The National Finances.

The bill passed by the House of Representatives last week, authorizes the issue of demand Treasury notes without interest, to the amount of $150,000,000, of which 50,000,000 are to be in the lieu of the notes issued in July last, which are to be taken up as rapidly as possible. The notes are to be legal tender for all purposes .-The bill also authorizes the issue of 6 per cent. coupon bonds to the amount of $500,-000,000, redeemable at the pleasure of the Government after twenty years from date, the interest to be paid semi-annually. At no time except one of extreme danger, when the necessity was most urgent, could the passage of such a bill be urged. But every motive of patriotism and safety now demonstrates its utility. Its passage will strengthen the government for the work it is engaged in, will restore confidence among business men, and will ensure to the country a currency not liable to fluctuations according to the caprices of the banks and speculators. Among those most opposed to it are a few banks which suspend specie summary process of compelling them to wind up their affairs.

PROCEEDINGS OF CONGRESS.

The Senate passed (4th) a resolution of inquiry to the Secertary of War in relation to Gen. Lane's command in Kansas. The bill authorizing the construction of twenty iron-clad war steamers was taken up and recommitted to the Naval Committee .-During the debate it was stated that eight thousand shots had been fired by the Rebel batteries on the Potomac, and in only one instance had they inflicted serious damage upon a vessel. The case of Senator Bright was resumed and debated until the Senate went into executive session.

The House continued the discussion of the bill for the issue of treasury notes and constituting them a legal tender.

The Senate (5th)took up Mr. Carlile's resolution in relation to the finances and the imposition of taxes and referred it to the Committee on Finance. The case of Senator Bright was resumed and the resolution of expulsion passed by the requisite majority of two-thirds-yeas 32, nays 14. The vote was as follows:

The House continued the discussion, in Committee of the Whole, of the Treasury Note bill. Mr. Spaulding moved to limit the debate, stating that the Secretary of the Treasury had informed him that it was absolutely necessary to press the bill to a vote. The Committee refused to rise and the discussion of the bill was continued until the House adjourned.

The Senate (6th) discussed the bill relative to the pay and emoluments of army officers, Mr. Sherman moved an amendment to reduce the mileage, contingent fees, &c., of Members of Congress. The amendment was adopted. A further amenement, proposed by Mr. Doolittle, providing for the reduction of mileage fifty per cent., the computation to be made by the shortest route, was also adopted, and the bill laid

WARNEWS.

From the West we have the announcement of another important success of the National arms. Fort Henry on the Tennessee river has fallen, the rebel force there has been put to an inglorious rout, the railroad between Bowling Green and Columbus is in our possession, and the National banner is again planted upon the soil of Tennessee. Though this victory appears to have been cheaply won, the main body of the rebels precipitately retreating when their artillerists were shelled out of the Fort by the gunboats, its results, in a stragetical point, are even more important than those of the victory at Somerset .-It gives to our forces the possession of the Tennessee river, by which a way into the interior of the State is opened; it breaks the communication between Bowling Green and Columbus and threatens the rebel forces at both these points with a flank movement .-A similar expedition up the Cumberland will secure possession of Fort Donelson, and with the command of both rivers the communication between Nashville and Bowling Green will be broken, thus forcing the rebels there to retreat or come out of their entrenchments

The expedition against Fort Henry consisted of seven gunboats under the immediate command of Com. Foote, and from eight to ten thousand men under command of Gen. U. S. Grant. The Fort was subdued entirely by the gunboats after less than two hours bombardment. The artillerists in the Fort, with the command r of the post, Gen. Lloyd Tilghman, formerly of Maryland, were taken prisoners. The rebel infantry, encamped outside of the Fort, and said to number four or five thousand, when the Fort surrendered precipitately fled, leaving behind a large amount of camp equipage and ammunition. The Fort was bravely defended, but the concentrated fire of the gunboats, delivered to wards the close of the action at a distance of only three hundred yards, could not be successfully resisted Gen. Tilghman in surrendering spoke of the defeat as the most serious disaster of the war. The gunboat Cincinnati, Com. Foote's flag ship, received thirty shots, but continued the fight until the end. The most serious damage on our side was received by the gunboat Essex. A round shot killed her second in command, Capt. Britain, and penetrating one of her boilers caused it to explode, by which a number of her crew were scalded to death and others jumping overboard were drowned. The Cincinnati had one killed and six wounded .-There were no casualties on the other boats. The conduct of the crews of the gunboats was splendid. They fought with the great est spirit and without a man flinching.

The unfortunate town of Harper's Ferry was again the scene of stiring events on Fri day, resulting in the greater portion of it being reduced to ashes. A Rebel flag of truce having approached the river, a boat was sent over to them, which was fired upon and one of the boatmen killed. Colonel Geary imme diately ordered the shelling of the houses in which the Rebel riflemen were concealed, in cluding the Wager Hotel, all of which were subsequently burned. Anothed Rebel flag afterwards approached the river, but Colonel General Lander has again occupied Romney, Virginia, with the Federal forces, the Fourth. For treacherous design to expose his force to capture and destruction by the had not been given.

Fifth. A court martial will be speedily ordered.

Despatches from West Tennessee state that our forces were still encamped in the vicinity of Fort Henry, but preparations for further movements were progressing. Five additional regiments had been ordered to rendezvous there. The Rebels who fled from Fort Henry are at Fort Donelson, and the whole force there is supposed to be from eight to ten thousand. steamer Orr was chased by our gunboats and burned by the Rebels. About noon, Commodore Lynch got his Musquito flotilla under way, and came down Curri-tuck Sound to assist his rebel friend, Gen. Wise, on the island.

The Federal gun-boats then directed their fire upon the gun-boats commanded by Lynch, and at five o'clock yesterday afternoon three rebel gun-boats had been sunk, two were captured, one of which had a Commodore's pennant flying during the action, and the rest dispersed in every di-

The firing ceased at dark last night, but was recommenced with increased vigor and effect this morning, and kept up until about eight o'clock, when it is supposed the rebel forces on the Island surrendered.

A fireman on board the Selden said that the Federal troops had been landed in large numbers on Roanoke Island, and that the Stars and Stripes could be seen at Elizabeth City flying over the Confederate batteries. It was rumored in Norfolk this morning, that three regiments had been recently sent to Roanoke Island, and that as there is no chance for escape, the probability is that they were all captured.

The rebels acknowledge that the only obstacles of importance to retard General Burnside's march inland and upon Norfolk will be the natural ones of swamps, marshes, sickness, &c.

The rebels feel their recent defeats very sensibly, and are growing desperate in their

PATENT COAL OIL GREASE.

THIS Grease is made from COAL OIL and has been found by repeated tests to be the most economical, and at the same time the best lubricator for Mill Gearing, Stages, Wagons, Carts, Carriages, Vehicles of all kinds, and all heavy bearings, keeping the axles always cool, and not requiring them to be looked after for weeks. It has been tested on railroad cars, and with one soaking of the waste it has run, with the cars, 20,000 miles! All railroad, omnibus, livery stable and Express companies that have tried it pronounce it the ne plus ultra. It combines the body and fluidity of tallow, beeswax and tar, and unlike general lubrica tors, will not run off, it being warranted to
