a State whose prosperity is believed to depend mainly upon the commerce of her great metropo lis, he had that foresight, so characteristic of a great statesman, which enabled him to remember that the coal and iron of Pennsyl vania, and the agricultural products of other States, as well as their varied and important manufacturing interests, must be combined, in order that their full effect and force might be brought to bear upon the great progressive commercial interests of his own. On more than one occasion, when the interests of Pennsylvania have been threatened, he has nobly ome to the rescue of those interests, prompt ed alone by far seeing patriotism. Pennsyl vania could well in return, as a mark of her respect for his ability, and confidence in his integrity, have entrusted to him her destiny, "But I am aware that many men, entertaining like exalted opinions of Mr. Seward's statesmanship and public services, have coupled it with a doubt as to his availability for the Presidential race. As for me, I have had no doubts upon that subject. I have, and have ever had, unlimited confidence in the in telligence and sagacity, as well as the virtue of the American people; and the people of Pennsylva ia in no degree rank below the masses elsewhere in these qualities. Knowing the temper of the people from the intimate relations it has been my good fortune to hold with them, I believe they were ready to take a representative man, and with him go forward to the work of reorganizing the Government under such anspices as ruled when e destinies of the Republic were being shaped by the Washingtons, ihe Adamses, the Jeffersons, and the Madisons of history. The corruptions, the unparalleled extravagance and the mal administration of public affairs, which bid fair to render the present an infamous era in the country's history, had prepared the people for active and willing service under a

But the Convention which recently met, deliberated, and harmoniously closed its session at Chicago, after a fair and candid inter-"justly entitled by his private worth and change of opinion, has presented to our choice a candidate less known in public life, perhaps honor" his friends may be able to confer been made upon his zeal and patriotism, has borne himself bravely and honorably. In regard to the great interests of Pennsylvania, the subject of protection to labor, his recthe contest for Speaker of the House, the He will require no endorsement to convince proud position he now occupies, by the single aid of a strong purpose, seconded by an un yielding will; and it is not in the hearts of Pennsylvanians to doubt such a man. The laboring men of this State ever control the ballot-box when they arrise in the majesty of their strength. Let them go to the election next autumn, and, while they are securing their own interests, let them elevate to the highest place in their election gift Abram Lincoln, a workingman like themselves.

Of his associate on the ticket, Hannibal Hamlin, I can speak from personal observation and intimacy. I have known him long, and have served with him many years in the Senate of the United States. He, too, is a man in whom the people of Pennsylvania can rely. Honest, faithful, intelligent, able, and ever fully awake to the paramount interests of labor in all its various branches, risk nothing in pronouncing him as keenly alive to the importance of the gradual but certain developement of Pennsylvania's reources as any man in the Republic.

"Gentlemen, it is the duty of every one of us-of every good citizen-to join hands in the good work of elevating the men whose names are inscribed upon our banners to the proud positions to which they are named; that honesty, and integrity, and true patriotism, may regain the places now usurped by men grown reck ess and corrupt through long continuance in power. I trust there will be no division of sentiment in the great party of the people of Pennsylvania. Let us remember, when we go up to this coming battle with organized wrong and official corruption, that a recreant son of Pennsylvania of foreign merchandise for the current year has brought this great shame upon the countwill amount to over $400,000,000. This is try, and now leads the war upon popular right; and let the remembrance of this fact nerve us in the purpose to crush out that combination, which now wields the sword and the purse, and thus redeem the good name of our noble Commonwealth. The question is now really between the people and the officeholders. A set of men held together by the cohesive power of public plunder now control the Government. They are demoralized. and their ranks are broken; and we have only the buying, holding of men, women or chil- to be united, firm, vigilant, and active, to se BOLA meeting was held at Harrisburg last week which adopted resolutions in favor of a railroad to the Ohio river through the south western counties. It is easy to talk about constructing new and expensive railroads nowadays, but not so easy to make them. Few of all the railroads constructed in this country have been of any benefit to the orig inal stockholders, while thousands have been ruined by them.

A meeting was held in New York the other night by a large number of members of the "Union and Constitution Party," who are not satisfed with the nominations made at Baltimore, and preliminary arrangements were made for bringing Sam Houston in the field. After eight days of domestic bliss the husband disappeared, and left neither trace nor money behind. A reward was offered for his capture; a description of his fascinating person was circulated, he was recognized in a village tavern by a man who thought of the reward offered, and set about preparing his toils for the victim. In order to instil confidence into his breast, he made his acquaintance, invited him to his mansion, and then went off to procure place and Kishacoquillas valley and the north- legal assistance. ### FROM EUROPE.

