LOCAL AFFAIRS.

TEMPERANCE LECTURE. -The Rev. Geo. Elliott of Reedsville, will lecture on temperance on Friday evening next, at the Town Hall. The public are invited to attend, as the subject will no doubt be ably discussed.

The Slemmer Guards, a body of young men who had undergone creditable drilling, turned out a respectable number ready to respond to the call of the Governor. With the recruits obtained yesterday about fifty would have been ready to proceed to Harrisburg this morning, but the orders having been countermanded-no more troops having been needed-the youngsters will have to go back to sticking types, sowing broadcloth, measuring tape, &c. Tory papers and tory addresses may talk as much as they please about this being a republican or abolition war, every emergency that occurs shows it to be the People's war.

An arbitration of some magnitude came off on Friday and Saturday last, which created considerable interest, not only from the counsel employed and the amount of damages claimed, but its novelty, the suit having been founded on the ground that two of the directors of the Mifflin county Bank had not voted in the board as was alleged they had agreed to do with an outside party. The plantiff was John Sterrett, who alleged that Ira Thompson and James M. Brown had agreed to vote for certain parties to take an interest in said Bank, in place of certain parties to go out-that in pursuance of this agreement he had spent both time and money in fulfilling his part, but that then the detendants failed to carry out the programme. The arbitrators were Gen. Jno. Ross, C. Hoover Esq., and Major Buoy, who, after a patient hearing of two days, awarded no cause of action. Mr. S. we believe attributes his want of success to a lady who refused to attend as witness.

Letters from Hayti continue to be of a contradictory character-one part describing their situation as agreeable and improving, while some of the others think they have got into a young h-1. Charley Nesbit we learn has 16 acres of land, with a soil 6 or 7 feet deep, which he is getting under cultivation, and has a house built of mahogany! Think of that, ye dwellers of rat holes! Others are getting along well, while the lazy niggers probably live as they Connelsburg, Fulton county, where nearly impossible?" all the windows in the place fronting the storm were shivered. The young leaves and shoots were badly cut from the trees, and the ground covered several inches deep with hail stones, some of which were from one to three inches in diameter, and weighed several ounces. The grainfields in the pathway of the storm also suffered much injury. Hail continued to fall in parts of Juniata county but much lessened in size, and thence passed eastward near Belltown towards the Susquehanna.

Some anxiety has been manifested te know whether the Logan Guards were in the battles under Gen. Banks, but to the time of writing this paragraph no advices had been received from them. It is barely possible they were with Gen. Shields.

The following letter from Capt. Taylor to A. P. Blymyer notices the death of David A. Baker, an estimable young man, who we believe was wounded by the discharge of a gun barrel while being heated in the fire:

CAMP BOYER, May 18, 1862. Dear Sir-David A. Baker died on Friday evening. We had the means ready to send him home, and intended doing so, but when Washington he was in such a condition it was an utter impossibility to do it. We could not get a metalic case here, and almost an impossibility to get one of any kind.

We buried him yesterday in the burying ground at Falmouth, and gave him as respec-table a funeral as he could possibly have had at home. His death has cast a gloom over the whole company, as he was one of our very best men; never since he has been with us has he made a complaint nor been on the sick list, but has always been ready for duty.

When we went on picket on Saturday, he was working at the Forge; he came, and wished to accompany us, as we expected some skirmishing. He went, returned to his work in the morning, and that same evening when the attack was again made on the pickets, he was the first to volunteer to go, stood all night and the next day through a drenching rain, was at work at the anvil next morning, when he received his death wound. It will be im possible to remove him for a time at least.

We learn by information received from Missouri that Daniel Mummy, formerly residing near Milroy, was killed by a guerrilla while taking his horses to a watering place a few weeks ago. The cutthroat lay concealed in a house and shot Mr. M. while seated on his horse. He leaves a wife (whose maiden name was Huffnagle,) a mother-in-law and two or three children, to lament his assassination by one of Davis, Breckinridge & Co's. hell-

A letter from James Beatty, addressed to Geo. W. Elder, Esq., gives full particulars of this inhuman murder.

