It is a new and untried article, but one that has stood the test of a twelve years' trial before the American people, and its reputation and sale are unrivaled by any similar preparations extant. The testimony in its favor given by the most prominent and well known physicians and individuals in all parts of the country is immense, and a careful perusal of the almanac, published annually by the proprietors, and to be had gratis of any of their agents, cannot but satisfy the most sceptical, that this remedy is really deserving the great celebrity it has obtained.

WAR NEWS.

The arrest of the notorious conspirator and traitor, Kane, Police Marshal of Baltimore, and subsequently of the four Police Commissioners, augurs favorably for the peace of that city. In Kane's principal station house, cannon, muskets, rifles, guns, ammunition, and almost everything connected with war material, were found stowed away in the cellar, under the floors, and between the ceilings. Among other things was a 12 pound ball labeled "from Fort Sumter to Col. Kane." The city is now in military possession, and Gen. Banks declares he will hold it until loyal men are appointed to office.
Several skirmishes have occurred at different points between scouts, in which our troops turned the game on the traitors by shooting them down. At Mathias Point, on the Potomac, Captain Ward, of the Navy, was killed in a foolish attempt to construct a battery with a few men, when a regiment or two at least ought to have been there.
Our opinion is that decisive measures will not be adopted until Congress, which meets on the 4th, will sanction the war measures adopted by the Government.—Vandalism, of Ohio, and a few other democratic Tories will no doubt endeavor to oppose the Government, but the main body of the members, without distinction of party, will go for the enforcement of the laws.

DESPERATE SKIRMISH.
Official Report of Col. Wallace.
WASHINGTON, June 28.—Lieutenant Gen. Scott to day received the following dispatch: CUMBERLAND, June 27.
To General McClellan:
I have been accustomed to sending my mounted pickets, of thirteen men in all, to different posts along the several approaches to Cumberland. Finding it next to impossible to get reliable information of the enemy, yesterday, I united the thirteen and directed them, if possible, to get to Frankford, a town midway between this place and Romney, to see if there were rebel troops there. They went within a quarter of a mile of the place and found it full of cavalry. Returning they overtook a party of 41 horsemen, and at once charged them, routing and driving them back more than a mile, killing eight of them and securing seventeen horses. Corporal Hays, in command of my men, was desperately wounded with sabre cuts and bullets.
In taking them back my men halted about an hour, and were then attacked by the enemy, who were reinforced to about seventy men. The attack was so sudden that they abandoned the horses and crossed to a small island at the mouth of Patterson Creek. The charge of the rebels was bold and confident, yet twenty three fell under the fire of my pickets, close about and on the island.
My fellows were finally driven off, and scattering each man for himself they are all in camp now. One of them, Corporal Hayes, is wounded but recovering. Another of the party, John C. Hillingbrook, is dead. Three companies went to the ground this morning and recovered everything belonging to my picket except a few of their horses. The enemy were engaged all night in boxing up their dead. Two of their officers were killed, and they laid out twenty-three on the porch of a neighboring farm house! I will bury my poor fellow to-morrow.

I have positive information, gained to day, that there are four regiments of rebels in and about Romney, under Col. McDonald. What their particular object is I cannot learn.
The two Pennsylvania regiments are encamped at the State line, nine miles from here, waiting further orders. They have not yet reported to me. They hesitate about invading Maryland.
The report of the skirmish sounds like fiction, but is not exaggerated. The fight was really one of the most desperate on record, and abounds with instances of wonderful daring and coolness.

ARMY HYMN.
TUNE—Old Hundred.
O Lord of Hosts! Almighty King!
Behold the sacrifice we bring!
To every arm Thy strength impart,
Thy spirit shed through every heart!
Wake in our breasts the living fires,
The holy faith that warmed our sires;
Thy hand hath made our Nation Free;
To die for her in serving Thee.
Be Thou a pillar'd flame to show
The midnight snare, the silent foe;
And when the battle thunders loud,
Still guide us in its moving cloud.
God of all nations! Sovereign Lord!
In Thy dread name we draw the sword,
We lift the starry flag on high
That fills with light our stormy sky.
From treason's rent, from murder's stain
Command thou its pests all! Peace shall reign—
Till fort and field, till shore and sea
Join our loud anthem, PRaise to Thee!

The Child Witness.

