The music was one of the most interesting and gratifying features, and the manner in which the pupils equitted themselves in performing it could not fail to please a'l who were present. The essays, taking the place of the "Scholar's Gem," a manuscript paper published occasionally by the pupils of this school, were well written and well read. Gross Outrage at Palmyra.

Attempt by Beggars to Hang a Girlcers from Palmyra arrived in the city last evening in search of one of the perpetrators of a fiendish outrage committed upon a young girl in that village in broad daylight, on Monday last. At about half-past eleven o'clock, a. m., two rough looking men entered the dwelling of Mr. Capron, in the village, the only occupant at the time being the servant girl, who is a native of Palmyra, and highly respectable. They demanded "something to eat," which the girl refused, as her mistress was out. They immediately seized her, and, while one placed his hand over her mouth to stifle her cries, the other tore off her apron and made a sort of rope of it. They then conveyed their victim to the cellar, and without further ill treatment tied the apron tightly about her neck, and then hung her upon a large nail in a beam overhead .-Having done this the ruffians left.

After hanging a short time, the nail broke, and the girl fell to the floor, where the was shortly afterwards found in an insensible state by Mr. and Mrs. Capron, ho had returned. They of course were at a loss to account for the strange state of hings, and it was not until some time in he afternoon that the girl recovered sufficlently to be able to render an account of what had occurred. Officers were immediately started in pursuit of the guilty parties, and one man was arrested on a canal boat who was identified by the girl, and the other is supposed to be William Forbes, Apples, at Apples, at A. A Strange Girl .- The Hartford (Congirl, Abby Jane Wade, who escaped from the State Prison on the 14th of May, was found this morning under the barn of Winthrop Buck, who lives near the Folly in Weathersfield. She lived in a hole under the havmow, crawling into holes that a WILLIAM BROTHERS. woodchuck would hesitate to enter, and subsisting by milking the cows, sucking eggs, and on what she could pick up around houses at night. Traces were discovered of her having even visited the Prison and 4 p. m. broken into the kitchen since her escape. She seems to be a half-witted creature with the cunning and activity of a wild animal.
