

ARMY CORRESPONDENCE.

Esq., contributes to the Boston Journal the following prescription, which he says is an unfailing remedy for Cholera Morbus, Diarrhoea, &c. Of cholera in that city a few years since, in no case did the remedy fail where the patient could be reached in season. It is no less effective in cholera morbus and ordinary diarrhoea. A remedy so easily procured and so vitally efficacious, should be always at hand. An ordinary vial of it can be had for 25 cents or so, and no family should be without it over night. The writer of this received the recipe a few days since, and having been seriously attacked with the cholera morbus the past week, can attest to its almost magic influence in affording relief from excruciating pain. He ardently hopes that every one whose eyes trace these lines will cut this article from the paper, and procure the medicine without delay. Its prompt application will relieve pain and presumptively save life.

Take—One part Laudanum. One part camphorated spirit. Two parts tincture of ginger. Two parts capsicum. Dose—One teaspoonful in a wine-glass of water. If the case be obstinate, repeat the dose in three or four hours.

The Humors of the War. The Davenport (Iowa) News reminds its readers of the impending draft in the following style:

Where breathes the foe but falls before us With freedom's soil beneath our feet. And freedom's banner streaming o'er us.

Uncle Sam and Family. Yankee Freedom is a lad And Union is his sister; Uncle Sam is his dear dad And he'll give scotch a twist. For they said Mrs. Sam she died— We always called her virtue— But you, Secesh, indeed have lied, And now he's going to birch you. Yankee and sister, too, Arg bound on retribution; For our mother they said they knew Died of broken Constitution. But Yankee Freedom will now show Secesh to have been mistaken; Though of necessity he's their foe Until again they right awaken. Then scotch the tune will find Was turned as short as this; While turning to the Coffee Pot Sign.

Mr. Fryinger—Since my last letter, you have had the same general run of movements—marchings and countermarchings, reports and counter reports—but with all these things, and the depression calculated to grow out of our late reverses, there is no despondency, but faith, full and abiding faith that the cause of the Union, of the country, must triumph. Has, or has not the crisis arrived—the moment come, when "Father Abraham" should by proclamation declare that from this time forward, throughout the length and breadth of the land, every slave shall breathe the breath of liberty. This is my opinion, and this is the great blow to the Southern Confederacy. Things are becoming vital since the change of command. We people are not ecclesiastical enough here to desire "a Pope." Already is confidence inspired. I see it, I read it in the countenances of men. What I said before to you, I repeat—Look out for news! I never saw as much activity and life as I see now. Thousands and tens of thousands are crossing the Long Bridge—and if not as famous, or infamous as the Bridge of Sighs at Venice, is certain to become as famously historic. The new levies look well, and are exceedingly well clothed and equipped, but I fancy a month's marching and countermarching in the mud and rain will considerably tarnish their fine toggery. Well, let the boys have it their own way this time. One severe battle will show up the elephant. The wounded are still arriving by hundreds from the scene of the late battles—Manassas, and also Fairfax—the last being a night attack. Here Kearney fell; here Stephens perished. The former the son of Mars, the latter something of a speaker, and perhaps no less brave. I saw him here embalmed—glorious even in death. He must have fallen dead from his horse and died instantly. The Minnie ball entered his head through the temporal bone, but did not pass through. There was a severe contusion on the left temple, made by the fall. Both were among the bravest of the army—both perished for the Republic. I have seen Kearney often. His looks bespoke the man. Poor Fletcher Webster. It is but a short time since I saw him march through here at the head of his regiment in perfect health, thinking well. His brother Daniel died in Mexico, in the army. Both were sons of the great statesman. Many I saw march through here on that day, buoyant in life, are now cold in death. Liberty is a costly thing, and should be dearly prized indeed. Shall human blood always be necessary to preserve, to perpetuate its life. Let us hope not. With the millennial days we shall have liberty without hecatombs of human victories. Under the old law, without sacrifice there was no remission—the shedding of blood was declared a necessity. When the gospel asserts its empire let us fondly trust the shedding of blood, or the necessity for it, will have passed away forever.

