THE ROAD TO WEALTH
BY THE POETRY MACHINE.
The road to wealth, my friends, you'll find, Runs hard by the Big Coffee Pot Sign, 'Tis there the people get their money,
And children, too, who are sent alone.
And if you give me your attention,
To convince you, I'll mention,
If you call, I'll add to your delight,
More than money can—that's bright.
Though should it cost you a little cash,
To think you're poorer, don't be rash;
'Tis not your money that's true wealth,
But contentment and good health.
Therefore your comforts I've selected,
And now they are open to be inspected;
Many of the Goods are neat yet rosy,
Just the things to fit you up cosy.
Reg. pattern of cloth, rich and new,
Rustic of shades, that'll please you;
Neat gas burner stoves, to keep off the shakes,
When winter is here with its snowy white flakes.
A cloth damper, too, you'll find here,
That you wet not your fingers, my dear,
But I can't tell all, just give me a peep,
And you'll be convinced the Goods are cheap.
And at J. I. Wallis' House Furnishing Stand you can get a fat press and a hard can.
A splendid cook stove, no better you'll find Than is kept at the Big Coffee Pot Sign.
A word or two before I stop the machine,
I have plenty of tin ware, and things not seen,
And jobbing we do right on the spot,
At the sign of the Big Coffee Pot.

POETRY.
From Chapel Gems for Sunday Schools, Published by Root & Cady, Chicago.

WILLIE AND THE ANGELS.
Willie laid him down to sleep,
When his evening prayer was said,
And the gloomy shadows creep
Closer round his little bed.
In his heart, a shadow lay,
He had not been good all day,
In his heart a shadow lay,
He had not been good all day.
He had spoken hasty words,
When his little sister Sue,
Asked in a voice so like a bird's,
"Willie, please to tie my shoe."
He would not have turn'd a day,
But the boys were there at play, &c.
Now he seeks her in his mind,
With her blue eyes fill'd with tears—
How could he have been unkind?
How so dreaded little sneers?
Oh! he wishes Susie knew,
How he longs to tie that shoe, &c.
Now he breathes his prayer again,
Asking pardon, seeking grace,
When he whisper'd his "amen,"
And the shadows fled away,
From the couch where Willie lay, &c.
And again an other eve
Hover'd angels round his bed;
He had not made Susie grove,
Nor a naughty word had said,
And they whisper'd "Let us stay,
Willie has been good all day."

A GOOD STORY.
SELLING A GRINDSTONE.
Among Fred Griswold's numerous friends was Judge Newton, who resided in Mahoning county, Ohio. Fred always made the Judge's home his home when he traveled that part of the country. The Judge was a fine, jovial old fellow, fond of a joke and was always trying to get a good joke upon Fred, when he stayed with him.
One day, some time in the year 1839, Fred was passing through, and put up with him over night. In the morning he was determined to drive a trade with him of some kind, offering in his usual way to take anything for payment.
"I'll tell you what I'll do," said the Judge, laughing, "I've got a first-rate grindstone out in the yard, if you take that, I'll trade it out."
"Very well," said Fred, "I'll take it, it's just as good pay as I want."
They went out to the wagon, and the Judge turned out his grindstone, which Fred loaded in his wagon and started. He had not gone far before he saw a customer and stopped his team.
"Good morning, Squire—want anything in my line this morning?"
"Well, I don't know, Fred," replied he, in a bantering tone, "got any grindstones?"
"Yes, sir; got a first-rate one; just come out and look at it."
Now it happened the man really did not want a grindstone; he was acquainted with Fred and spoke in the manner he did because he had no idea Fred had one.
"I like the looks of that stone," said he, after examining it, "and as I want one very much, and you take anything for payment, I'll give you six cents a pound for it (four cents was the regular price) provided you will take such property as I turn out to you for payment."
"Certainly," said Fred, "I always do."
"Very well. How much does the grindstone weigh?"
"Just forty-eight pounds," said Fred, and proceeded to unload it.
"Now come with me, Fred," said the old Squire, grinning, when this was finished, "and get your pay."
Fred followed him to the stable.
"There," said he, pointing to the bull calf, just six weeks old, which was standing in the stable, "there's a first-rate calf, worth about three dollars, which I suppose will pay you for the stone."
"Very good, just as good pay as I want," said Fred, as he fastened the calf and led him to his wagon. "But, stop a minute," said he, "I shall be back this way in about three weeks, and if you will keep him till then I will pay you what is right for it."
"Oh, yes, I'll keep him for you," said the Squire, laughing, as Fred drove off, with the idea of having beat him. He supposed Fred would never call for the calf, but he did not know his man, and when he called, the Squire had nothing better than to give up his property. He then traveled, and as it was now near night, Fred concluded to put up with the Judge. As he alighted at the gate he was met with a hearty shake of the hand, and "How are you, Fred? What did you do with your old grindstone?"
"I sold it a day or two ago, at a good profit, I can tell you. I received six cents a pound for it."
"Ah!" said the Judge, in surprise, "but what have you got under there?" now for the first time noticing the calf.
"Oh," said Fred, indifferently, "that's a calf I'm taking to Colonel Davis up our way; I promised the Colonel to fetch him one, and he seems to set great value on him; for my part I consider him nothing but a common calf, not worth more than three dollars."
"It might be as well to mention that this was about the time of the great excitement about imported stock, and that Colonel Davis of whom Fred spoke was a man known by Judge Newton to be a heavy importer of foreign stock, particularly of the Durham.

