The Assassination of President Lincoln.

On the morning of the 15th of April, 1865, the people of the loyal States were appalled by the horrible intelligence that Abraham Lincoln, the President of the United States, had been murdered on the previous night, while attending a performance at Ford's Theatre, Washington.

No event in human history, says the Press, is more certain to survive the rush of revolution and the accidents of time. As in God's Providence no portion of the known habitable globe has ever seemed to be so distinctly assigned for the trial of proving the fitness of man for his own best government, so it would seem that he who had led a people onward in the path of almost impossible progress, was marked out for such a death as would at once sanctify his successful experiment, and wed his name to Liberty through uncounted ages. He died at the hands of the enemies of his country, in the midst of acts of pardon and words of forgiveness, and he fell on the day of the crucifixion of the Son of God and the Saviour of man. So, as men study the lessons of inspired martyrdom, they will recount the deed that lost a Christian nation its liberator and its friend. But these are not the only elements that preserve the living services and the final sacrifice of ABRAHAM LINCOLN. When he fell under the bullet of the pro-slavery fiend, his country was rising, recuperated and avenged, from the triumphant fields of battle. "He fell on the very day the old flag came down on Sumter, but not till his soul had gone up with that flag."—There was nothing wanting, therefore, to perpetuate this stupendous crime and the resulting calamity. How the American people and the civilized world received it is told in the pages of history.—Quick, spontaneous, universal was this wondrous demonstration of human sorrow. From the highest to the lowest, from the prince on his throne in the farthest and oldest nations on the earth to the just-liberated slave in the everglades of the American South, "from lands of snow to lands of flowers," myriads spoke the language of amazement, indignation and woe.

The Cholera at Halifax.

HALIFAX, April 14.—The city medical officer reports up to last evening 170 deaths amongst the passengers by the steamer England, including 40 who died on the voyage. He reports the disease as probably a severe form of ship fever, with many of the prominent symptoms of cholera. It amounts to a regular plague. The surviving passengers have been removed, some to H. B. M. receiving ship Pyramus, and others to boats on shore at the quarantine grounds. The disease is apparently decreasing.

M. M. JACKSON,
U. S. Consul.

The President has nominated to the Senate for confirmation, Wm. Smythe, collector of Central National Bank, and Samuel G. Courtney for United States Attorney for the Southern District of New York, vice Dickinson, deceased.

Hon. L. W. Hall, Speaker of the Senate.

The election of Senator Hall to the Speakership made vacant by the expiration of the term of Speaker Fleming, we cordially agree with the Harrisburg Telegraph, is a compliment at once well bestowed and reflecting credit on those who entertained the preference. This is the second time Senator Hall has been elevated to the same responsible position. In 1861 he was made Speaker without an opponent in the caucus which nominated him; and now he is again selected, when the majority in the Senate is composed of some of the very ablest men in the State. It is not necessary for us to refer particularly to the talents and services of Speaker Hall. He is prominent among the rising young statesmen of the State. He knows what is necessary and has the ability to accomplish what is desired for the welfare of his fellow citizens, and we predict that the day is not far distant when Louis W. Hall will occupy positions of higher honor and active influence than that to which the preference of his friends has just elevated him.

The Norfolk (Va.) Old Dominion, a paper of decided rebel proclivities and marked ability, thus frankly confesses the wisdom of the Civil Rights bill vetoed by the President, just passed into a law by Congress:

"While we must admit that the bill in itself wears the garb of authority and somewhat of dictation, if it could be incorporated into the laws of Virginia and all the Southern States, and all laws upon our statute books not in harmony with it repealed, the radicals would be disarmed at once and forever. If the bill becomes a law, it will enforce the repeal of our State laws in relation to the negro sooner or later, and whoever and whatever State, if any, is disposed to stand out against its provisions, will necessarily retard the reconstruction of the States. Reconstruction cannot take place—or in other words, we do not believe that our Representatives will be admitted to Congress—unless this bill is introduced by our State Legislature, and sanctioned by the people.

