is nothing like heaven's sunshine and heaven's free winds for bringing back the lost roses to a girl's cheek. The fashionable game of croquet, now being inaugurated on every lawn where there is room to place the "arches," will be a dangerous move for the doctors. It has been a popular amusement in England for some time, and we are very glad to see it obtaining ground among the pale cheeked belles of New York and Philadelphia. An hour or two in the open air every afternoon will go far towards neutralizing midnight soirees, endless piano practicings, and intolerable tight lacing Perhaps this transient beauty of our American ladies is one of the causes of those early marriages that turn bright girls into prematurely old young matrons, and elide the pleasantest years of life from their lot. If a girl does not marry at eichteen, her chance is gone; at twenty-four she has lost the fresh bloom of youth, and begins to rank among the "old maids. There is something wrong here. We know of no reason why a girl at twenty-eight should not be in the prime and fullness of her womanhood. In Europe thirty years is not considered too advanced an age for a candidate for ma trimonial honors It is a false and ar tificial system that produces these effects. Nothing but a hot house flower would wither before it had reached its prime. Girls, don't allow this stions to rest longer on your nationality.
