

THE HOUSEKEEPER.

The editor of the American Agriculturist, after recommending the use of glass jars, inverted into tin pans and closed with cement, concludes his article as follows. His directions for preserving will of course apply to all other modes of putting up fruit.

From the American Agriculturist for July.

Preserving Fruit.

The essential points to be observed in preserving fruit are: 1st, that the articles be entirely fresh. With soft pulpy fruits, as strawberries, this is very important. Many who have been at fault here, blamed the bottles or cans, and so for recommending them. Berries purchased in the market are often from six to thirty hours gathered, or more. Fermentation advances somewhat before it can be perceived by the taste, and when once it has started, it is with difficulty arrested. The good housewife sometimes introduces such fruit into confinement, without sufficient cooking—the openings are safely closed, but the 'working' goes on. Carbonic gas is generated, 'pop' go the corks, and out run the frothing syrup and the housewife's hopes together. Fruits with a firm skin give less difficulty, because their decay does not commence so early.

2d. Sufficient cooking is needed to expel the air contained in the fruit, and to counteract the change which exposure to the atmosphere has produced. The liquid albumen is made solid by boiling, and in this state is not easily fermented. Green corn among vegetables, require the longest boiling; say two to three hours. Skin fruits, as plums, peaches, etc., we have kept without cooking, except that obtained by pouring in the boiling syrup and sealing at once, but a previous heating through is preferable.

3d. Care must be taken to entirely exclude the air. Fill the bottles, raise the liquid to the boiling point, then put in the cork, and make all so tight with cement, that air can not enter. A pin hole left will as certainly spoil the fruit as though the cork was not inserted. Housekeepers should not be discouraged by one or two failures. A few trials will give the necessary practical experience, after which they will thank the Agriculturist for commending the fruit bottles. Now is the time to procure a supply.

SPECIAL DIRECTIONS FOR PUTTING UP FRUIT.

As a guide to new readers, of whom we have some fifteen or twenty thousand, and for convenient reference for older readers, who may not have last year's numbers at hand, we add the following special directions:

Berries. For strawberries, blackberries, and raspberries, take the clean fruit, picked while dry, avoiding washing unless really necessary. Put into a glazed vessel; one of brass will do, but is not so good as an enameled one. Pour over it the hot syrup made of 1 lb. to 1 lb. of good white sugar to one pint of water. (We have used 2, 3, and 4 lbs. of sugar with nearly equal success. A good rule is to use about as much sugar as will be required to fit the fruit for eating, remembering that rather more is required when the fruit is to be saturated through, than when it is to be eaten fresh.) A small amount of syrup will be needed to fill the interstices between the fruit, and it need not come up quite to the top at first, as the fruit will sink down into it when boiling. Carefully cook the berries in the syrup for 12 or 20 minutes, so that all shall be scalded through. Too much cooking spoils the form of the fruit, and dissipates the fine aroma. Heat it through, but do not stew it down. Have the bottles ready heated by the stove, or in water (setting them in, when it is cold, and heating it up), and pour in the fruit with the syrup. This can best be done through a wide-necked funnel, or from a pitcher, to avoid getting the syrup upon the top of the bottle, which would prevent the union of the wax with the glass—a very common error. Fill the bottles not quite to the top of the neck. Let them stand a few minutes, occasionally jarring them a little, to facilitate the escape of any air bubbles left on pouring in the fruit. This, with the partial cooling, will cause the fruit to shrink a little. Now pour in enough more syrup to fill the bottles as high as where the bottom of the cork will sink to. Carefully wipe off any chance drops of syrup that may have been carelessly left upon the neck or top of the bottle, and press in the corks. The corks should be large, and be softened in hot water, so that they will press in easily. Press the corks down upon the syrup. If any syrup oozes through, carefully wipe it all off with a towel dipped in hot water, so as to leave the glass clean for the wax. As soon as the water dries off, dip in the melted cement with a spoon, until the top is well covered. Pour a little of the cement into the 'patty pans,' turn the waxed neck into it, and add enough more cement to perfectly close the rim of the bottle neck. Remember that water or grease on the neck of the bottle will prevent the firm union of the wax. (We make a long story of these particulars, but they are essential, and easily and quickly attended to, requiring less time and trouble, than to watch the cooking in the old method of preserving.

For Cement, the best we have found is about 1 ounce of tallow to 14 ounces of common resin. This is a cheap compound, the resin costing only 4 to 6 cents per pound at retail. We make up a dozen pounds or so at a time, and keep it on hand, melting it as often as needed.

