The War Spirit.

Among the commendable features in this war is the spirit manifested by the young men between the ages of sixteen and twenty-one. Although surrounded by the foul miasma of bigoted partizanship, the noble example these young men have set-for there is not one in a hundred who is not only willing but anxious to shoulder a musket in defence of his country-is worthy of all praise, and affords at least some evidence that the great principles for which our forefathers contended are still cherished by those who are not yet contaminated with the infamous doctrines of State rights, non-coercion, and other heresies taught by the authors of this rebellion while leading the so-called democratic party, and blindly re-echoed by the sycophantic office hunters of the North. With such young men growing up as citizens, the race of Tories will disappear with the present sympathizers, who will sink down into an ignominy as deep as ever Hessian did in the revolution. All honor to the boys here and elsewhere.

The intelligence from Europe, says the Press, principally consists of rumors, with the significant fact that not England and France alone, but all the leading Powers are increasing, improving, and consolidating their means of attack and defence by sea and land. Bankruptcy in Austria disaffection in Prussia, revolution in Russia. and apprehension in Turkey, with ceaseless and costly preparation in England and France, to say nothing of the pains taken by Victor Emmanuel to place Italy in a condition for immediate warfare, combine to show a condition of affairs in Europe which the slightest occurrence may rouse into a conflagration, just as a single spark may cause the burning of a great city. If we might venture upon an opinion, out of so much confusion and obscurity, it is that the blow which may resolve all these elements into War will probably be struck by Garibaldi. He had sworn that Venetia shall constitute part of the Kingdom's capital, and he is the man to fulfill his promise. He has cast down his glove as a challenge to Napoleon, whom he openly distrusts and denounces. At this moment, a decidedly warlike advance by Garibaldi would speedily lead to a general war. Europe would be too busy to intermeddle with our affairs. Uuder any circumstance Europe will scarcely dare to make the attempt.

Among the wounded in the recent battle, our readers will regret to see the name of Major J. A. Matthews, who lost an

We move that an order be issued directing commanding generals to refuse all resignations from officers except for actual disability. We cannot, for the life of us, see why an officer should have the privilege of resigning-especially among volunteers-while the private cannot. If incompetent, make him go into the ranks and shoulder a musket. Besides, the man who now leaves the army, without good cause, is either a coward or a traitor.

The editors of the Harrisburg Union -the Lewistown Democrat's Bible-were arrested last week by the United States authorities for putting out a false handbill calling a meeting of colored men at Harrisburg to be addressed by Lane of Kansas, and stating that they would be received into the service the same as white men, &c. It was regarded as an attempt to prevent enlistments and inciting to riot, and these patent democrats were accordingly placed in prison. They were Thos. C. McDowell, Barrett, Foster, and U. J. Jones.

The Lewistown Democrat must have a particular spite at Rudisill & Shimp, James Burns, Spangler, N. Frank, Jones, and others in this county, who have been engaged in furnishing the government with caps, horses, &c., as it last week again devoted more than a column to frauds, &c. by contractors. The readers of that paper will remember that a rather tall charge for services of some $90,000 was warmly defended by that sheet, and unless it means the above parties in its present charges, we cannot even guess who it does mean.

A. K. McClure of Chambersburg gave a check for $5,500 to a company of volunteers from that place. This puts small subscriptions rather in the shade.

Most of the offices along the Juniata have lost hands by the war fever, and the jour who writes to us for a situation can hardly fail in securing a sit. at Mifflintown, Huntingdon, Hollidaysburg, &c.

WAR NEWS.

A battle took place on Saturday between Gen. Banks' forces and Jackson, but without any material result :

August 10, 1862.

A battle was fought yesterday between General Banks and Stonewall Jackson. General Bayard, of General McDowell's corps, with his cavalry brigade, had been enbefore in the extreme advance, near gaged before in the extreme advance, near the Rapidan river, in skirmishing and man œuvring, taking some prisoners, and ending with a slight loss, baffling the efforts of a large force to surround and cut him off.