"Indeed, we believe that there will be but little if any opposition to it, and if it is acted upon promptly, we shall have the Union thoroughly established, and the radicals in such a small minority that our political troubles, sectional strife, and party hatreds will be of but small importance.

"The main objection to this bill is the force theory which is plainly stamped upon it. It argues with it a disposition to compel the Southern States to do that which, if left alone, they would in due time do of their own accord."

Greeley's Conflict.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES,
WASHINGTON, Jan. 29, 1865.

Messrs. G. D. CASE & Co., Hartford, Conn.

Gentlemen—I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your favor of the 19th inst. I have read the first volume of Mr. Greeley's "American Conflict." Consider it the most complete, useful and attractive work which has been written on the subject engaged in the volume. They are treated with great ability and fairness by Mr. Greeley, and the arrangement is most admirable. I regard it as a most valuable contribution to our history.

I am, very respectfully,
Your obedient servant,
E. B. WASHBURN.

W. L. HARVEY, agent for this work, is now in this county.

BOOK NOTICES.

Every Saturday, a journal of choice reading, still presents to its readers the best selections from foreign current literature. Suitable for home reading, its contents meet the wants of the fireside, and its perusal leads to general satisfaction. Price $5.00 per annum. Ticknor & Fields, 124 Tremont street, Boston.

The Lady's Friend.—Among the embellishments for May are the fine and suggestive pictures entitled, "The return of the Swallows," a showy, picturesque and tasteful Fashion Plate, comprising costumes for riding and other lively out-dornishments; the wood-cut "Clover-buds," illustrating the story "How Dr. Rounder beat his boys," and "The Bird Lover," accompanied by a pleasing sketch. The patterns for dress are unusually captivating. The stories are as usual varied and excellent. Then there are poems; and in conclusion, editorials, book notices, receipts and fashions. Price $2.50 a year; 2 copies $4.00; 8 copies (and one gratis) $16; Illustrations of the celebrated Steamship Maudslayi are furnished to Dealers. Single numbers for sale by the news dealers. Address Deacon & Peterson, 319 Walnut Street, Philadelphia.

The Galaxy.—This is the title of a new candidate for public favor in the illustrated Magazine line, to be published at New York on the 1st and 5th of each month, at 25 cents a number, or $6 per year of 24 numbers. Its table of contents comprises The Claverings, by Anthony Trollope, with an illustration; Giants, Dwarfs and Fairies; Child Harold; A Chapter from Noble Life; Archie Lovel, by Mrs. Edwards; Spring—1866, with an illustration; A Winter with the American Peepers; John Ryland's Wife; Nebulae; and these serial stories will be varied by the publication of others equally meritorious. The shorter stories, sketches, essays, and poetry of the Galaxy will be by the best American writers, with many of whom arrangements have already been made, and the editor has now in hand articles from Carl Benson, Charles Astor Bristed, Dr. H. W. Draper, Fitz-Hugh Ludlow, Professor Blot, E. C. Steedman, Miss Rose Terry, Miss Kate Field, The Author of "Emily Chester," Frances Power Cobbe of England, & others well known in American literature. The authors will write over their own initials, and will be allowed abundant latitude in the expression of their opinions. It is got up in beautiful style, with an ornamental cover, and we have no doubt will at once take rank among the best magazines published. The American News Co., New York, are general agents.

The enactment of the civil rights bill into a law has had a magical effect. An old grey headed copperhead in the Pa. Senator Saulsbury, who represents the whisky faction of democracy, in a speech before the National Democratic Association at Washington last week, expressed himself as disgusted with Johnson because he don't take the copperheads to his bosom as cabinet officers. He also said that "when Jefferson Davis left the Senate he was a better Union man than Abraham Lincoln."

The Millintown papers announce the sudden departure of Dr. T. M. Leight from that town. The Register says "that previous to his leaving he turned over his personal effects to his wife. The Supreme Court of the United States having decided the Indiana military commission for the trial of civilians to be illegal, and the person convicted by it having in consequence been discharged, there is no doubt that steps will soon be taken to release Dr. Midd, O'Laughlin, Arnold and Spangler, convicted of conspiracy against the life of President, Lincoln, and the friends of these parties claim the benefit of that decision and will take action accordingly. Of course release them—that's the new-fashioned way of making treason odious and punishing murder.

