[From the Working Farmer for May.] Scarlet Geraniums.

It is not generally known with what ease this beautiful class of plants can be cultivated. No one who will exercise a little care, need be without such a bed of them as will furnish a glowing mass of bloom throughout the summer. With proper management, they will bloom quite as freely as the verbena; while their compact habit of growth gives them a much finer effect in masses. Their large, brilliant truss of blocm, makes them a very desirable flower for bouquets, and they are always fragrant. They still retain the name of Scarlet or Horseshoe geranium, but recent seedlings have given a great variety of colors, from the most brilliant scarlet down to a creamy white. They seed freely when placed in the open ground, and the self-sown seeds will come up on beds that have lain unproteeted and much frozen during the winter. Cuttings, also, can be struck from them more readily than from almost any plant. Any broken branch or slip that you cut from the plant and thrust into a light soil during the summer, will be almost certain to root, in many cases not even requiring shade. They must be taken up before the heavy frosts, and removed to a pit, or a dry cellar, where a place near the window should be given them; or they may have a place upon a plant stand in the parlor .-When the plants have become overgrown during the summer, the necessary 'cutting in,' at the time of lifting, may prove a severe shock; but they will endure more than almost any plant, their succulent nature giving them a large share of vitality. The better way is to give them only so much food and moisture as will keep them of moderate size; for they thus give a better mass of bloom, and less rank foliage. It allowed, in rampant growth, a single plant will cover a space of three or four feet in diameter in a season. If the seeds are planted in autumn, and nursed in pots in the house or conservatory during the winter, they will bloom the following season, and many new varieties are thus obtained A garden near us had a separate bed given to each of five different varieties, last summer, viz: searlet, crimson, pink, salmon and white; and the effect was very fine. King of Scarlets, Trentham Rose, and Princess Alice, are among the best varieties .- Ohio Farmer.

This is a purely vegetable compound, prepared on strictly Holland Professor, Boerhave. Its reputation at home produced its introduction here, the demand commencing with those of the Fatherland scattered over the face of this mighty country, many of whom brought with them and handed down the tradition of its value. It is now offered to the American public, knowing that its truly woonlorful medicinal virtues must be acknowledged.

It is particularly recommended to those persons whose constitutions may have been impaired by the continuous use of ardent spirits, or other forms of dissipation. Generally instantaneous in effect, it finds its way directly to the seat of life, thrilling and quicksning every nerve, raising up the drooping spirit, and, in fact, lutusing new health and vigor

The Proprietor in calling the attention of this preparation, does so with a feeling of the utmost confidence in its virtues and adaptation to the diseases for which it is recommended.

It is no new and qutried article, but one that has stood the test of 'à twelve years' trial before the American people, and its reputation and sale are univalled by any similar preparations extant. The testimony in its favor given by the most prominent and well known physicians and individuals in all parts of the country is immense, and a careful perusal of the almanac, published annually by the proprietors, and to be had gratis of any of their agents, cannot but satisfy the most skeptical that this remedy is really deserving the great celebrity it has obtained.