Peaches, cherries, plums, apricots, pears, quinces, etc., may all be put up in the same manner, and with very moderate cooking. Apples and quinces of course require paring and coring. They may be cut into pieces of any desired size and form. If in very large pieces, a little longer boiling may be needed to have them heated through, but not cooked soft on the outside. The pits should be removed from peaches; cherries are all the better for being first stoned, and more of them can thus be got into the bottles.

Apples may be stewed in sauce ready for the table, and then bottled up for use, without further cooking, three, six, nine, or twelve months afterwards. We always put up a large quantity thus, at different periods of the year—in the winter taking cans that had previously been used for the same purpose or for other fruits.

Any kind of steamed sauce may be seasoned, then bottled and sealed, and be always ready for use.

Tomatoes we put up largely every year, and have now (in June) a fair supply, as good as if just gathered and cooked.—These we skin, cut, and boil down one half, and then bottle up. Prepared in this way they are so convenient, and of so good and fresh quality, that we make no special effort to secure early new tomatoes.

Rhubarb, stewed soft, sweetened as for pies, and bottled, comes out nice and fresh in mid-winter or Spring.

Currants and gooseberries are also similarly kept, but these should be mature, if not ripe, and be well cooked and sweetened with a strong syrup.

Green peas, beans, and corn may also be kept, but they need to be thoroughly cooked before bottling, or they are liable to spoil.

We repeat in closing, that though we have made a long chapter in giving particulars, the process of putting up in bottles and cans, we find to be less trouble and labor, than the old-fashioned mode of preserving in sugar, while less sugar is required, and a sweetmeat or sauce is thus obtained, far superior in appearance, in taste, and especially in healthfulness.

HUMPHREYS' HOMEOPATHIC SPECIFIC REMEDIES

HEAR WHAT THE PEOPLE SAY.

The undersigned having used Professor HUMPHREYS' SPECIFIC HOMEOPATHIC REMEDIES in our families with the most satisfactory results, and having full confidence in their genuineness, purity, and efficacy, cheerfully recommend them to all persons who wish to have safe, reliable, and efficacious remedies at hand for private or domestic use.

- In all acute diseases, such as Fevers, Inflammations, Diarrhoea, Dysentery, Croup, Rheumatism, and such eruptive diseases as Scarlet Fever, Measles, and Erysipelas, the advantage of giving the proper remedies promptly is obvious, and in all such cases the specific acts like a charm. The entire disease is often arrested at once, and in all cases the tendency of the attack is moderated, the disease shortened, and rendered less dangerous.
- Coughs and Colds, which are of such frequent occurrence, and which so often lay the foundation of diseased lungs, bronchitis and consumption, may all be at once cured by the Fever and Cough Pills.
- In all chronic diseases, such as Dyspepsia, Weak Stomach, Constipation, Liver Complaints, Piles, Female Debility, and Irregularities, old Headaches, Sore or Weak Eyes, Catarrh, Salt Rheum, and other old eruptions, the case has specifics whose proper application will afford a cure in almost every instance. Often the cure of a single chronic difficulty, such as Dyspepsia, Piles or Catarrh, Headache or Female Weakness, has more than paid for these ten times over.

MOFFAT'S LIFE PILLS

AND PHENIX BITTERS.

The reputation of these very celebrated vegetable remedies is now unequalled by any others in this country or in Europe. They are fully established as the most universal family medicine now in use, and they will maintain their pre-eminent renown by the intrinsic and comprehensive virtues which acquired it. The usual modes of puffery would be unworthy of them and is unnecessary. Thousands and tens of thousands of persons now living in perfectly restored health can testify, as thousands have testified, to their prompt and decided efficacy not only in all ordinary derangements of health from impaired Digestive Functions, Costiveness, Bilious and Liver Complaints, Rheumatic, Inflammatory Colds, Coughs, Nervous Weakness, Loss of Appetite, Failure of Flesh, Headache and Impure State of the Blood and other fluids, but also in Rheumatism, Fever and other Intermittent Fevers, Asthma, Bronchitis, Cholera, Pleurisy, Palpitation of the Heart, and other Disorders of the Blood and in the Joints, Limbs and Organs, Affections of the Bladder and Kidneys, Jaundice, Dropsy, Piles (however inveterate), Habitual Constipation, Serous and Bilious Looseness, Obstinate Headache and Giddiness, and an immense number of other maladies. They require no dieting nor confinement, are perfectly mild and pleasant in their operation, but will powerfully restore health—the greatest of earthly blessings—to the most exhausted and dilapidated constitutions.
