The following remarks were made by Col. John Hamilton, at the Union Meeting recently held in the Town Hall :

"The Union must and shall be preserved."-This is the motto at the head of the call of this meeting. The object, I presume is to carry out the spirit of the above assertion, or, to contribute our share towards it. Must and shall are strong words, and are generally only used by Kings, or persons who wield su preme authority, or by persons in a collective capacity, having power to carry out resolutions embodying their arbitrary will. We can claim no such prerogatives; we meet as the citizens of one of the central counties of this peaceful community. What can we do towards carrying out the determination to save the Union, expressed at the head of the call for this meeting. The President of the United States is commander in chief of all the national forces, and until he gives the word, not a man can move in a legal way towards the scene of disturbance. The troops of Pennsylvania cannot march towards the south, except in certain extreme contingen cies, if even treason were to stalk abroad at noonday. We have therefore no possible lawful means of coercing any of our sister states, even if we felt a desire to do so. To coax or flatter our southern brethren to lovalty, would only excite their ridicule and de rision. Too often sycophantic concessions and submissions, which are not ours to give, or which we do not feel called upon to make, would not only depreciate our own manliness, but excite their contempt. Were we to pass resolutions withdrawing all our objections to the institution of slavery, they must justly suspect our sincerity.

If we were to pass a resolution admitting that we had been injuring and oppressing the south for forty years, and henceforward agree to do so no more, they would laugh at our toadyism and despise our lick of veracity.

What can we do to conciliate our brethren and convince them of our good will towards them, and of our sincere wish to preserve the union of all the States? The only way in my estimation is to speak out boldly and firmly the words of truth and soberness, and convince the people of the south, as far as truth, honestly expressed will go, that we are friends of the south, and of the whole Union, now and to the latest generations. In this country, heretofore, all power seems to have existed in the public sentiment of the nation. When any great national question was to be decided, a public sentiment, strong enough to carry it through, had to be formed, or the project failed. The contest now go ing on, is perhaps, the most important that ever agitated the country, and the reason it cannot be peacefully settled undoubtedly is, that public opinion is so decided and the gen eral public sentiment so weak and distracted that every project fails, and will continue to fail, until the people rally together and think in one channel and act in unison in carrying out the great principles of the constitution. If therefore, you can do anything, or say anything here to day, that will have a tendency to direct the minds of the people to think rightly and act rightly, and thus form a pube sentiment in favor of peace and union, we will be doing all that is legitimately in our power to do at this stage of our national af fairs. Pennsylvania has always been loyal to our glorious Union, with the exception of the small rebellion in 1794, called the whis key insurrection, in some of the western inties. And in that case, to her honor be it said, as soon as Washington sent fifteer thousand men there, the rebels all submitted without the firing of a gun. She has suffered much and long, by the neglect of her sister States, in not giving her that protection she needed for the development of her great resources. But during har long year of suffer-ing, she has borne it with the greatest pa we and fortitude. She has never made a threat to secede, and arrange her own laws so as to afford her that protection denied her by those holding the power. Her only weapop of resistance is the ballot box, and the only balls she over expects to fire at her brethren are paper balls. And when she is victorious in that kind of warfare, she has a right to expect all her sister States to stand firm with her in the bonds of the Union. cur southern brethren are willing to act on that principle, there will be no secession necessary to redress wrongs, either fancied or We may do something towards satisfying the south, and disabusing that unkind hat red which exists there towards us, by repeal ing any laws on our statute books which throw obstacles in the way of the proper execution of the fugitive slave law, and pledge our selves that we will abide by these provisions of the constitution as expounded by the proper authorities for the time being, as long as they are in force. We may pledge ourselves legally to respect their rights of property in slaves, and agree that we will not interfere with it wherever it at present exists, and meet them half way at least, in the arrangement of any real grievance they wish to have adjusted. This is all we, as Pennsylvanians, can and will doubtles do, in order to satisfy our southern brethren, if they meet us in a spirit of true fraternal compromise. This all being done, and perhaps more than I have specified, there is one thing more we can do, and that is the one great sovereign remedy for all our social and political exils. It is humiliation before God, and devout prayer to Him that he will overrule all our difficulties for good, and incline all our hearts to do that which is right and just in his sight. It must be admitted that the people of this nation have sinned greatly before high heaven.— And no doubt, it is on this account that we public opinion! are undergoing a severe punishment at the hands of that God against whom we have sinned. It is necessary that we should be made to see our condition before him and be brought to a hearty repentance. This is all that we can propose to do, and when every advance is made, and every effort southern brethren still persist in destroying this fair fabric, creeted by our fathers, and handed down to us as a priceless legacy. then indeed, will it be a dark day for ear Re-public. Our country's past, present and fu-ture, have afforded the orator materials for W public. Our country's past, present and fu-ture, have afforded the maternais for his eloquent orations, and perorations, and the poet a theme for his patriotic lays, and in all countries and climes, has our country been looked upon as the wonder of all ages. Shall it be broken, and blotted over, for the slight causes which seem to be impelling South Carolina to her doom, and this whole nation to disruption and dishonor, or will the secessionists stop in their mad career and calculate the value of the Union, and their own best interests, before they take the last and fatal plunge. Astronomers have, from time to time, discovered many new stars in the heavenly constellation, but they have never discovered the Saturday spot where a star had been blotted out. Our fathers formed the constellation of the 13 original stars on the American Flag, which have Monday een revolving around the common centre of the constitution, for seventy years. New stars have also been discovered, and are now revolving with them in the glorious galaxy. to the number of thirty three on the old flag of our glorious Union.