MILAN, SULLIVAN Co., Mo., May 17, '62. Dear Sir-Our friend Daniel Mummy was most barbarously murdered in the afternoon or evening of the 13th inst. by a noted Guerrilla captain and his accomplices. This man's family lived near Mr. Mummy, and the latter having occasion to pass that way was ambushed and shot, and then robbed of everything about his person, even his pock-etknife and hat. I received intelligence of the murder in a half or three quarters of an hour after it had taken place, and immediatewent armed with a rifle and revolver, to see ly went armed with a rine and revolved, if I could find the assassins. I came in sight of two of them about one hundred yards or less from where they had dragged the body of Mummy. They were making off when I or-dered them to halt. They answered, "We will halt you, G-d d-n you"-and then one said, "Captain, form the line." I immediately fired on them with my rifle, but as it was getting quite dark missed them. They then ran into the bushes, where I could not follow them. I then went home and got a horse, and in a few hours raised fifteen or twenty neighbors, well armed, and then went to search for the body of Mummy, which we found in a most shocking condition, shot through the body and neck, though still breathing; he never spoke afterwards, and died in a few hours. It is said the murderers stole some horses that night and made off to the west or hours. southwest.

My life has been threatened by the same band, and I am compelled to arm myself to the teeth whenever I go from home. How shaping this war: long this state of things will continue God only knows, but I hope that the strong arm of the Government will soon bring peace again, and then the villains who are threaten ing to destroy us must seek safety in flight, or if they remain receive the punishment they justly deserve.

Very respectfully, yours, &c., JAMES BEATTY.

We have received the following letter, addressed to a gentleman on duty in Virginia, for publication:

The young men of Lewistown will recollect William F. D. McCarty, son of John McCarty, who lived in the old log house which stood where Doctor Worrall's house now stands. His wife was a blind woman, and was led about the streets by her children. Her husband was a hard working man, and with his worldly goods in a hand cart started for Ohio, where, by the industry of himself and boys, he secured a home for his family, on a snug farm. This was some twelve years ago. Fired by the patriotic ardor of the men of the West, John and his two sons John and William joined the army of freedom -the two former going | he will visit upon them evils of which they to Tennessee, the latter to Virginia. We may all learn a lesson of wisdom from these to effect his ends, perhaps even by giving facts, and the people of Lewistown at least who saw John and his family starting on furnishes such cases, and when we consider foot with a hand cart for the West, will be that the Southerners are themselves now The storm which partly passed over disposed to believe that "we should never teaching their slaves to construct fortifica-Lewistown on Wednesday evening last (but despair"-"where there's a will there's a tions, the use of cannon and other firearms, without hail here) was severely felt at Mc- | way"-and "with a brave heart nothing is

CAMP WINFIELD SCOTT, VA.

May 3, 1862. }
Dear Sir—You may think it almost presumptuous in me to address you But when I was informed of your being in Alexandria, I said I would write to you. And as I have always made it a rule to fulfil my promise, if possible, I seat myself to address these few lines to you, so I hope to be excused for my rudeness. The question may arise as to who I am? So before I proceed further, I will endeavor to make myself known to you. Well, while in Lewistown I was known by the name of William McCarty, and bear that name still -but if you do not recognize me by name, you will surely do so when I mention the fact of my mother being blind. And now, Doctor, I do not intend to weary you with a history of my life, since I left my pleasant home in Lewistown. I will merely say that the family settled in Williams county, Ohio, and by the usual industry and perseverance of my father, we became the owners of a fine farm, where mother resides at the present time. As for myself, after I had given my help to clear the farm, being of a roving disposition, I set out for Kansas, but did not remain long there, and soon found myself on a pleasure trip to the Crescent City, where I remained until the breaking out of this wicked rebellion.

