

ET WAS FUR Die Leute.

COMMON SENSE is the most uncommon thing in the world. In proportion to the amount men have, do they succeed in their undertakings. No acquired knowledge can supply the want of it. In the matter of business, it suggests to us, being merchants, the following considerations, which shall control our actions in all dealings with the public:

First. We shall endeavor to keep and sell only PRIME GOODS, that we can guarantee. If we warrant our customers, they must not fail. We will not sell for ALL WOOD, what is part cotton.—SILKS that cut, for DURABLE WEAR.—Muslins, thick starched, for well-bred. Our Groceries must be pure, and fresh, and clean.

Secondly. We shall sell always at fair prices,—as cheap as fair living will allow.

Thirdly. Our stock shall always be full,—new, of the best quality, adapted to the wants of the public, and suited to every variety of taste.

Fourthly. Our Clerks and Assistants must be polite, kind, honest, and industrious men, who will delight to show our goods, and treat customers decently, whether they buy or not.

Lastly. We shall closely attend to business, ourselves, see that our customers get exactly what they want, and keep them in a good humor generally. Our bow!
