

LOCAL AFFAIRS.

The Board of Relief will meet at the Commissioners' Office on Saturday next, at which time it is hoped all who have business connected with the subject of relief, or otherwise interested are invited to attend, not with mere talk, but with satisfactory evidence of real or fancied wrongs. For the information of all, we state that until otherwise directed by the board, no application will be received unless accompanied by a certificate or other evidence that the soldier in whose behalf relief is claimed, whether new recruit or re-enlisted veteran, is credited to Mifflin county at large, or to some other district in said county. The reception of a local bounty in the county is no impediment to relief, but from any other quarter it is.

Visitors to Swain's variety store will notice a photographic picture of a lady, with the mark of a ball through it on one side. It was taken from the body of a rebel soldier, who was killed at the battle of Fredericksburg. Whether his wife, sister, or intended bride, is unknown, but no matter which, any one can imagine what a sad memento that portrait with its fatal mark would be to her who owns its features. Perhaps like many fiery southern natures she urged him on to that career which has been to him the last of earth, and is now a despairing woman; or, still clinging to the old flag of her country, she saw him take arms against it with bitter tears of regret. Oh! the woe and desolation brought on thousands of hitherto happy homes, by the Davis's, Yancys, Wises, and other traitors, are truly deserving a punishment tenfold greater than that meted out to ordinary criminals.

Lieut. Swain, of company B. 49th regiment, we learn has re-enlisted 58 veterans, a greater number probably than any other company. The Lieut. has been the actual commander since the death of Capt. Freeburn. Col. J. P. Taylor, 1st Pa. Cavalry, is now on a visit home. We also notice quite a number of other officers and soldiers at home on furlough.

A letter from S. J. Baptist, formerly of this place, dated Hayti, 23d January, states that they are now doing well, and have a considerable crop of cotton on hand, which is selling at high prices. Their hard times he thinks are over. White people he says are held in great respect in Hayti.

The Logan Guards arrived here on Saturday last, and were received by an immense crowd at the railroad, which escorted them to town, under the direction of Col. Mathews, J. P. Hamaker, C. M. Shull, J. Swan, and S. B. Marks, as marshals. Followed by the officers of the Borough, Fire Company, &c. they marched through the principal streets, under the command of Lieut. C. Selheimer, and were then welcomed at the Court House by Rev. J. Guyer. In the evening they partook of a sumptuous supper provided by Major Eisenbise, which was got up in his usual good taste. This veteran company has seen hard service, but their healthy appearance shows that they can easily endure in the future what has been borne in the past; and their re-enlistment proves as they were among the first to take up arms, they are determined to see the glorious old flag restored over every foot of rebeldom.

There was recently taken from the Henderson Hose, Hook and Ladder company a rope about 30 feet long, with a piece of chain attached. Any person returning the same, or giving information of its whereabouts will receive the thanks of the company.

We have been again so completely overwhelmed with job work during the past week, that we have had but little leisure to attend to the Gazette. Although half a dozen are now on file, we are ready to do all that come to hand, with unrivaled neatness and dispatch.

THE WEATHER.—Wednesday cloudy and cold. Thursday moderately cold. Friday morning cloudy, with a warm south wind. Saturday clear and pleasant. Sunday cold, cloudy and windy. Monday cloudy and cold. Tuesday snow, with a high wind all day. The week has been extremely variable. Last night was one of the coldest of the winter.

Granville Association.

The teachers and members of this Association held their 11th session in schoolroom No. 1, of said district, on Saturday, February 13, 1864. The President being absent, the meeting was called to order by the Vice President, and the exercises opened with music and prayer. The first exercise in order was Orthography, by Miss Clymans, who gave a very interesting lesson in that branch of education. Reading being the next exercise on the programme, was taken up by Miss Crisswell, who gave a very instructive lesson in that branch. Adjourned to meet at 1 o'clock p. m.