Last night the Rev. Mr. Hopkins, one of our chaplains, with true zeal, went down with a train of ambulances to Manassas, to glean the field of battle. Hundreds are still there—bleeding—dying—many actually starved to death in their bloody garments. "O, tempora" as the book has it in the response, "Good Lord deliver us." On Friday night, and oh, such a night, for such a scene—the silver moon shone out in resplendent beauty, as if to behold the mangled forms of men. On Friday night I witnessed the arrival in wagons of five hundred more victims of the famous Manassas. As the wagons went rumbling over the stones of the city their groans were truly distressing. Every motion of the wagons opened up their gaping wounds and created intense misery. One poor fellow had both his feet shot off, and one arm; he was a cannonier; he groaned bitterly. As a general thing all the soldiers bear their sufferings with heroic endurance, never murmuring, never complaining; so much so, it has become a commonplace remark. One man of the N. Y. 5th, a Zouave, died last night from lock jaw. The ball cut off the tendo achillis, (or the tendon of the heel) and lodged in the metatarsal bones, anterior to the external malleolus, from whence it was cut. He was wounded one Saturday and died the next Saturday night. Symptoms came on with pain in the back, back part of the head, and stiffness of the jaws. Remedies all failed, though chloroform soothed his dying hours. He will be committed to his mother earth at 5 p. m., with a general escort, in the soldiers' grave yard, which may be called the house or place of death.

The 49th Pa., Col. Irwin, marched through and out of town yesterday, but whither I know not. A skeleton of a regiment, the 107th, are encamped near Fall's Church; this regiment lost a number of men at Manassas. Under the command of their gallant Col. (McCoy) they were in the front line on the extreme right. Col. McCoy who has quarters at the house of Mrs. Remington, in this city, is recovering. He is under the charge of Surgeon Worrall, and will be able to join his regiment in a week. He speaks of his men in the highest terms.

This morning the ambulances are again moving down for more wounded. The government is doing its utmost to relieve the sufferers, but alas, with all its power and philanthropy can do, there will be a world of suffering still. Sympathy is well—noble—but sympathy in its god-like spirit cannot remove the agonizing wound, or cement the fragments of the shattered bone. I beheld from the hospital roof clouds of dust afar off, created by moving columns— "I see them on their winding way."

There is considerable excitement this morning. Report has it forty thousand rebels have crossed the Potomac into Maryland. Will they ever return? The bell is tolling for church—always to me a solemn, solemn sound. I shall walk around to Christ Church, which stands as it did when the Father of his Country worshipped—his own identical pew as he left it. Yours truly, W.

LOCAL AFFAIRS.

MILITARY.—The Governor's call for the militia to enroll themselves into companies has been responded to in all parts of the State, and by this time we have no doubt a hundred thousand men are either already under arms or have signified their willingness to go at a moment's notice. A company organized for drill, under command of Captain John A. McKee, left last Saturday, and were followed by a squad of twenty odd on Monday, making probably a full company. Squads are also drilling every evening, and no difficulty would be experienced in sending another. McVeytown sent down a company on Sunday under command of Gen. Jao. Ross, the Milroy company was in town yesterday ready to go, and a cavalry company from various parts of the county left for Harrisburg yesterday afternoon on horseback. The war spirit is evidently up, and if events would have called for them, more than a thousand men were ready to march in defence of our good old Commonwealth.

Captain Stroup's company of cavalry, recruited for the volunteer service, we learn is full. We learn from the Delphi (Indiana) Journal that Joseph H. Rook, a resident of Lewistown, Pa., who was on a visit to that country, joined Capt. Bowman's company, and in the late fight was wounded in the knee, the ball passing entirely through, fracturing the bone badly.

Major J. A. Mathews, wounded in the arm at the battle of Cedar Mountain, left town this morning for the purpose of rejoining his regiment.

The draft it will be seen has been postponed until the 25th September. Exempts can now obtain their certificates from Dr. VanValzah.