The steamer Saxonia, with news to the 4th inst., has arrived at New York. The all-absorbing topic continues to be the state of affairs between Austria and Prussia. These relations appear to be as warlike as ever, although diplomatic negotiations have not yet been broken off. If the powers go to war, it is considered that France cannot remain neutral. Bismark, the foreign minister of Prussia, has asked the support of the minor German States in the event of war. Austria declared to Prussia that her armaments were made without hostile intention, and Prussia replied in the same manner. Italy is arming. The alliance reported to have been made between her and Prussia is denied by some journals and affirmed by others.

Death while under the influence of Chloroform.—Mrs. Letitia S. Lister, wife of Thomas S. Lister, of Philadelphia, went in company with a female acquaintance, on Monday week to the room of dentist, to have teeth extracted. Being delicate and fearful that she would suffer much from the operation, she requested the dentist to administer chloroform, which he did, in a quantity, as he thought, suited to the physical condition of the lady. He was proceeding to extract the teeth when the patient was observed to be in spasms. An effort was at once made to restore her to consciousness, but though all proper means were used, it was unsuccessful, and she died in a few minutes.

MURDER IN PHILADELPHIA.

The First Ward the Scene of a Horrible Butchery—A whole Family, consisting of Eight Persons, Murdered.

PHILADELPHIA, April 12

One of the most horrible butcheries of human beings—more atrocious in its details than the Langbeek and the Skupinski murders, which shocked the community years ago—was made known yesterday afternoon, between two and three o'clock. The location of this horrible tragedy, or tragedies, is on Jones' lane, west of the Greenwich point road, not far distant from the Point, on the Delaware, in the First ward. The victims of the murder are Christopher Deering, aged thirty-eight years; Julia, his wife, thirty-six years; John Deering, son, eight years; Thomas Deering, son, five years; Annie Deering, four years; Emma Deering, fourteen months; Miss Keating, aged forty-six years. A lad, aged fourteen years, who lived with the family and worked upon the farm, is missing. It is supposed that he was killed and his body thrown into a deep well, which will be thoroughly searched this morning.

The dwelling house, a two-story frame, is located on Jones' lane, the barn and stable being a short distance off. Mr. Deering was a cattle dealer, and a quiet, unostentatious man. He attended strictly to his own business, and thus won the esteem of all who knew him. He occupied the farm for five or six years, having rented it from the owner, Mr. James Mitchell. Mr. Deering was last seen alive on Saturday morning; at this time he purchased six pounds of beef in the Wharton market.

The body of the mother and those of her four children were found in one corner of the barn, near a small out-house adjoining, which communicate by a hole, through which the remains of the victims were brought to view. It seems as though they were thrown into one heap, pell mell, and then covered over with dirt and hay. These unfortunates were terribly mangled about the heads. It would seem that a new, sharp and bloody axe, that was found in the rear of the dwelling, was the weapon used by the heartless wretch in committing the horrible crime of murder. All of them seem to have been struck on the left side of the forehead, just above the eye, with the heel of the axe, and then with the blade of this murderous weapon the head cut their throats.

Such a sight was appalling to the stoutest nerves. One of the little boys, the youngest, it is believed, was so horribly cut that his head dropped off. The other boy, when discovered, had his right arm crooked and partly raised as though fending off the blow that sent him into eternity. The babe had received an awful blow on the upper part of the breast, near the shoulder, almost severing one of its arms, and also another, a sharp cut on the side of the head.

It is the opinion of some, and it is probably the most correct of the theories expressed, that all this bloody work was done on Saturday morning, during the absence of Mr. Deering. His body, and that of Miss Keating, his first cousin, were alongside of the barn, and not far distant from the spot where the others were discovered. These bodies were covered over with hay, and one of his feet partly sticking out led to the discovery of the horrible butchery.

The body of the boy was subsequently found in a hay stack near by. The murderer has since been arrested.
