If a dense fog.

The passenger train approached at fu'l speed—the sugineer not discovering the fatal obstruction until within fifty yards of it. He instantly reversed the agine, and after whistling "down brakes" twice, applied the locomotive brakes, which are connected with all the brakes on the train—he with the fireman remaining at their posts, and both escaping with but light injury.

But the reversion and check were too late, as the istance was far too short for a check upon the speed inder the most favorable circumstances, with the ad-ditional disadvantage of the wet condition of the rails, which caused the wheels to lock and slide with but atmost bottom up.

The baggage car was elevated at the rear end from the truck, when the whole momentum of the train was instantly expended in driving the baggage car so completely through the first passenger car that the frame work of the one fitted closely and entirely within the other. Mr. McGreggor, the baggage master, was the only person in that car, and he escaped with but a few slight bruises. The first passenger car was quite full, containing at least fifty persons, many of whom were women and children. These were, from the nature of the collision, either crushed under the baggage car, or driven in a mass to the rear of the passenger car, the doors of which were locked, as if to make death doubly sure, and escape (so to speak) the more impossible. But, horrible to tell, the crash of wood, iron and glass was scarcely over when flames were discovered in the rear of the car, and within four minutes had enveloped this holocaust of dead, dying and mangled human beings in one common funeral pile. om up. age car was elevated at the rear end from

It is not known whether the fire originated from It is not known whether the hre originated from the stove or from the gasometer—the latter being most probable. However, it started so quickly and spread so rapidly that the passengers who immediately hurried from the rear cars to the front, only reached it in time to find the flames already under headway, and be compelled to listen to the horrid chorus of the cracking flame of the burning cars, the agonizing groans of men, and the heartrending shrieks and screams of women and children, alike powerless either to quench the flames or rescue the hapless victims from their prison of fire. Only one axe could be obtained, and little or nothing was even accomplished with that—one or two openings being cut through only to find an interest well.

apiess victims from their prison of fire. Only one xe could be obtained, and little or nothing was even complished with that—one or two openings being at through, only to find an inner wail made by the ansitived baggage car. Six persons in all were resided from the car, the remainder, estimated at at least try persons, were either crushed to death or having een wounded were burned alive.

One young lady, some sixteen or seventeen years age, they struggled to drag from a window, but begrast under the baggage car, she at last drew her-lif back again and perished within. A man who had ragged himself partly through a window, found himself partly through a window found himself agaged and a sense of the midow, was consumed before the eyes of the horried spectators. On the left side of the train a soldier this one leg succeeded in getting it through the window, but was unable to force his way further, and perhed as he was—his charred remains, after the woodrik had sufficiently burned away, falling a headless, mless mass upon the other track. One woman with ur children are known to have been among the limber of victims.

broken open and the inmates rescued.

The scenes which now ensued beggar words and defy description in the sickening and harrowing character of their details. The dense mass of baggage mater and human remains which the wreck of the two forward cars contained caused them to burn a couple of hours longer than the two following. On the right side of the train, quite early in the progress of the fire, a charred, shapeless and headless mass rolled snoking into the read down by the side of the track, digh in the air and resting upon a tangled mass of ron rods and tin sheeting was another one with arms rawn up upon the heart and legs burned offto stumps, rawn up upon the heart and legs burned offto stumps. rawn up upon the heart and legs burned off to stumps om whose extremities the femoral bones stood on By its side was another equally charred and disfig-

Just under and lying upon the flange of a wheel, was another black mass, which, with the encircling springs of a hoop-skirt, were all that remained of a woman. The smaller ribs and other bones of children getting out from the burning mass, presented, if possible, a more said and lamentable sight. On the left side, resting between the wheels, and on the after truck, the fire soon revealed a human head, about which the flames lapped and licked until the white skull shone out, and the features gaped and grinned as if in mockery of the horrid carnival.

What with the hissing, steaming, frying masses of shapeless humanity, and the white, calcined forms of ribs, vertebra, hip and femoral bones, staring from out the smoke and ashes, with the other harrowing details of the calamity, we pray never again to be confronted with such a sight.

the smoke and ashes, with the other harrowing details of the calamity, we pray never again to be confronted with such a sight.

Of the wounded the most seriously hurt was Mr. Brooks, a mail agent between Altoona and Harrisburg who resides at Mifflin, and got on the train at that place. His injuries are internal, and thought to be severe. He was taken home on the westward train. A laiy who had been rescued from the first passenger car, and taken to the station house, suffered very severe internal injuries. Surgical attendance was procured at an early hour, and all the rest of the wounded were doing well. Brooks has since died.

When the accident occurred, a message was immediately sent for assistance. Afterwards, two construction trains arrived simultaneously from the East and West, with a large force of workmen and all the necessary appliances for clearing the tracks and replacing the rails which had been bent out of shape by the heat. In a very short space of time the large force had the track cleared and repaired for the Westward train, and accordingly, at 11 o'clock, we willingly bade farewell to a scene of so appalling a calamity.

FIELD MONITOR MANUFACTURING CO. -In consequence of Mr. Haines' ina-The responsibility of the sad event is laid upon the conductor of the coal train, which had stopped at the station for water, as being guilty of the most inexcussible ignorance in occupying the Fast Line's time, or of the most culpable negligence in failing of the precaution of sending a signal-man to the rear to warn the appreaching train, especially as the position of his train was at the end of a curve and in the midst share, to which he agrees to sel the real estate, machinery, stock, patterns, &c., of the Union Foundry, with as much territory as they desire to supply with this excellent reaper and mower-he reserving $10 for each one made and sold. It is undoubtedly on such enterprises our citizens must in future rely for prosperity and improvement, for unless they are fostered less than a prophet can foretell that we shall descend to the status of a onehorse town, with one neighbor preying upon the means of another. The furnace has already given a lively impetus to certain occupations, which must necessarily increase with its prosperity; and it takes but little reas oning to know that the establishment of the above company would materi ally add to them. In a matter of this kind all are interested: owners of lands in their increased value; owners of houses in higher rents; business men in additional sales; the mechanic in an increased demand for household and other articles, &c. The reaper and mower is besides acknowledged to be equal, if not superior, to any yet patented, and no risk therefore could be run in its manufacture to any extent, while there is a constantly increasing demand for various other articles, such as Horse Powers, Plows, Harrows, Castings of all kinds, and a hundred other things which could as well be manufactured here as elsewhere. We trust our citizens will think over th s proposition, and take hold of it with a determination to see it through.

He was preceded by L. W. Hall, Esq., who reviewed with much ability the course of the opponents of the administration and the war. There were democrats there of the true stamp, who didn't vote for Lincoln in 1860, but will do so now, men who can not understand by what reasoning that which was treason and nullification in Gen. Jackson's days can be democracy now. The meeting was kept up to a late hour, was enthusiastic in applause of the speakers, and afforded ample evidence that the boasts of our opponents of carrying the county-an annual fit-are bosh! What? -"You fellows licked us (the rebels) like the devil in the Shenandoah valley, the other day," said a Yeagertown patent democrat last week. We had always heard that region spoken of as a sort of nest where treason is considered democracy, and it seems some of them are not slow to avow where they belong. Of course this man is for McClelian, Pendleton, Walters, Christy, Kearns, Africa, Taylor, &c. How do honest democrats who have sons in the army like the idea-what do soldiers think of it-that when the rebels are whipped, the stay-at-home democracy consider themselves as also whipped?
