Exorcism in Rome.

M. Erdan writes from Naples to the Paris Temps:

There is much talk at Rome of astounding cases of exorcism said to have occurred within the last two months at the village of Narazano, on the left bank of the Ti-ber. A young girl named Mariangola is every day exorcised by monks, who say that she is possessed with devils. The girl lodges in a cottage near the monastery, and is every day taken to the church to get the devils east out of her. Every Sunday crowds flock to witness the cere-mony. On April 8th, the Franciscan Superior brother preached a sermon, in which he solemnly proclaimed the names of the devils who had that day been cast out from the girl. There were Bego, Asmodeo, Belzebub, Lampo, Justitie declinator, &c. The Pope would appear to be rather annoyed by the too gross absurdity of this superstition, for he has sent a physician to examine the cestatic girl.

God will not be Mocked .- We have numerous instances on record, says the Allentown Register, of the judgement of the Almightly suddenly overtaking the wicked, practical illustrations of the truth of His word, which declares that "The wicked shaff not live out half his days." An instance of this kind occurred near our neighboring town of Catasaqua last week. A man named Miller, about three weeks ago made an agreement with some of his companions in vice to meet him at a certain place every Sunday, when he would administer to them the holy ordinance of Communion, giving them whisky and crackers. This mock ceremony was performed every Sunday, but the hands which administered the mock emblems in derision, were so mangled by the premature discharge of a blast, last We publish on our outside one of the speeches delivered by Andrew Johnson