Yesterday morning he was engaged for some hours before Gen. Banks came up, and with four regiments of cavalry, the 1st Pennsylvania, 1st Maine, 1st Rhode Island, delayed and embarrassed the enemy's advance.

The rebels, under Jackson and Ewell, had crossed the Rapidan in force, and their advance guard, 15,000 strong, was attacked by Gen. Banks yesterday afternoon, about six miles south of Culpeper Court House.

The fight was almost wholly with artillery at first, but the infantry became engaged about six o'clock, and a determined and bloody contest followed.

General Banks' right wing, under General Williams, suffered severely.

The rebel position was in the woods, while the troops which attacked them were obliged to cross an open ground.

It was not till about 6 o'clock that it be came evident that the rebels were attacking us in force. Previous to that there had been rather desultery cannonading.

The whole rebel force suddenly attacked us in overwhelming numbers at all points. Nearly all their regiments had full ranks. At 71 o'clock Gen. Pope arrived on the field from Culpeper, accompanied by Gen. McDowell, with a part of McDowell's corps. The battle was then substantially over, General Banks holding the ground that he had occupied at the beginning After the arrival of General Pope there was artillery contest, continuing at intervals till nearly 12 o'clock. The night was unusually clear and the moon full.

The rebels planted a battery against Mc. Dowell's centre, where Generals Pope and Banks were, bringing both of them under fire. The Generals and their staff were so near the rebel lines, that a sudden charge of the rebel cavalry was made from the woods a quarter of a mile off, apparently with a view to capture them.

The attempt was repelled by a vigorous fire from McDowell's troops, and the generals and their staffs left the field under a cross fire from the rebels and their own troops The fire of the rebel batteries was after wards silenced. General Pope, on arriving, sent fresh troops to the front to take the place of General Banks' exhausted columns.

The enemy did not renew the attack except by artillery. Our troops were under arms and in position

Gen, Banks was on the field throughout the action and constantly under tire. His nandling of his troops and personal gallantry is highly praised by his officers.

It was expected that the fight would have been renewed on Sunday, but the heat was so intense and both sides so exhausted, that Some boys gave the junior editor of the day passed quietly with the exception of skirmishing along the front.

The Pennsylvania regiments engaged in the battle were the 44th (or 1st Cavalry), 46th, 107th, 109th, a d 111th. Col. Collis' com wany of Zouaves d'Afrique was also engaged. We have no list of the killed in these regt.

Albert Laird, 1st cavalry. Jesse Alexander, Company C. First Pennsylvania Cavalry, was killed, during a recent skirmish near the Rapidan river. The recent re-occupation of Malvern Hill by Gen. McClellan appears now to have been merely a reconnoisance in force, as no attempt has been made to hold the position permanently. The rebel army moved out from Richmond by three roads and concentrated near the Hill on Wednesday. Gen. Hooker withdrew his forces that night and returned to his former encampment. Much more importance appears to have been given to the affair than it merited, and the public has been misled by the loudsounding announcement that "the Army of the Potomac had resumed the offensive." The telegraph from San Francisco furnishes particulars of the burning of the steamship Golden Gate, with a partial list of the saved. The Golden Gate had two hundred and thirty passengers on board, of whom one hundred and sixty were lost. Including a part of her crew, which numbered ninety-five, one hundred persons in all were saved

An intercepted letter written to his brother by the redoubtable Gen. Pillow, expresses great anxiety regarding the fate of the negroes. He fears that the South, in achieving its independence, will lose one thousand million dollars worth of slaves, and advises crowding the negroes into the South with the greatest expedition. He also urges his brother to do all he can to make the negroes believe that all of them who fall into Federal hands will be sent to Cuba.

To L. Thomas, Adjutant General: It is with pain I inform you that Brigadier General Robert McCook died at 12 o'clock noon on the 5th of August, from a gun wound or wounds inflicted by guerillas on the pre-vious day, near New Market, Alabama. He was indisposed, and was riding in an ambulance, some distance ahead of the brigade, with a number of his staff and a small escort. He had stopped to see about a camping-ground for his command, when the party was attacked by a band of guerillas, one of whom rode up to the ambulance and shot him in the side.