Judge Newton had often endeavored to procure some of the stock, but as it was then very scarce, he examined it a little more closely, to purchase it. "It's one of the regular Durhams, sure," said he musing, "and a fine one at that; if you will part with him, I'll give you twenty-five dollars for him."

"Couldn't part with him for no such money. Colonel Davis is to give me seventy-five as soon as I get home."

"Well, you won't take him clear home with you, and if you'll let me have him, I'll give you fifty dollars."

"No, can't do it; I've disappointed the Colonel two or three times already, and he wouldn't like it at all if I should disappoint him in this way again."

"But," said the Judge, now becoming anxious, "you can tell him you have not been over the mountains."

"I don't know about it, Judge," said Fred, after a pause. "As you say, it's some ways home, and will cost something to get him there; and if you will give me seventy-five dollars, I don't know but you may take him."

The Judge was delighted with his purchase and paid the money on the spot. As they were taking the calf to the barn, Fred said:
"I say, Judge, I don't see what there is about that calf that makes him worth more money than any other. I believe I can get as many calves as I want for three dollars."

"Perhaps you can," answered the Judge, "in a few years when they become plenty."

In the morning, when Fred was starting, he remarked: "I hope when you have any more grindstones to sell you'll remember me!"
"Thank you, I will," said the Judge, not understanding what Fred was driving at.

A few days after Fred was gone, the Squire of whom Fred had bought the calf was passing, when Judge Newton called him to tell him that he had at last succeeded in obtaining some of the famed stock. The Squire expressed a desire to see it, and they proceeded to the barn.
"Is that the one?" said he.
"Yes."
"Who did you get it from?"
"Fred Griswold; I paid seventy-five dollars for it."

The Squire burst into a loud laugh. "Why Judge," said he as soon as he could speak, "I sold him that calf a short time ago for a grindstone!"
The Judge was perfectly astonished. He thought of it a moment, and then said:
"Yes—I sold him that grindstone. He has beaten me at my own game! He told me that calf was not worth more than three dollars! Don't say anything about this, and you may have the calf and welcome."

Fred often called there after this, but the Judge never reverted to the subject—neither did he wish to dispose of any more grindstones.

MISCELLANY.
The Ruling Spirit.
A few nights ago, after quiet people had retired to their virtuous couches, says the Lebanon Courier, one of those individuals in Lebanon who have been enlightening the Democracy of the country during the late campaign by oratorical displays, was observed in a condition evidencing that he had taken something, in front of the pump in Market Square, and was addressing that useful "member of Society" with great earnestness and feeling. Our reporter happened around that way about that particular time, was attracted by the voice he heard, and leaning himself against a post in the vicinity, made a note of the orator's remarks. Shaking his fist at the pump, the orator said:
"You infernal (hic) black nigger, you think the 'lection has gone for you, do you? That's what excites your impudence, is it? and makes you stand so straight there in the way of honest folks, (hic) who are quietly going to their homes! And you think too that you're going to the jury box, and into the (hic) Legislature, and into Congress and that I'll (hic) have to marry your sister! I'll let you know that I'll see you—first. My father was a Democrat, and my mother was a Democrat, and (hic) my respected ancestry all were good Democrats; and rather than marry your sister I'll see you blasted. Don't wink (hic) and nod your head at me; I'm not joking, and I'll let you know it. I'll appeal (hic) to the courts, I'll appeal everywhere rather than be forced into matrimony with your sister. My mind's made up on that, because it wouldn't be Democratic. Don't insult (hic) me with saying that yellow folks have Democratic fathers. Haven't we passed resolutions against it? And haven't we spoken against it, and haven't we printed against it? Practice is better than precept, (hic) is it? You black rascal, do you mean to insult me?—Oh, you 'pologize do you? All right, then, give me your hand. Good night old fellow. Take care o' yourself!"

