NATURAL HISTORY.

The Painted Bunting

Is found in Lower Louisiana, where it is universally known among the French inhabitants, and called by them 'Le Rapei,' and by the Americans the Nonpareil. Its gay dress and docility of manners have procured it many admirers; for these qual-ities are highly attractive, and always carry their own recommendation along with them. The low countries of the southern states, in the vicinity of the sea and along the borders of our large rivers, particularly among the rice plantations, are the favorite haunts of this elegant little bird. A few are seen in North Carolina; they are more numerous in South Carolina, and still more so in Georgia. Their notes very much resemble those of the indigo bird, but want their strength and energy. These birds are domesticated at New Orleans, and is the most common cage bird they have. Six of these birds, says Wilson, which I brought with me from New Orleans by sea, soon became reconciled to the cage. In good weather, the males sung with great sprightliness. They were greedily fond of flies, which accompanied us in grea: numbers during the whole voyage; and many of the passengers amused themselves with catching them, and giving them to the nonpareils; till at length, the birds became so well acquainted with the amusement, that as soon as they saw any of the people attempting to eatch flies, they assembled at the front of the cage, stretch ing out their heads, evidently much interested in the issue of their success.

They build their nests in orange trees, and sometimes in blackberry bushes. They are formed of dry grass, and the silk of cat-erpillars, and lined with hair and fine roots. The plumage undergoes great changes, not being perfect till the fourth season. The head and neck of the male is of a rich purplish hue, the chin and lower parts are vermilion ; back glossy yellow, stained with green and sometimes with red; wings red; edged with green. It is seven inches and three fourths long. The female is of a green olive; the lower parts are light yellow. It is five inches and a half long.

The food of the painted bunting consists of rice, insects, and various kinds of seeds, among which are the seeds of ripe figs .----They frequent gardens, and chant occasionally during the whole summer. In the fall they retire to the south.

MISCELLANEOUS,

Miracle of Honesty .- At a party one evening, several contested the honor of having done the most extraordinary thing, and a reverend gentleman was appointed sole judge of their respective pretensions. One party produced his tailor's bill with s receipt attached to it. A buzz went through the room that this could not be outdone, when a second proved that he arrested his tailor for money loaned him. 'The palm is his,' was the general cry, but a third put in his claim. 'Gentlemen,' said he, 'I cannot boast of the feats of either of my predecessors, but I returned to the owners two umbrellas that they left at my house.'

'I'll hear no more,' cried the astonished arbitrator ; this is the very ne plus ultra of honesty and unheard of deeds ; it is an act of virtue of which I never knew one capable.

'Hold,' said another, 'I've done more

I have neared with it, in my practice, most of the com-plaints for which it is recommanded, and have found its effects truly wonderful in the sure of Vaccreal and Mer-curing bins. Che of my patients had Syphilitic ulcers in his throat, which were consuming his palate and the top of his mouth. Your Saraparilla, steadily taken, cured him in five weeks. Another was attacked by sec-ondary symptoms in his nose, and the ulcoration had set away a considerable part of it, so that I believe the disorder would soon reach his brain and Kill him. But it yielded to my administration of your Saraparilla; the ulcers headed, and her bused. Awoman who had been treated for the same disorder by morcury was suffering from this poison in her tones. They had become so sen-sitive to the wather that on a damp day site suffering from this poison in her joints and bones. She, t-o, was cured onirely by your Saraparilla in the weats. An intelligent lady whose little loy was beginning to swear, anxious to express to her child the horror of profanity, hit upon a novel plan of washing out his mouth with soap suds whenever he swore. It was an effectual cure. The boy understood his mother's sense of the corruption of an oath, which with the taste of the suds, produced the desired result. The practice if universally adopted, would raise the price of soap.

A Great Attainment .-- Ruskin says : Speaking the truth is like writing fair, and comes only by practice; it is less a matter of will than of habit; and I doubt if any occasion can be trivial which permits the practice and formation of such a habit. To speak the truth with constancy and precision, is nearly as difficult, and perhaps as meritorious, as to speak it under intimidation or penalty.'