Next to the love for the kingdom of Heaven, there is no love stronger in the American heart, than the love of the Union. It is part of his very being. He drank it from his mother's breast, and his soul is interwoven with it through all the gradations of his existence. Shall one star be blotted from that flag, which is the idol of his soul? And if the unhappy day sha'l ever come, when this love of Union is to be tested, you will find that the wa'ch word of every true Pennsylvan ian will be-" it must and shall be preserved. You will find that they who are for it, are more than they who are against it. When our eyes are fairly opened, we will discover that the mountains of Pennsylvania are filled with horsemen and charlots of fire, and the valleys and plains below with veritable living men, with armor gleaming in the sunlight, rush-ing to the rescue of that seceding star, with as much eagerness as the Crusaders rushed to the rescue of the "Holy Sepulchre." Shall a star be torn from that "Old Flag." No Shall never, until the constitution is forced from its throne of Empire, and the "Old Flag" torn from the dome of the Capitol, and trampled in the dust by an arm that is strong or than ours. Shall any one of the States secede from the Union without the consent of a constitutional majority? No, never, never, as the Lord God Omnipotent reigneth.

TRUTH FITLY SPOKEN.

The Cambridge (Md.) Intelligencer of the 7th December, contains the following sensible and truthful statement in regard to the present condition of the country .---We stated, some weeks ago, that the true danger to the South from Abolitionism, was not at all owing to the efforts and fury of fanatics in the North, but to the false statements and misrepresentations made in the presence and hearing of the negroes, by Democratic orators in regard to the views, policy and intention of the Republican party." It is gratifying to find the proof of this in the evidence of our cotemporary, who speaks from knowledge, and in view of the fact :

The true Cause of all our trouble .---President Buchanan thinks he points out the true cause of all our present political troubles at the South when he holds the following language in his message :

"The immediate peril arises from the fact that the incessant and violent agitation of the slavery question throughout the North for the last quarter of a century has at length produced its malign influence on the slaves and inspired them with vague notions of free dom. Hence a sense of security no longer exists around the family altar. The feeling f peace at home has given place to apprehen ns of servile insu: rection

Painting a White Girl to Make Her a Slave.

One day last week a gentleman of this city hailed an up country boat, the Cora Anderson, as she was passing Greenville. Miss., whither he had gone on business, to return home. Shortly after being under way our Natchez friend observed a rensive looking little girl, aged 9 or 10 years, whose black hair and yellowish brown skin would indicate that she was a mulattress. There was something about her that interested him, and he inquired of the captain concerning her. He was informed that she was a slave, belonging to a man on board, whom the captain pointed out, who said he was taking her to New Orleans to sell her, he having bought her for $160 in north western Missouri, on the borders. Our Natchez friend eyed the little girl and the border man so closel" as to attract the attention of the latter, with whom he was soon engaged in conversation concerning the child, interrogating him in such a man ner as to elict answers not always agreeing with previous statements and evidently alarming him. This was suspicious The little girl was taken aside and examined. She said she was an orphan, and had been taken from an asylum in New York, by this man ; that her hair was light and her complexion brunette; that this man told her he was going to the South with her, where as his adopted child, she would have a good home ; that black hair was preferred in the South, and prettier than hers, and that he had taken her to a barber and had her hair dyed black. He also told her that if she would allow him to put some yellow dye on her skin that her complexion would be come much whiter in a few days, and that he had put the stain on. On hearing this the girl was taken charge of by the captain, and potash, soap, and water being applied, the dyes were taken off, and the light hair and light complexion brought to light. The pretended master was seized by the excited passengers, who were about to deal with him summarily, but it was finally arranged to lock him up in a state-room un-

The picture of insecurity is correct, but he signally fails in his discrimination of the cause. It is not the agitation at the North which excites our slaves and alarms our citizens. It is the agitation of the subject in the South which we have cause to dread. The Democratic party is the true source of our present troubles. It is the Democratic speeches and papers which have excited our negroes. They never hear anything from the Northern Abolitionists .-Their notions of freedom have been gained through Democratic sources. They hear the Democratic speeches, they read Democratic papers. These teem with incendiary assertions about negro suffrage and equality which the success of the Republicans would bring about. We know that in this county the Democrats have repeatedly declared, upon the stump and in the presence of negroes, that if the Republicans were elected the negroes would be set at liberty, be permitted to vote, and would marry our daughters. It is only a few days since that we heard the very leader of the party in this county declare in our public streets and in the presence of some negroes, who were standing by, that the Republicans intended to let the negroes vote. Those who hear the incendiary declarations of those men communicate them to the rest of their color, and when their expectations are so excited that they become aroused to violence, we are told that the Republicans have done it-that the Northern agitation is the true source of our trouble. Let the responsibility rest where it belongs. The Northern agitators have had no hand in the matter. The agitation might go on at the North until doomsday without any injury to our slaves. Our negroes never read the Northern papers, nor hear the Northern orators. They read these things from Democratic papers, and hear them from Democratic speakers. We fasten on them, therefore, the charge of being the authors of our calamities. Letthe Union men, all over the country, hold them responsible for their crime at the bar of

The Charleston Fortifications .- An Engineer Officer gives the following statement of the distances of the forts from Charleston city and from each other :

Fort Sumter is three and three-eighths miles from Charleston, one and one-eighth miles from Fort Moultrie, three-quarters of a mile to the nearest land, one and threeeighths miles to Fort Johnson, and two and five-eighths miles to Castle Pinckney. The last named fort is one mile from the town, and Fort Johnson is two and a quarter miles from the town.
