MISCELLANY.

Bridemaids.

Next to being a bride herself, every young lady likes to be a bridemaid. Wedlock is thought by a large proportion of the blooming sex to be conta- at fair ates. gious, and much to the credit of their courage, fair spinsters are not at all afraid of catching it. So far as official conduct is concerned, when you have seen one bridemaid you have seen the whole fascinating tribe. Their duty seems to be to treat the bride as a " victim led with garland to the sacrifice." They consider it necessary to e thort her to cheer up. Her fair assistants provide themselves with pungent essences lest she should faint at the trying moment, which, between you and me, she has no more idea of doing than she has of dying. It itrue she sometimes tells them, "she feels as if she should sink into the earth," and they respond, " Poor dear." and apply the smelling-bottle; but she nevertheless goes through her nuptial martyrdom with great fortitade. In nine cases out of ten the bridegroom imore "flustered" than the fragile and lovely creature at his side; but nobody thinks of pitying him, poor fellow! If one of the groommen does recommend him to take a glass of wine before the ceremony, to "steady his nerves," the advice is given superciliously, as who should say, "What a spoony you are, old fellow!" Bridemaids may be considered as brides in what lawyers call the "inchoate" or incipient state. They are looking forward to that day of triumphant weak ness when it shall be their turn to be "poor creatures," and otherwise sustained and supported, as the law of nuptial pretences directs. Let us hope they may not be disappointed.