I returned home to find my brother enlisted in the 14th regiment, Ohio volunteers, and considering it to be my duty also to support the Union, I joined; and now I hear father has just arrived at home from Pittsburg Land-

But I will close by hoping that these few lines will find the Doctor enjoying good health. Excuse my oblique writing, as I tried to finish my letter without lighting a candle, but found it a failure. Mr. Cunningham, of Company E., 62 Reg. Penna. Vol., told me of your whereabouts. remain yours, in our country's cause, Wm. D. F. McCarry, the regiment is doing : Washington, May 24—Midnight.—A despatch to the War Department from General McClellan states as follows:

"We had three skirmishes to day.
"We drove the rebels from Mechanicsville, which is seven miles from New Bridge.

"The Fourth Michigan Regiment about finished the Louisiana Tigers, fifty of whom were taken prisoners and fifty killed. Our loss was ten killed and wounded."

We give below some extracts of a letter from a gentleman of this place, now in St. Louis :

St. Louis, May 20, 1862. I went last evening with some friends to hear Edward Everett deliver his great lecture on the "Origin and Character of the War." He lectured in Mercantile Library Hall, (which is said to be the largest room in the United States) to a full and overflowing house. To say that he was eloquent, augmentative and convincing, would be but simple truth, but would fall far short of giving you an idea of its effect on the immense audience that was before him. It was indeed the greatest treat in the way of a lecture that I have ever heard, and besides it was a nail in a sure place. The audience, it is true were mostly warm union people. but yet many of them were what are here called constitutional union peoplewith them his arguments may have and I hope have done much good. From the best observation I can make I am inclined to believe that a majority in this city are decidedly loy al, and the balance about equally divided between the out-and-out secessionists and constitutional union men. The fear of the military prison, which is constantly before their and the evident addition to its population from day to day keeps the secessionists in pretty good order.

All eyes here are turned towards Corinththe speedy termination of the war would now seem to depend on the impending conflict there. Gen. Halleck is daily receiving reinforcements from this and other points, but he is also losing almost as rapidly I fear by sick. Within twenty four hours between eleven and twelve hundred sick have arrived here from his army besides what are going to other roints; but a majority of them are brought here; and yet they are coming every day in great numbers. It is distressing to see them hauling out their dead here—they take out eight or ten at a time in a large wagon and pass along the streets without attracting any notice, and without any funeral procession. The last time I was at the military graveyard the Superintendent told me the interments averaged about fifteen a day—six or eight men being constantly employed in digging graves.

The following communication uses strong language, but reflects the sentiments of many who begin to believe that a power greater than human is directing and

> For the Gazette. The Shenandoah Disaster.

The failure of the Harrisburg Telegraph to come to hand on Monday morning, gave full scope for all kinds of rumors brought by passengers, and also created a military excitement almost equal to that of a year ago. This reverse seems to have come at a moment when too many of our citizens were in danger of again falling into the hands of the political knaves who are now issuing and publishing their Tory Addresses, full of the most infamous falsehoods, for no other purpose than to gain office, even if it be at the expense of the welfare of their country, and has the bearing of another warning from that higher power which seems to have set his seal of condemnation on those who would again convert our favored land to the base uses of the slave power. The powers that be, as well as politicians, may harden their hearts as often as the Pharaoh of old, may resist startling convictions, and talk of restoring that which is beyond restoration, yet we begin firmly to believe that an overruling Providence has decreed the destruction of slavery, and that if the Great North and West do not carry out his apparent behests, as yet know nothing, and still find means a portion of our heretofore fair heritage to the hitherto oppressed bondsman. History and even training them to military exercises, who knows but that even now some "Hannibal" is storing his mind with that knowledge which may yet prove a scourge to all the inhabitants of the Cotton States. Such events are within range of both possibilities and probabilities-and would be no more startling than the commencement and prosecution of the present rebellion.