Met according to adjournment. Music by the teachers. Mental Arithmetic was then taken up by Miss Crisswell, who gave a practical lesson on this branch of Mathematics. Miss Gallagher, teacher of Written Arithmetic, gave us an interesting and instructive lesson. Geography was then taken up by Miss Potts, who gave a very interesting lesson on descriptive Geography. Grammar being the next exercise on the programme, was taught by Mr. McAninch. Algebra was then taken up by Miss Aurand, who gave a very instructive lesson in that branch.

Miscellaneous.—The Chair announced the following programme of exercises: Orthography, Miss Aurand; Reading, Miss Clymans; Mental Arithmetic, Mr. McAninch; Written Arithmetic, Miss Potts; Grammar, Miss Gallagher; Geography, Mr. Owens; Algebra, Miss Crisswell; Experience, Mr. Owens. Association adjourned, to meet in school-room No. 1, on Saturday, February 27, at 10 a. m.

Correspondence of the Gazette.
CAMP PAROLED PRISONERS,
New Orleans, Feb. 1, '64.

Mr. Editor:—I have been thinking for some time past that a few lines from me might be interesting to some of the readers of the Gazette. Being in an Indiana regiment, I cannot find so many matters of interest as I could were I in a Pennsylvania one. As I have written home of the trials experienced while I was in the hands of the rebels, I will pass by that and write about things of recent occurrence. The notice published in the local column of your paper of the 9th January, stating that I was in Parole Camp in this city, was the cause of me finding some of my old Lewistown friends: Among them were Capt. Mark and lady, John Clark, esq., and Messrs. Holder Comfort and Harry C. McCoy. Captain Mark, of the Quartermaster's Department, though previously unacquainted with him, I found to be strictly a gentleman, and a man of good business habits, and in the position he occupies wields a vast influence. I received a cordial welcome from both him and his lady, and cannot pass them by without returning thanks for their kindness. John Clark, esq., who is Superintendent of the Government wagon and carriage repairing establishment, is also here. He is, properly speaking, the right man in the right place, and does all his work well, a fact that all persons in Lewistown well know. He looks well, and seems to like the city very much. The next on the list are Messrs Comfort and McCoy, both worthy young men having good business qualities, and who are clerking for Capt. Mark. They appear to like it very much, although they are kept very busy. They are good clerks, and merit the position they occupy. I was considerably surprised to find Lewistown so well represented in the Crescent City.

It is evident that a new, and I may add, a better time is approaching for the people of this State. They are about to enter upon an election which will tell largely either for the woe or woe of the State. It is generally believed that it will result largely for the good of it, at least everybody seems to hope so. The people seem very desirous to have control of their own affairs, and are using every means attainable to accomplish that end. The nomination of candidates to fill the various State offices comes off soon, and will doubtless result in good staunch Unionists being chosen. Everything is being done that can be preliminary to the forming of the State organization. Wisdom and good feeling seem to pervade all assemblages, and such proceedings adopted as will be for the greatest good to the State. Considerable sagacity will doubtless be used in the selection of candidates for the important stations. The day is dawning, a new life is opening, and soon I predict that Louisiana will be numbered as one of the stars—once gone, now returned, repented, and full forgiveness given. Let Louisiana come back, and in quick succession several others will follow. There is no doubt but Louisiana will come in with her Constitution so revised as to abolish that curse, slavery. Most of those proposed to fill the offices are free state men. Hon. Michael Hahn, editor of the True Delta, is spoken of for Governor of the State.

The following, which appeared in the Era a few weeks since, should, if untrue, receive the proper denial. If true, it is a shame for the people of Gettysburg, and should be placed in some conspicuous place, that the world at large might see and learn for themselves. Any person who would do such a trick has not a spark of humanity about them; if they ever had, it has all vanished. I hope that for the benefit of the State at large, the article is false in reference to selling water to soldiers:

Pennsylvania appears, through her representatives in the national Congress, asking to be reimbursed for helping to repel the invasion of her own soil. We did not know but that Pennsylvania came out of that affair whole, peculiarly, on account of the revenue derived by her rural citizens in selling Susquehanna water to the thirsty heroes of Gettysburg. Those fellows were terribly dry, and must have consumed the aqueous fluid regardless of expense. It is not strange that this proposition was met by Fernando Wood with the suggestion that as New York assisted Pennsylvania, she was entitled to a pro rata benefit from the national treasury, or that Mr. Rogers wanted New Jersey included in the little arrangement.

