"Pay the Soldiers."

Let every paper in the interior take up this cry and continue it until arrangements are made, first, for paying the soldiers all that is due, and secondly, once in three months thereafter .-We neither know nor care who is at fault in this matter, but we believe it rests between the neglect of army officers and the pay department. If so, the President ought to kick the whole posse out of office forthwith, and appoint those who will attend to this important duty, for thousands of helpless women and children are dependent for subsistence on this pay, or must obtain means from the cold charity of the public. The daily press in the cities is too much engaged in publishing long winded homilies on peace, the proper mode of conducting the war, dissertations on French or British policy, &c., for any of its editors to write on such a common subject, and we therefore call upon the country press to make itself heard. Let the cry go forth-NOT A DOLLAR TO ANY CHVLIAN UNTIL THE SOL-DIER IS PAID OFF, both now and hereafter.

Rumors of Peace.

The newspapers and letter writers continue to be filled with rumors of peace movements both north and south, and from the fact that gold last week suddenly fell to 200 and has since varied but little above that figure, we incline to the opinion that efforts are being made to bring about that desirable event. We must not however, build too much on our hopes, for with our successes the desperate leaders at Richmond may become more desperate and rashly fight until their whole country is overrun by our victorious troops. Their last move, that of arming the negroes, must hasten their downfall, for as this wicked rebellion was ostensibly commenced to extend and perpetuate slavery, it takes but little foresight to see that when the rebel leaders themselves undertake to set slaves free and thus in copperhead parlance make them equal to their masters, the masters are not likely long to remain pliant tools. Besides, the total insecurity of property in the rebel states, no man being able any longer to call even the product of his labor and farm his own-the conviction that the Giant North is daily becoming more formidable, both on land and sea, while the self-created confederacy is daily growing weaker-the utter ruin and poverty of thousands who under federal rule were prosperous and happy-all combine to show that the fanatical and chimerical schemes hatched by Calhoun and his coadjutors in Gen. Jackson's term, and earried out by the black hearted traitors Breckinridge, Davis, Cobb and others under the imbecile administration of James Buchanan, have not only failed in establishing a Black Oligarchy, but under the plain rulings of a higher power have produced a contrary effect. There is a desire evident in all quarters through rebeldom to return to peaceful pursuits, again to live under the stars and stripes, and while many may not relish the idea of losing their slaves, yet when it is reduced to a choice they will more cheerfully submit to such a loss at the hands of their former beneficent government than to be further robbed by Jef Davis & Co.

Gloomy-Subjugation.

The Richmond Examiner of a recent date makes the following sombre rehope it may do those whom it may concern good; but we don't see it:

There is such a thing as heart-break for nations, as for individuals There are such things as hopelessness and despair, lethargy and apathy. A conviction that all that it will do must come to naught, all sacrifices it can be rendered vain, by an irre deemable cause-a conviction resting on rational grounds, both of reflection and of experiment, will produce this state of feeling in any nation, however heroic and however obstinate.

The Charleston Mercury also has an article written in a spirit of bravado usual to that region, but which shows that disaffection has reached all classes.

Before bringing ourselves to face the enemy, it is absolutely essential that those in command bring themselves to face vital evils existing within our own lines. The path we are now traveling is straight to destruction. The crisis of the Confederacy has arrived in fatal earnest. The result of the next six months will bring the Confederacy to the ground, or will re-instate its power. Without reform we are doomed. There is more than one department of the Government in which reform is important. But reform in our armies is essential-is vital. Without it death of the Confederacy is already tolled. With the proper reform made, he is a coward who carries his heart in his

There are men in the land-there is fight in the land! It is the imbecile that is sick at heart-it is the coward whose stomach is weak. There is nothing before us that cannot be overcome; but to do it, there must be a new state of things instituted. We say again, there must be nerve. Men in command must not be afraid to die-they must not be afraid to Officers must be killed-not mere privates. Reform must begin at the top, not at the bottom of the service. To reach the private, captains must be shot. We want no child's play-we want an army.

What is a man's life to the institutions and the liberty of the country? Nothing. Let the old things pass away—let us have a new condition of things. We want no more Jeff Davis' foolery; we want one atom of brains, one spark of nerve-we want no mermaids with heads of monkeys and fishy attachments at the nether extremitieswe want men, real men, earnest men-North Carolina, Georgia and South Carolina are in no mood for trifling. They have had enough of this sort of thing. They don't intend to have much more. South Carolina don't intend to be conquered. She intends to fight.

She don't intend to be hampered or turned over to the enemy. When she is thus dealt with, there will be a reckon. ing-a reckoning where there will be no respecters of person. We want implicit order and calm forecast. South Carolina is a Commonwealth of order; we expect order, and we demand order. We are accustomed to order. We are not used to lawless ruffianism; we do not intend to suffer it.

A most onerous but imperative duty devolves upon the commander of this de partment, whoever he is. That dutythis first and most essential duty-is to cashier and shoot. Without it nothing can be done, and Sherman conquers us. With it, he is a coward who succumbs at heart.

Everything is at stake; everything that is in the way must be faced and trampled upon. The man who commands here must put his heart in his pocket, and his sword in his hand. He must know nothing but the good of the Confederacy. That he must do regardless of official weakness. The end must be radical reform.

It is folly to talk of red tape now, we want the thing, we must have it-reform, shooting, cashiering, order, subordination, soldiers-not runaways, ragamuffins, ruffians. We want and we must have, brains pluck in commanders, and implicit chedience and order in subordinates and soldiers. Six paces and a steady arm will do the business, if repeated sufficiently often, especially among commissioned offi-

If, however, commanding officers will not do their duty in this matter, let all men shut their books, for the end will have well nigh come. The time is short-will it be improved?

The Richmond Whig chimes in as follows:

The disasters which we have suffered of late, are not only not irrepairable, but they are not so great as others we have suffered on other occasions. But the people have become more depressed by them than they ever were before, because they have been flattered by hopes of peace by persons who well knew there could be no peace short of submission and enslavement. This fit of lent than formerly, because they see that Congress to which they naturally turn for of the abyse, with a reckless disregard of when the ship is about to go down, to break | hopeless. open the spirit room, and drown their fears in liquor. They see little hopes in that quarter. Congress is in fact assisting the enemy by encouraging a disposition to croak which seems to have beset the whole

A little prompt action, a slight display of resolution, a few words to keep up the confidence of the people, would work wonders. Cannot Congress arouse itself and become equal to the task?

Such articles are cold comfort.

Fire in Bellefonte.-The cry of fire on last Sunday morning before daylight brought our citizens to rise earlier than they desired or expected. The night had been a bitter cold one, and a strong wind blew from the north-west, which had a tendency to recall the fearful scene and dangers of the great fire a year ago. In the present case the fire originated in the kitchen belonging to Garman's hotel, next door above Reynolds' new building, and soon communicated with the residence of J. H. Lipton, which was entirely consumed; sive dealers in grain, coal, lumber, &c.; the flames finally reached the small twostory frame house adjoining, and occupied by Geo. H.