The following beautiful illustration of simplicity and truth, is from the pen of S. H. Hammond, formerly editor of the Albany State Register. He was an eye witness to the scene, which took place in one of our highest courts.
A little girl, nine years of age, was offered as a witness against a prisoner who was on trial for a felony committed in her father's house.
'Now, Emily,' said the counsel for the prisoner, upon her being offered as a witness, 'I desire to know whether you know the nature of an oath?'
'I don't know what you mean,' was the simple answer.
'There, your honor,' said the counsel, addressing the court, 'is anything further necessary to demonstrate the validity of my objection? This witness should be rejected.' She does not know the nature of an oath.'
'Let us see,' said the Judge. 'Come here, my daughter.'
Assured by the kind tone and manner of the Judge, the child stepped towards him and looked confidently up in his face, with a calm, clear eye, and in a manner so artless and frank that it went straight to the heart.
'Did you ever take an oath?' inquired the Judge. The little girl stepped back with a look of horror, and the red blood mantled in a blush all over her face and neck as she answered:
'No sir.'
She thought he had intended to inquire if she had ever blasphemed.
'I did not mean that,' said the Judge, who saw her mistake. 'I mean were you ever a witness before?'
'No sir, I never was in court before,' was the answer.
He handed her an open Bible.
'Do you know that book, my daughter?' She looked at it and answered:
'Yes sir, it is the Bible.'
'Do you ever read it?' he asked.
'Yes sir, every evening.'
'Can you tell me what the Bible is?' inquired the Judge.
'It is the word of the great God,' said she.
'Well, place your hand upon this Bible, and listen to what I say,' and he repeated slowly and solemnly the oath usually administered to witnesses.
'Now,' said the Judge, 'you are sworn as a witness: will you tell me what will befall you if you do not tell the truth?'
'I will be shut up in the State Prison,' answered the child.
'Anything else?' asked the Judge.
'I shall never go to Heaven,' she replied.
'How do you know this?' asked the Judge again.
The child took the Bible and turned rapidly to the chapter containing the commandments, and pointed to the injunction, 'Thou shalt not bear false witness against thy neighbor.' 'I learned that before I could read.'
'Has any one talked with you about being a witness here in court against this man?' inquired the Judge.
'Yes sir,' she replied. 'My mother heard that they wanted me to be a witness, and last night she called me to her room and asked me to tell her the Ten Commandments, and then we knelt down together, and she prayed that I might understand how wicked it was to bear false witness against my neighbor, and that God would help me, a little child, to tell the truth as it was before him. And when I came up here with father, she kissed me, and told me to remember the Ninth Commandment, and that God would hear every word I said.'
'Do you believe this?' asked the Judge, while a tear glistened in his eye, and his lip quivered with emotion.
'Yes sir,' said the child, with a voice and manner that showed her conviction of its truth was perfect.
'God bless you, my child,' said the Judge; 'you have a good mother. The witness is competent,' he continued.—'Were I on trial for my life, and innocent of the charge against me I would pray God for such witnesses as this. Let her be examined.'
She told her story with the simplicity of a child, as she was, but there was a distinctness about it that carried conviction of its truth to every heart. She was rigidly cross examined. The counsel plied her with infinite and ingenious questionings, but she varied from her first statement in nothing. The truth as spoken by that little child was sublime. Falsehood and perjury had preceded her testimony. The prisoner had intrenched himself in lies till he deemed himself impregnable. Witnesses had falsified facts in his favor, and villainy had manufactured for him a sham defense. But before her testimony falsehood was scattered like chaff. The little child for whom a mother had prayed for strength, to be given her to speak the truth as it was before God, broke the common devices of matured villainy to pieces like a potter's vessel. The strength that her mother prayed for was given her, and the sublime simplicity—terrible I mean to the prisoner and his associates—with whom she spoke was a revelation from God himself.

Dying Nations.

Why do nations die? Cultivated Greece and all-conquering Rome. Vandal, and Goth, and Hun, and Moor, and Pole, and Turk, all dead or dying. Why? Murdered by nations more powerful? Swallowed up by earthquakes? Swept away by pestilence and plague, or starved by pitiless famine? Not by any of these.—Not by the lightning and thunder; not by the prisoned air of volcanic fires did they die! They perish by moral degradation; the legitimate result of gluttony, intemperance and effeminacy. When a nation becomes rich, there is leisure and the means of indulging in the appetites of passions of our nature, which waste the body and wreck the mind. As with nations, so with families. Wealth takes away the wholesome stimulus of effort, idleness opens the flood-gates of passionable indulgence, and the heirs of millions die heirless and poor, and both name and memory ingloriously rot.
If, then, there is any truth and force in argument, each man owes to himself, to his country, and more than all to his Maker, to live a life of temperance, industry and self-denial as in every animal gratification, and with these, having an eye to the glory of God, this nation of ours will live with increasing prosperity and renown, until with one foot on land and another on sea, the angel of eternity proclaims time is no more.

To cure us of our immoderate love of gain we should seriously consider how many goods there are that money will not purchase, and these the best; and how many evils there are that money will remedy, and these the worst. An ancient philosopher of Athens, where the property of the wealthy was open to the confiscations of the informer, consoled himself for the loss of his fortune by the following reflection: I have lost my money, and with it my cares; for when I was rich, I was afraid of every poor man, but now that I am poor, every rich man is afraid of me.

If men were compelled to give a reason for everything which they profess to believe, one of two things is certain: either reasons would become more abundant than they are in the present day, or doctrines would be fewer.
