of space, I am compelled to pass over. They may form the subject of another correspond ence, frankly admitting that I have been too extravagant taking in so large a field for the subject of one letter.

RE ENLISTMENTS.

In closing this, one word more concerning the 49th P. V. I have the pleasure of informing you that a large portion of the old members have again exhibited their undying love and unyielding patriotism in the cause of their country by promptly responding to the call for re-enlistment as veteran soldiers three years longer. Already they have been crown ed with glory; by this time the capping sheaf and imperishable wreath of glory and honor has been placed upon their heads and their names enrolled upon the records of imperishable fame as the honored and bright stars of human freedom, glorious liberty and sweet independence.

REGIMENTAL COLORS.

To such men as these, who can describe with what admiration and patriotic pride they behold their bullet pierced, blood bap tized banner, though shriveled and torn, still are to be seen in living letters of gold the glorious inscription of battles through which it has been borne, and triumphantly waved? -the emblem of valiant actions and noble deeds, as its blood stained fragments passed through the battles of What banner can unfurl to the world a more glorious inscription? Where are the men whose unbending, unyielding and undying patriotism and courage can better sustain and defend its honored Stars and Stripes than those of the 49th Penna Vol.? Glorious boys! Brave defenders of sweet liberty, who have returned as veteran soldiers to your friends and homes, though your sav will be short, may not we, who remain, wish you a happy and a welcome visit. May the different counties to which you belong. Juniata, Mifflin, Union, Snyder, Huntingdon and Perry, receive you with open arms, and well-come you as honored, brave and noble defenders of a still noble, free and glorious country.

To your friends I would say, on the return of these your veteran fathers, sons, husbands, brothers and lovers, none are more worthy of receiving your hospitalities.

We publish by request, a narrative of the 49th regiment, written by Mr. Jacobs of Juniata county. We are always ready to oblige our soldier friends, but we cannot help saying that there is and has been too much laudation of officers. They are no doubt occasionally deserving of a favorable notice, but too much of a good thing is apt to destroy the best appetite. Let us hereafter have facts-heroic deeds of privates, corporals, sergeants, lieutenants, or even captains, for after all they are the boys that do the hard work, and whatever they do perform enures to the credit of the higher officers, who receive it in official re-

WAR NEWS.

An official despatch from Gen. Fos ter, dated at Knoxville, on the 29th ult., brings some good news from East Tennessee. Previous accounts report- ate, and a new election will be held. ed that our forces were retiring to the defences of the city, and the prospect of the inauguration of a second seige was imminent. Longstreet has a strongly fortified position at Bull's Gap, from which he can throw forces into the Tennessee valley, against Knoxville, with great facility. Gen. Foster reports that on the 28th, our cavalry, under Gen. Sturges, achieved a decided victory over the rebels near Seeviersville, beyond the Holston river. McCook's Division drove the enemy back after a stubborn fight of two hours, when the rebels were routed by a general charge, in which we captured two steel rifled cannon and over one hundred prisoners. Our cavalry were in pursuit.

A reconnoisance made on the 29th ult. from Gen. Thomas' army to Tunnell Hill, Georgia, captured a whole company of rebel cavalry and killed and wounded thirty-two others. The mass of the rebel army lately under Bragg has been withdrawn, and it is said has gone either to Mobile or East Tennessee. It could hardly reach the latter point whilst we hold Chattanoo-An official despatch confirms the repulse of the rebels in their attacks on Athens and Florence, Alabama.

We have Richmond advices to 29th ult. The news has no points of much importance. They give intelligence 1 25 from Charleston the 28th. A despatch says the city was bombarded on the 24th inst., at about the rate of one shell an hour; and three monitors were anchored between Cumming's Point and Fort Sumter, and, finally, that our forces had been busily employed in hauling ammunition to Cumming's Point and Fort Gregg. On the night of the 28th five shells were fired into the city.

The number of rebel prisoners in our hands is officially stated to be three thousand officers and between forty three thousand men and forty-five thousand men.

The rebels in West Virginia have captured another of Gen. Kelly's supply trains.

The propeller Tompkins, employed in carying powder on the Potomac river below Washington, took fire on Thursday night at Fort Washington and blew up with a tremendous explosion. Her crew escaped to the shore. Advices from Newbern give some interesting disclosures in relation to the growing discontent with the rebel Government in North Carolina. Meetings were being held in different parts of the State in favor of the calling of a State Convention.

Extract of a letter dated Fortress Monroe, Jan. 25, 1864.

Messrs. Editors Gazette: - We arrived at this place on the morning of the 17th inst., and found a large and commodious home, where we are expected to remain 3 years, unless sooner discharged. The quarters are part wood, with tents on top, are small, but may be considered comfortable, the climate being mild and pleasant. This place differs greatly in a military point of view from that in the field. Military rules and regulations are carried out here to the very letter; in fine, this may be considered a school of instruction for the full development and understanding of military tactics. A man who will apply himself to the duties and instructions which are daily imparted to him, may, with ordinary qualifications, in three years, or a much less time, be competent to hold any commission in a regiment in the field. It is at such places as this where the first important principles of military usages are learned. To be submissive