And giving the handle of the pump a vigorous shake, the Democratic orator continued on his winding way, muttering about his firm determination not to marry that nigger's sister.

Difference of Time.
The inauguration of submarine telegraphic communication by means of the Atlantic cable makes it interesting to inquire into the difference of time in the various cities in the different parts of the world. When it is 12 o'clock high noon at New York, it is fifty-five minutes and forty-two seconds after 4 p. m. at London; fifty-seven minutes and twenty seconds after 6 p. m. at St. Petersburg; seventeen minutes and twenty-four seconds after 7 p. m. at Jerusalem; fifty-one minutes and forty-four seconds after 6 p. m. at Constantinople; forty minutes and thirty-two seconds after 4 p. m. at Madrid; thirty-one minutes and twenty seconds after 5 p. m. at Bremen; forty minutes and thirty-two seconds after 4 p. m. at Dublin; and forty-one minutes and twenty-four seconds after 6 p. m. at Florence.

The difference of time between the extreme East and West points of the United States is three hours and fifty minutes. In the China sea, between Singapore and China, it is midnight when it is noon at New York.

Recipe for Curing Meat.
To one gallon of water, take 1 1/2 lbs. of salt, 1/2 lb of sugar, 1 oz. of saltpetre, 1/2 oz. of potash.

In this ratio the pickle to be increased to any quantity desired. Let these be boiled together, until all the dirt from the sugar rises to the top and is skimmed off. Then throw it into a tub to cool, and when cold pour it over your beef or pork, to remain the usual time, say four or five weeks.

The meat must be well covered with pickle, and should not be put down for at least two days after killing, during which time it should be slightly sprinkled with powdered saltpetre, which removes all the surface blood, &c., leaving the meat fresh and clean.—Some omit boiling the pickle, and find it to answer well, though the operation of boiling purifies the pickle, by throwing off the dirt always to be found in salt and sugar.

If this recipe is properly tried it will never be abandoned. There is none that surpasses it, if so good.

Railways in the Holy Land.
The directors of the Smyrna and Aiden railway have had surveys made for great extensions of their system.—Smyrna will continue to be the chief station, and a new line, if executed, will pass to the north round the head of the gulf. It will then take an easterly course in the direction of Sardis and Philadelphia, but stops short of those once renowned cities. The railway, on the other hand, strikes southward in the direction of Ephesus, which will be reached by a branch line. The projected main trunk takes an easterly course from Aiden, to which it has already been opened. In its route it will touch at or pass by Antioch in Pisidia, Laodicea, Colosse, Hierapolis, Pergamos and Thyatira are to the north of the northern extension. The company is at present in an impetuous condition, and the extensive works are postponed indefinitely. The revenue is expected to be derived from the carriage of cotton, wool, and other produce of the country, and from passenger traffic.

The Junction Railroad.—The Junction City (Kansas) Union says: "The first railroad iron laid west of the Republican river was put down on Wednesday, October 24. It was brought over by wagons, in order that the switches and side tracks at this point should be in readiness when the main track came along. The gang of hands at work on the line of the road, on the town site, and that portion of the reserve adjoining, which was given to the company, looks like business. The company are making preparations for quite a stay with us. It is their intention, we understand, to build two engine houses, each capable of accommodating three engines."

When is literary work like smoke? When it comes in volumes.
What is better than presence of mind in a railroad accident? Absence of body.
Why is twice ten the same as twice eleven? Because twice ten is twenty and twice eleven is twenty-two.
Why are fowls the most economical stock for farmers? Because for every grain of corn they give a peck.