By the simultaneous arrival of the steamers Palestine and Arabia, the latter bringing dates to the 20th, we have intelligence of important and stirring movements in Italy. Garabaldi had succeeded in landing in Sicily, under the fire of two Neapolitan frigates, which captured one of his vessels and sank the other. The frigates afterward bombarded the town occupied by Garabaldi and his forces, but ceased on the interference of the British war vessels whose commander protested against an atdrugs of any kind which are used as pois- on the inoffensive inhabitants. The subsequent accounts of Garabaldi's progress are meagre, but it was believed he was making good progress toward Palermo. The success of Garabaldi's first movement created an intense feeling throughout Italy. No actual outbreak had occurred at Palermo or Naples, but everything pertended a general rising which would sweep away the young tyrant who has oppressed his subjects so ruthlessly. The people were in a state of intense excitement, shouting "Italy and Liberty forever," even in the churches or wherever they assembled. At Naples the utmost consternation prevailed on the part of the Government. tuous demonstrations had taken place, the troops were dispirited, and the Royal family were making preparations for flight .-Any person offending herein shall be guil. A rumor prevailed in Florence that the Grand Duke was about to attempt to recover his power in Tuscany, in consequence of which the National Guard had been called out.

It was also reported that General Lamoriciere, the Commander of the Roman Army, had made a movement toward the Romagna with the Papal forces, and that three thousand Piedmontese troops had been dispatched from Genoa to check him, whilst the garrison forces of Central Italy had been ordered to advance by forced marches toward the Papal frontier. The French troops are also asserted to have received positive orders to evacuate Rome. whilst three French frigates had been despatched to Naples. These reports will of course need confirmation before they can be fully credited, but it is evident that important events are about taking place in Italy, which may result in the overthrow of the Neapolitan dynasty and the accomplishment of another important step toward the union of Italy in one free kingdom. The King of Naples is reported to have concluded a treaty offensive and defensive with Austria and the deposed Italian princes, but Austria, the only formidable party to the compact, is financially in no condition to make war, even if her interference would not be the signal for the reappearance of France in the field.

Among the minor items of news is the announcement that Heenan and Savers had settled the Championship question up-on amicable terms. There is no campaign in modern military history which for its extent, although attended with such disastrons results, although eventually ending in the liberty of the Republic, than that conducted by Gen. Samuel Houston, during the years 1830-3, in the defence of the Americans then settled upon the frontiers of Mexico. In a brief period, with a small band of Heroes hastily raised an masse, and illy armed and acourred, the brillant defence of the Alamo, was made forever glorious by the bloody massacre, perpetrated by the Mexicans. From the Prefuee.—The Empress Josephine was one of the most remarkable of all the extraordinary characters who rose into conspicuous public positions in consequence of the French Revolution. Wonderful were the events of her life. With the kindest and most affectionate of human hearts, she united the sternest principles of rectinade and a comprehensive genius.

In political foresight, her superiority to Napoleon is now universally recognized. Had he listened to her admonitions, his empire might have been averted. It is worthy of notice that this political foresight and ability has been inherited by her descendants—two of whom. Napoleon III. and Pedro II. respectively the present Emperors of France and of Brazil, are among the ablest sovereigns now reigning in the world.

The events of Josephine's life, and remarkable traits of character which she displayed amidst the most amazing vicissitudes of fortune, afford not only an exceedingly interesting but a highly instructive lesson to all who read her biography. In this respect her career, taken as a whole, may challenge comparison with that of any other historical personages in history.

Josephine constantly looked to the glory of France and the fame of her husband as the two most desirable objects. When Napoleon desired to perpetuate his dynasty by a second marriage which might yield him a male heir to his throne. Josephine nobly secrificed her own feelings to what she was told might eventuate to the advantage of France. In his adversity this true woman forgot all but their happy years of wedded love—remembered not that she had been repudiated, but that he was unfortunate.

We have freely drawn upon various authors, who have recorded aneedotes and traits of Josephine, as related to them, with the tender regret of affection, which, too late, recognized her full value, by Napoleon himself, in his clossing years, and it is hoped that the