Yours, &c.,
CHAS. E. THOMAS.
[The above is no doubt a libel on the people of the lower counties, though some copperheads may have been guilty of the meanness. The writer however displays his ignorance when he talks of Susquehanna water, which was more than forty miles from the scene of conflict.]

A Letter from Annapolis.

The following is an extract of a letter from Abram Cash, received from Annapolis, and published in the Newville Valley Star, giving an account of the funeral ceremonies according to the rites of the Greek Church at the burial of a Russian sailor belonging to the fleet, who was lately murdered at that place:

"On last Saturday I witnessed the funeral of a Russian sailor who was shot by a citizen of this place. The services were according to the Greek Church, and as it is a new thing among us I propose to give you a brief description of it. The ceremonies were of the most solemn and imposing character, and took place in the chapel of the naval school. The body was placed in a neat walnut coffin in the centre of the chapel. On the left were the Russian officers, and some officers of our army and navy, while on the right were the sailors of the vessel to which he belonged. A choir picked from the Russian sailors, chanted the 'Office for the Dead,' which was led by a Greek Priest dressed in the robes and vestments of the Greek Church. He wore a large black cloak reaching to the ground, over his shoulders was thrown a green silk mantle which reached to his knees, around the edge of which was a broad gold border, and in the centre was a large golden cross. On his head he wore a hat made of rich velvet, in the form of a stove pipe hat, without a brim, in his hand he carried a censer. The choir chanted for about half an hour, when mass for the dead was said, during which the priest performed the ceremony of granting absolution; he walked several times around the coffin sprinkling it with holy water and incensing it, and reciting prayers for the dead. After this, he read aloud in the Russian language from a small strip of paper; this he placed in the right hand of deceased, laid it upon his breast, the priest then kissed the hand of the body and all the officers and sailors did the same, many of them making the sign of the cross and bowed to the floor and kissing it before touching the body; this was very affecting, many of the sailors shedding tears. After they formed in mournful procession: first came a Russian sailor bearing the lid of the coffin on his head, then came six sailor boys marching in two ranks, one boy was a few yards in advance of the rest bearing a small box, with a glass top, in which was a silver image, which I suppose was that of our Saviour; next came the coffin upon a bier, borne upon the shoulders of four sailors, a cross of ivory lay upon the breast of the deceased and the coffin was covered with the Russian flag. After the coffin, came the Priest and choir which chanted a mournful dirge every few minutes; next came the band composed of Russians which also played a solemn dirge; then came a body of Russian marines; then came Union soldiers and citizens. At the grave they prayed and chanted psalms, when they again took leave of the body, this time kissing the face. A cross was placed upon the breast of the deceased, a spade full of dirt sprinkled in the coffin, the lid screwed on, and the remains lowered to their final resting-place. As I turned from the grave, I thought here is another victim of intemperance. Murdered by a man who first sold him whiskey and then shot him. The people and soldiers here threaten to lynch his murderer.

—It is reported in the South African Mail that Dr. Livingstone, the great explorer, whose fame belongs to the whole world, has been murdered by the native Makololos on Lake Nyassa. We are glad to observe that the report needs confirmation.

—Two soldiers on guard were recently found murdered in St. Petersburg. It was suggested that the eyes of the murdered soldiers should be immediately photographed, in the hope of successfully testing the discovery recently made, when, to the surprise of all, the result was the production of the portraits of two soldiers of the private guard at the palace, on whose breasts were the insignia of the Cross of St. George. The murderers were at once sought out and apprehended.

PETERSON'S MAGAZINE.—The February number of this periodical is a very superior number. The steel-plate engraving, entitled "Baby's Turn," is a very fine picture, and the colored fashion-plate is equal to any of its predecessors. This number has also a variety of designs for crochet work, &c. "Peterson's" is one of the best and the cheapest Magazine published, its terms being only $2 a year, in advance. Address Charles J. Peterson, No. 306 Chestnut street, Phila.
