Letter from a Citizen of Philadelphia to a Citizen of Atlanta.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec 13, 1860.

G. G. H. Esq., Atlanta, Ga. —

DEAR SIR—Your esteemed favor of the 1st inst. did not reach me until yesterday. You imply that you are a former citizen of this county, and I am glad to hear that you are so.

The unity of government thus threatened is spoken of in the Farewell Address as "the main pillar in the edifice of our independence—the support of our tranquility at home, our peace abroad, of our safety, of our prosperity, and of that very liberty which we so highly prize."

There is no doubt, as you say, an intense feeling in some, if not all the cotton states, and a separation resolutely determined upon, which may involve all the consequences of a general dissolution of the States, and must, while the alienation continues, disturb and distress all portions of the Union.

In the first place, political institutions are not a mere matter of caprice or choice. A single individual, securing himself from all influence and neglecting all consequences, can do as he pleases, for if the risk of ruin does not restrain, there is nothing in the system of things to govern or control him.

All history teaches that circumstances, at their best, are only the free and intelligent artificers of a work which is not their own. Never yet did a statesman intent upon revolution know what would be the result of his labor.

WASHINGTON held the obligations of the Federal Constitution just as sacred as the State Constitution and laws of the several states. He looked upon nullification and secession just as he did upon felony and treason.

The old thirteen states, before the Constitution was adopted, were not less jealous or less unfriendly to each other than they are now, though they had not been every day of their existence in a violent ill temper with each other.

The laws which we make we can alter—the compact which we make we can abolish—but those which nature and the order of human society imposes are not repealable.

Relations of business, association and national politics, without our will, or against it, compel quite as close a Union of the states as the Constitution provides for: it is, in fact, but little more than a system of treaties of amity and commerce, with a system of Ministers whom we call Presidents, Judges and Congressmen. No possible separate independence of the states could subsist with a simple system of interstate connections.

Let South Carolina, and such of the Gulf states as threaten to stand by her, begin the work of a separate government. Such a confederacy must provide an army, a navy, a postal service, and all the apparatus of a nation.

Let South Carolina, and such of the Gulf states as threaten to stand by her, begin the work of a separate government. Such a confederacy must provide an army, a navy, a postal service, and all the apparatus of a nation.

There is no doubt, as you say, an intense feeling in some, if not all the cotton states, and a separation resolutely determined upon, which may involve all the consequences of a general dissolution of the States, and must, while the alienation continues, disturb and distress all portions of the Union.

In the first place, political institutions are not a mere matter of caprice or choice. A single individual, securing himself from all influence and neglecting all consequences, can do as he pleases, for if the risk of ruin does not restrain, there is nothing in the system of things to govern or control him.

All history teaches that circumstances, at their best, are only the free and intelligent artificers of a work which is not their own. Never yet did a statesman intent upon revolution know what would be the result of his labor.

WASHINGTON held the obligations of the Federal Constitution just as sacred as the State Constitution and laws of the several states. He looked upon nullification and secession just as he did upon felony and treason.

The old thirteen states, before the Constitution was adopted, were not less jealous or less unfriendly to each other than they are now, though they had not been every day of their existence in a violent ill temper with each other.

Relations of business, association and national politics, without our will, or against it, compel quite as close a Union of the states as the go; and, for the reasons herein stated, I repeat, "do not stop secession yet." Still, I shall not lament if their arguments and remonstrances should prove convincing messengers to each and every one of the ball-torn and rebellious citizens of your State.

I remain very truly yours, J. M.

BERHAVE'S

HOLLAND BITTERS.

THE CELEBRATED HOLLAND REMEDY FOR DYSPEPSIA, DISEASE OF THE KIDNEYS, LIVER COMPLAINT, WEAKNESS OF ANY KIND, FEVER AND ACUE.

And the various affections consequent upon a disordered

STOMACH OR LIVER.

Such as Indigestion, Acidity of the Stomach, Colicky Pains, Heartburn, Loss of Appetite, Despondency, Costiveness, Head and Bleeding Piles. In all Nervous, Rheumatic, and Neuralgic Affections, it has in numerous instances proved highly beneficial, and in others effected a decided cure.

This is a purely vegetable compound, prepared on strictly scientific principles, after the manner of the celebrated Holland Professor, Berhave. Its reputation at home produced its introduction here, the demand commencing with those of the Fairbanks scattered over the face of this mighty country, many of whom brought with them and handed down the tradition of its value. It is now offered to the American public, knowing that its truly scientific medicinal virtues must be acknowledged.

It is particularly recommended to those persons whose constitutions may have been impaired by the excessive use of ardent spirits, or other forms of dissipation. Generally instantaneous in effect, it finds its way directly to the seat of life, thrilling and quickening every nerve, raising up the drooping spirit, and, in fact, infusing new health and vigor into the system.

Whichever effects to find this a beverage will be disappointed; but to the sick, weak and low spirited, it will prove a grateful aromatic cordial, commencing singular remedial progress.

READ CAREFULLY!

The Genuine highly concentrated Berhave's Holland Bitters is put up in half-pint bottles only, and retailed at ONE DOLLAR per bottle, or six bottles for FIVE DOLLARS. The great demand for this cure, which has been made by many imitations, which the public should guard against purchasing.

Beware of Impostors. Generally, their name is on the label of every bottle you buy.

Sold by Druggists generally. It can be forwarded by Express to most points.

Wolfe's Pure Scotch and Irish Whiskey.

ALL IN BOTTLES.

I BEG leave to call the attention of the citizens of the United States to the above Wines and Liquors, imported by Udolpho Wolfe, of New York, whose name is familiar in every part of this country for the purity of the quality of the Scotch Whisky, Schnapapps, Mr. Wolfe, in his letter to me, speaking of the purity of his Wines and Liquors, says: "I will stick to my reputation as a man, my standing in an elaborate description of this merchant's extensive business, although it will repay any advantage or effort to visit Udolpho Wolfe's extensive warehouse, Nos. 15, 17, 19 and 21, Beaver street, and Nos. 17, 19 and 21, Marketfield street. His stock of Schnapapps on hand ready for shipment, could not have been placed in three months; such cases of the Brandy some ten thousand cases. Cases of 1826 to 1829; and ten thousand cases of Madeira, Sherry and Port Wine, Scotch and Irish whiskey, Jamaica and St. Croix Rum, some very old and equal to any in this country. He also had three large cellars, filled with Brandy, Wine, &c., in cases under the Custom House key ready for loading. Mr. Wolfe's sales of Schnapapps last year amounted to one hundred and eighty thousand dozen, and we hope in less than a year he may be equally successful with his Brandy and Wines."

His business merits the patronage of every lover of his species. Private families who wish pure Wines and Liquors for medicinal purposes should send their orders direct to Mr. Wolfe, until every Apothecary in the land make up their minds to discard the paltry stuff from their shelves, and replace it with Wolfe's pure Wine and Liquors.

We understand Mr. Wolfe, for the accommodation of small dealers in the country, puts up assorted cases of Wines and Liquors. Such a man, and such a merchant, should be sustained against his tens of thousands of opponents in the United States, who sell nothing but imitations, runners alike to human health and happiness.
